JAPANESE PROTEST FOLLOWS BIG DEMONSTRATION IN CANTON Crowd Of 6,000 Listen To Fiery Speeches

8 To 5 Favourite

A Reuter's message from Washington states that President Roosevelt is an 8 to 5 favourite on Wall Street for the coming presidential elections.

BRITISH POLICY ON SANCTIONS

Mr. N. Chamberlain
Severely Criticised

CLEARING WAY FOR PEACE

London, Yesterday.
The Times, commenting on Mr. Neville Chamberlain's recent speech, in which he announced his opposition to the policy of continued sanctions against Italy, says that single-handed pressure by Britain for the readmission of Italian imports would be just as misguided as action in the contrary sense would have been six months ago.

It is common ground that the misadventure "sanctions" are not a permanent undertaking, and a collective experiment can only be brought to an end collectively. The right reinforcement (positive as well as negative) of the structure of peace, in the light of the international failure to apply the preventive machinery of the Covenant, overshadows the question of how and when the Powers concerned may decide to end the attempt at counter-aggression by measures of passive economic resistance.

In the interests of the general European peace the paper stresses the constructive value of Anglo-German exchanges and urges the need of clearing the way for the visit of a British Minister to Germany.—Reuter.

NEW COMMODORE FOR SINGAPORE

London, Yesterday.—Captain M. L. Clarke has been appointed to succeed Captain Mark Wardlaw as Commodore in Charge of Naval Establishments, Singapore.—Reuter.

DARING PIRACY OFF RUMANIAN COAST MASKED BUCCANEERS ELUDE COASTGUARDS

Bucharest, Yesterday.—Brandishing knives and pistols, masked pirates attacked the Egyptian cargo ship Mabro in Braila, to-day. They approached the ship in row-boats with muffled oars, and climbed aboard by means of rope ladders, surprised the sleeping crew and bound and gagged them.

The pirates ransacked the ship from stem to stern. Not content with removing money, valuable carpets and oriental goods they stole the crew's clothes.

METAL TRADE STRIKE SETTLED

OCCUPIED FACTORIES TO BE EVACUATED

SERIOUS LOSSES SUFFERED BY FRENCH EXPORT BUSINESS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

PARIS, YESTERDAY.
AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE EMPLOYERS AND WORKERS IN THE METAL INDUSTRY WAS AT LAST REACHED LAST EVENING, AND 35,000 METAL WORKERS IN GREATER PARIS WILL RESUME WORK ON MONDAY. FACTORIES OCCUPIED BY THE WORKERS WILL BE EVACUATED AT ONCE. THE STRIKE OF BUILDING TRADE WORKERS WAS LIKEWISE ENDED, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF SOME MINOR GROUPS.

Before the building trade workers return to work they will, however, hold a mass meeting in the Bois de Vincennes to celebrate their victory. Since the proclamation inviting the workers to attend the meeting warns eventual participants that street processions are not permitted, it is hoped that the meeting will pass without any untoward incidents. Butchers' shops will reopen to-day, as the shop-owners and employees have come to terms.

The Radical-Socialist paper Republique publishes an article warning the Government that "the fate of the Popular Front depends on a rapid settlement of the present social conflicts." It points out that the economic life of France has come to a partial standstill, and that the French export business has sustained serious losses as a result of the strike, since many orders from abroad which normally would have gone to France were placed with the foreign competitors of French importers during the strike.

SITUATION IN SPAIN

Disquieting Features
Discussed

CABINET MEETING HELD

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Madrid, Yesterday.
The disquieting situation in Spain was discussed at a Cabinet Council held yesterday evening. It is stated that the Government decided to require employees strictly to carry out the terms of the agreements between the employers and workers, as drawn up by the committee of arbitration.

The Government threatens employers who should fail to do so with heavy penalties, but at the same time announces that severe measures will also be taken against workers guilty of "inciting to unjustifiable strikes."

The Cabinet likewise resolved to render the existing decrees concerning the disarming of the civilian population still more drastic, and to threaten with dismissal all Mayors who should not maintain order with all the means at their disposal.

The paper refers to the fact that agreement on principle between the employers and workers had already been reached on June 7, and declares that the continuation of the strike beyond this date was therefore absolutely unjustified.

The Mayors of the suburbs yesterday afternoon once more addressed an appeal to the Minister of Interior, M. Salengro, asking that the Government should grant special funds to those municipalities which were forced to support the families of the strikers. The Minister has promised that the Government will take "all the necessary measures."

A report from Marseilles states that the newspaper publishers in Marseilles have decided not to publish any papers for the time being, since the strike of the employers of the Hat-chette firm, which has a virtual monopoly of the sale and distribution of newspapers throughout France, still continues.—Trans-Ocean Service.

HEAVY RAIN IN ENGLAND

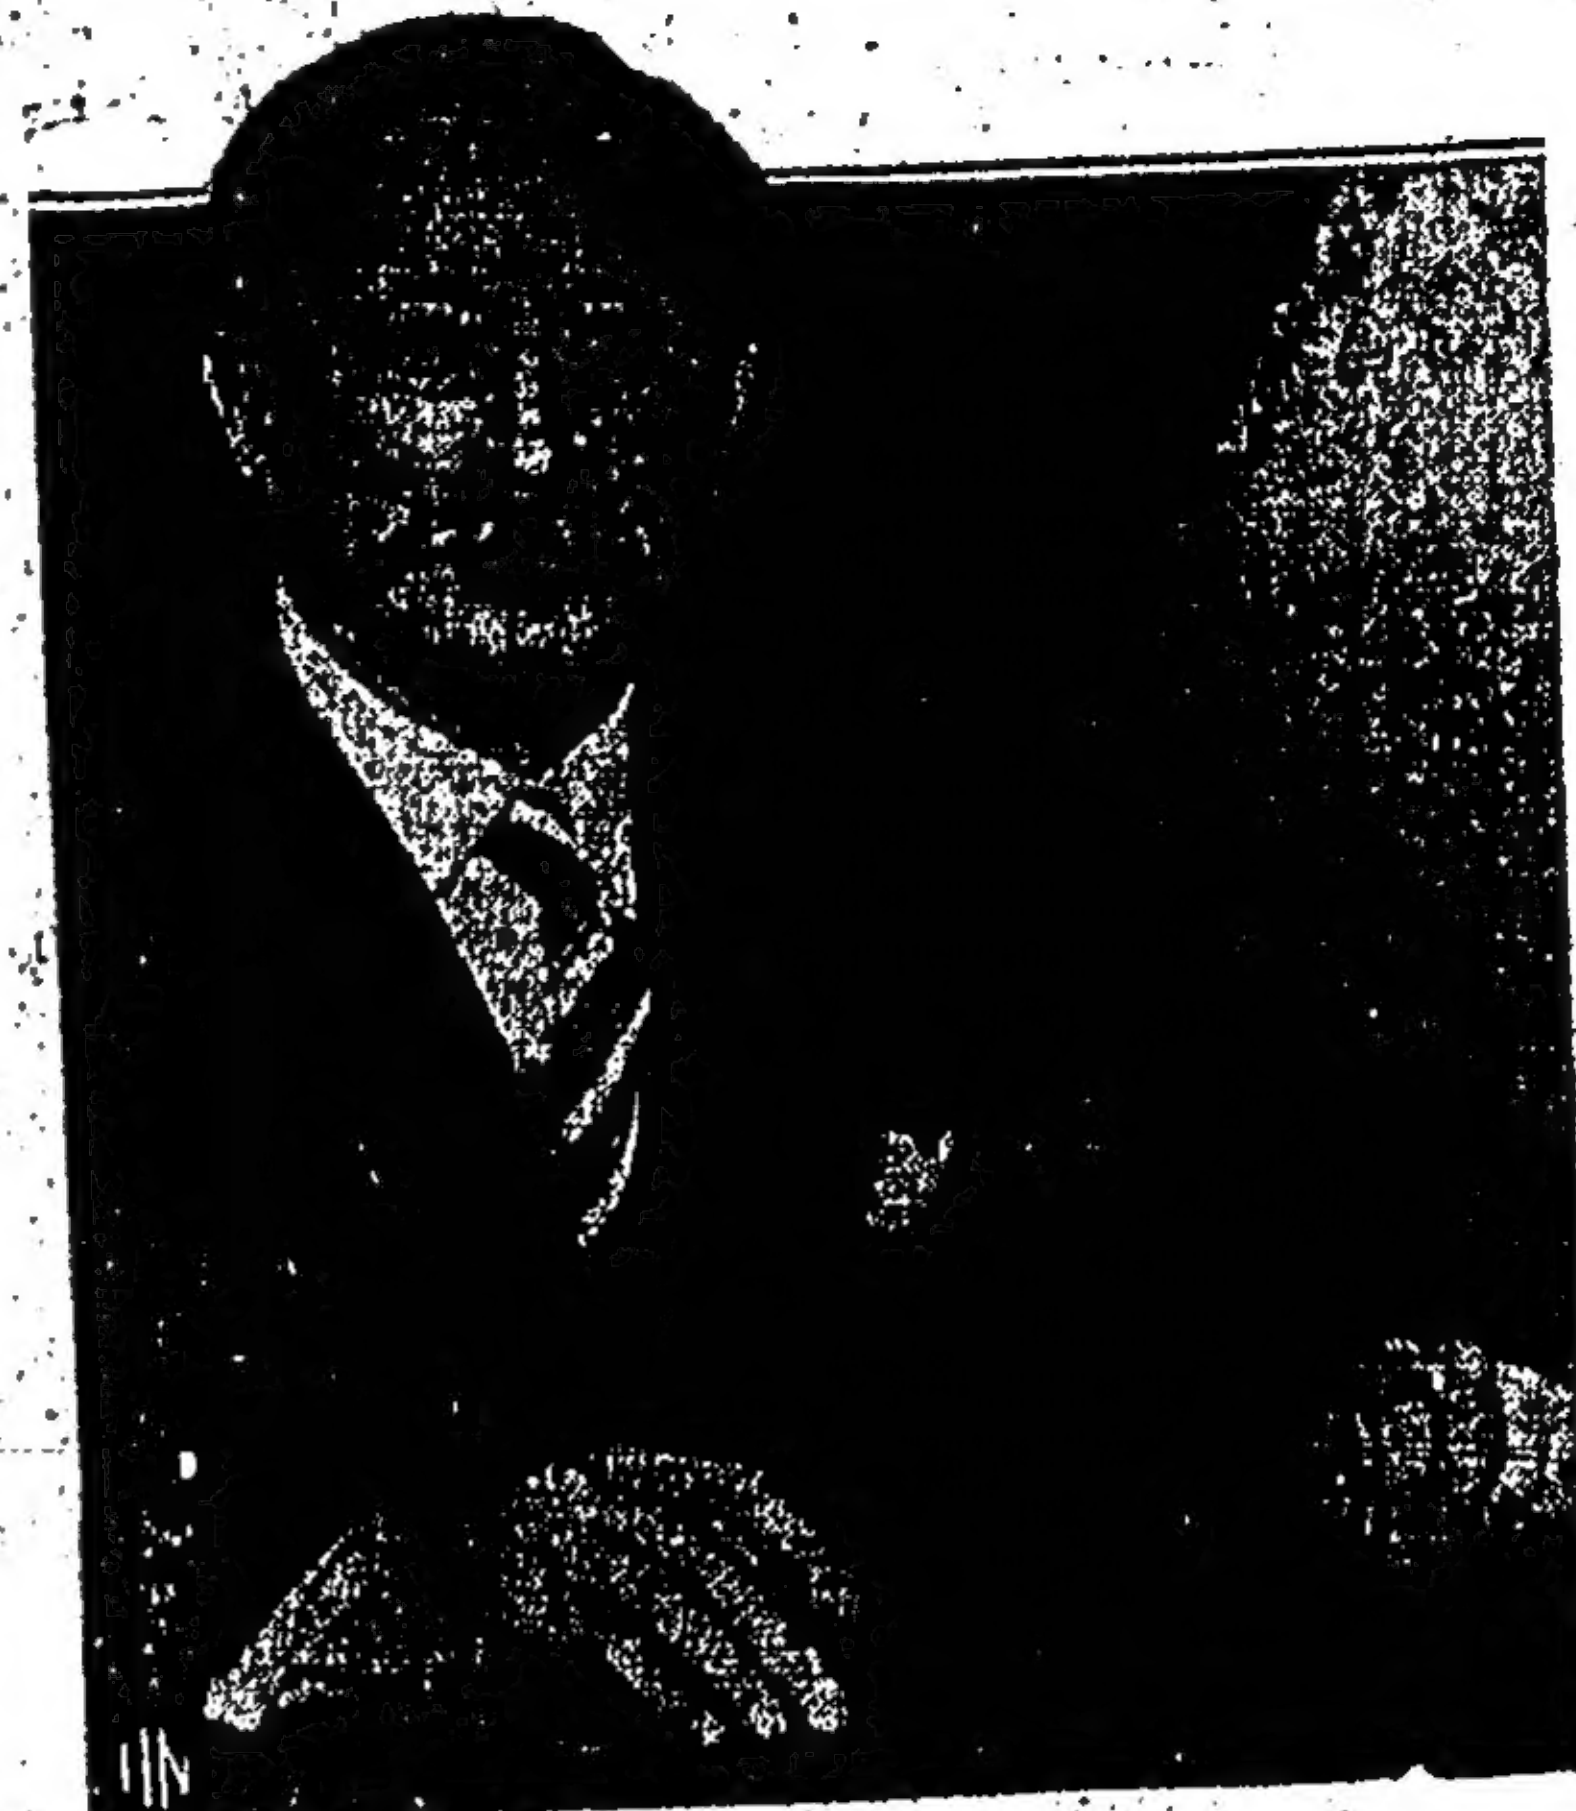

Cricket Programme
Washed Out

London, Yesterday.

Heavy rain fell throughout the country and as a result the week-end cricket programme has been severely interfered with. No start could be made in the following fixtures on account of the sodden state of the ground:

Lord's—North v South (Test Trial)
Oval—Surrey v Essex
Chesterfield—Derby v Yorkshire
Manchester—Lancashire v Middlesex
Edgbury—Worcester v Hampshire
Oxford—Oxford U. v Leicester
Cambridge—Cambridge U. v Free Foresters
Trent Bridge—Notts v All-India
Reuter.

This only leaves three games—Sussex v Warwick at Hoveham, Kent v Somerset at Tonbridge and Glamorgan v Gloucester at Newport.

This is a new portrait of M. Leon Blum, Socialist leader of France, who has taken over the Premiership. His party was put in power during the recent elections.

Peiping, Yesterday.

Student trouble flared up again this morning, when 300 students from Yenching and Tsinghua marched 10 miles into Peiping. However, the police had been warned and closed the Hsi Chih-men gate against them, and the gate is now strongly guarded.

ROOSEVELT REMAINS THE FAVOURITE

Chances Not Seriously Threatened

Washington, Yesterday.
President Roosevelt remains the favourite for the Presidential election, despite the London and Knox nominations. Neutral observers consider that the nominations will not seriously threaten President Roosevelt's chances. The betting on Wall Street is 8 to 5 on Mr. Roosevelt.—Reuter.

STARTLING REPORTS FROM SHANGHAI

GEN. CHIANG PLANNING MARCH ON SOUTH?

ARMY AND AIR FORCE SAID TO BE MOBILISING

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

To-day was a public holiday in order that as large a crowd as possible could attend the anti-Japanese demonstration this morning at the East Parade Ground.

Before the demonstrators marched out, fiery speeches were delivered by officials and Kuomintang workers. The gist of the addresses was that Japanese aggression must be resisted and that those who did not resist were traitors. Slogans of similar nature were carried from the Parade Ground on a grand march through the city.

There were the usual flag-waving and hand-playing, about 6,000 persons taking part in the demonstration. A heavy shower of rain proved disconcerting, but did not dampen the spirits of the crowd.

The parade was intended to arouse popular support of the anti-Japanese policy of the two Kwangs.

RELAXATION OF TENSION

EXPLAINS

HONG KONG RUMOURS CAUSE
MISUNDERSTANDING

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
Relaxation of the tense political situation here was apparent to-day. A statement by General Yu Han-mou, commanding the First Kwang Army in Southern Kwangsi, said that the South-west troops had not made any precipitate movement but were awaiting orders from Nanking.

General Yu admitted that a small detachment of Kwangtung troops have reached Chen Chow in Southern Hunan and that a similar Kwangsi force is at Chi Yang in Southern Hunan, but no further advance is contemplated. "Such a movement is necessary," explained General Yu, "as our forces desire to resist Japanese aggression. These units are maintaining order and peace in those towns."

"All the rumours in certain Hong Kong papers are unfounded, and much misunderstanding has unduly been created. We ask the Central authorities to deal with Japan, and there is no internal personal issue involved." General Yu added that several telegrams were received here from the North, but those who sent them were under a mistaken impression, owing to their distance from Canton.

Rumours that General Yu himself was detained here are groundless. Because of his long connection with the Kwangtung army, he is loyal to his superior officer.

The second match in the Worcester Cup polo series, scheduled for to-day, has been postponed to next Saturday owing to heavy rain.—Reuter.

SO LONG, HOLLYWOOD

By NARD JONES

BACK of Beverly Hills, back of Bel Air, nestled snug against one of those blue-brown foothills that cut Hollywood off from the sea, stood the awe some English mansion that had always been connected with the name of Maurice Fontaine.

Only a few other movie folk could afford to build near him; and Maurice Fontaine's house showed plainly that he was king of them all. Nobody had quite come up to it.

The house was connected with his name, and might be for a little while yet. But he had not really owned it for years now. He hadn't, actually, owned it from the first, because it had been more than even his salary, fabulously reported, could handle comfortably.

And so this particular afternoon he was still inside the big English house—but precariously. And, perhaps, momentarily. He had far exceeded his rightful time there, and the holder of the mortgage, the law itself, had with increasing regularity made themselves clear on this point. For the great Maurice Fontaine had crashed. As far as filmland was concerned, he was through.

There were, however, a number of reasons why Maurice Fontaine had not left the big English house this afternoon. One of them was that he did not know where else to go. Another was that he wanted to eat. He was standing in the centre of the huge, gleaming kitchen, and he found himself very much alone. And, also, very much disappointed in the contents of the refrigerator.

Vaguely, as though he had forgotten what he had planned to do, Fontaine walked away from the table and out of the kitchen, on through the dining room—the dining room where he had been charming host to a dozen or 20—and on through the Georgian hall.

In the living-room he strode about on his long legs, lifting the lids of expensive cigarette boxes, one after the other. But there were only shreds of tobacco in all of them, and at length he poured some of these shreds into the palm of his hand and crammed them into a pipe that had been on the mantel.

It took the shreds from several cigarette boxes to fill the pipe, and when it was finished Fontaine grinned to himself unbelievably. It was absurd, it was utterly fantastic, that Maurice Fontaine couldn't raise a cigarette—but there it was. He could not raise a cigarette.

He was applying a match to the shreds in the pipe when, somewhere in the house, he heard a buzzer signalling resolutely. It would be, he supposed, someone with eviction papers.

He hadn't meant to have this happen. He had planned to simply walk out and leave everything to them. And he could still do that, if he chose. Somehow he caught a picture of himself—sneaking through the kitchen way—snatching up the food on the table as he went. His pride revolted, and his dramatic instinct caught hold. He'd open the door for them, damn them, turn the place over—and then leave, slowly and grandly. Like a scene in one of his pictures.

"One of my pictures!" he whispered, bitterly. There hadn't been a Fontaine release in two years—three years. Or was it nearer four? How long had "sound" been in? What was the year they had stopped using dialogue only in the last reel and started "all talkies"? Well... it didn't matter. The buzzing was insistent now. Fontaine went to the door.

But beyond the door there was no one with eviction papers. There was, instead, a young girl who trembled so violently that the white purse in her hand was almost a blurred rectangle against her dark blue suit.

"You—you're Maurice Fontaine," she said, as if he should not be.

The tone warmed Fontaine. It had been a long time since he had heard that tone, that certain subtle shade of awed surprise.

"Yes," he said, smiling. "Was it someone else you wanted to see?" A friend of one of the servants, probably.

"Oh, no! It's just that I—I guess I expected the door to be opened by someone else. A—A butler or something!" She laughed, poking fun at her ideas of Hollywood grandeur.

"I haven't a butler," said Maurice Fontaine, truthfully. "Won't you come in?"

"You're sure you don't mind?" "Mind?" repeated Fontaine, standing back from the doorway. "Not at all." He ushered her into the house, pushed a chair nearer a fireplace whose cold ashes had not been emptied for weeks. "I'm afraid," he said, "I can't offer you a cigarette or a cocktail. You see—"

"Oh, that's all right. I don't care for cocktails, and I think I have some cigarettes."

"You are," Fontaine told her amiably, "an answer to my prayer, then."

SHE looked at him oddly, holding out the package. Her hands, he noticed, were still trembling.

He wanted to allay her nervousness, and yet her very eye of him gave him a sense of power and importance that he needed badly. When he had lighted their cigarettes he heard her say, "I'm Pauline Gerald, and I—I remembered what you said about one coming to your house if one was in Hollywood."

Fontaine's mouth opened slightly. He tried to place the name, failed, and then remembered that once he had made a personal appearance in New York City, and met thousands of young women who stood in line. It had been his first and last personal appearance. He had told the studio he wouldn't do it again, not for anyone or anything.

"Of course. You're from New York. And what are you doing 'way out here?'"

She shook her head, puzzled. "But I'm not from New York. I'm from Oregon. A little place there called Athena." She smiled at the absurdity of the town's name.

"I've never been in Oregon, though," Fontaine told her.

"It was in your picture that you said it," she explained, looking frightened, obviously afraid now that he wasn't going to remember. "I—I've forgotten the name of it. But it was when they first had music with the pictures, and you made a little speech at the end."

Suddenly, Maurice Fontaine remembered. He shouldn't, he told himself bitterly, ever have forgotten it. It had been the studio's first sound picture and they had asked him to do a "trailer" monologue—one of the first tentative attempts at screen speech which was to whet the public's appetite for the wonders to come. And it had been that very speech which had convinced the studio executives, and the theatre owners, that Maurice Fontaine with voice had almost none of the power of a silent Maurice Fontaine.

"Oh, yes," he said slowly. "I—I think I remember saying that if ever you were in Hollywood you should be sure to come and see me."

"Of course I know it was—well, just being polite. I wouldn't have accepted your invitation. But you see, I didn't know what else to do."

Fontaine grinned. "I think it was nice of you. Nobody else took me up on the dare. Of course, my name's not in the telephone book."

He recalled uncomfortably that it was not even on the lists of subscribers now. "And it's quite a distance up here." He looked suddenly at her shoes. "Did you walk?"

"Why, yes." She smiled ingenuously. "I asked a taxi driver which was your house—and after he'd pointed up here, I walked."

Fontaine couldn't return the smile. "Broke, eh?"

She nodded quickly. "But I didn't come for money."

"That's fortunate, indeed." "I came for advice. I want a job. Just a chance to work."

"Oh the movies, I suppose?" "No. That is, I mean I know I couldn't act. But if I could get a job in the studios. Don't they use file clerks? Or I can type fairly fast. Her eyes grew wider and more desperate. They were eyes no normal man could deny.

Fontaine kept wondering how old she must have been when she saw that first picture—his studio had made in sound. Not more than 14 or 15, probably. But she had remembered all that time, and she sat before him now as a young woman, out of Oregon—wanting, good God, a job in the studios!

"I thought," she was saying hopefully, "you could just tell me who to see."

HE sat there groping for what she meant to him, and suddenly he realized that she reached out to him from another world—a real world in which real people moved. A world in which Morris Font had lived... Morris Font, the seven-dollar-a-week grocery clerk who had grown up to become Maurice Fontaine.

"You may as well know," he said suddenly, "that I no longer count in the studios. Not in any of them."

"You don't mean you..." "Yes." He nodded in answer to her unspoken thought. "Don't you know I haven't worked for years?"

"But I remember seeing you—of course we don't get the pictures very soon in our little town."

"You've got the last ones with Maurice Fontaine in them, though. If I called the smartest studio in Hollywood I couldn't get in touch with an office boy." He stood up, hurled the cigarette into the fireplace. "They throw me out of this house to-day!"

She searched his eyes, believing gradually. Then she glanced at the big room, sighing.

"Look here," he said, "you'd better leave. I'm not the fellow you're looking for. I'm just a guy who hasn't had a meal since yesterday morning, and don't know where his next one is coming from. You got an invitation, all right. But you accepted it too late."

He stopped, then dropped into a sadder, a more gently humorous tone. "So you'd better get out of Hollywood as quickly as you can, that's my advice. Go on back to—Athena. And leave me a cigarette on your way out."

His bitterness failed to find her. All she said was, "Do you... you don't mean that about—about your next meal?"

"I certainly do. Back in that cathedral-like kitchen are four eggs and a loaf of not very fresh bread—but I wouldn't know what to do about them."

"Why," laughed Pauline Gerald, "make an omelette and toast, of course. Is there butter?"

He nodded. "A small dab of butter."

It was, he told her a little while later, quite the finest omelette he had ever tasted. And across the kitchen table, where she had accepted half the omelette in return for her labour, Pauline Gerald modestly agreed that it was fair.

"You know," Fontaine told her, "I don't think you realise what you've done for me."

"Oh, yes I do. I've cooked an omelette for you. And what I'm having trouble realising is that it's happened to me. But I've a confession to make, Mr. Fontaine."

"A confession?" He was instantly suspicious. Was this some trick? "Look here," he said, "What do you mean?"

"I MEAN that one of the reasons I wanted to stay was because I saw a man outside. He's been following me."

"A man following you?" "He nodded. "I'd better tell you the whole story. You see, I've known him a long time. He used to live in Athena. When I came to Hollywood my father wrote him where I was staying."

"And has he been trying to get you to go back home?" "No-o-o..." Her voice was queer. "But he's been very—well, unpleasant and insistent."

"I see," said Fontaine, tapping his fingers against the table.

"Ever since I came to Hollywood he's followed me about, trying to get something against me. Something that would prove I—"

"Something that would prove you available for what he proposes," Fontaine supplied. "I know the type."

"But to-day, when I got the idea of coming to you, I didn't know he was following. I wouldn't have come if I'd known that. I think," she said, "he'll go away in a little while, and then I won't bother you any more."

"You aren't," said Fontaine with an old pang in his breast at the thought of her leaving, "bothering me at all. You—"

He stopped suddenly. A sharp noise had come from the hallway, so sharp and loud that they heard it very plainly there in the kitchen. It sounded like the forcing of a door. The next thing Fontaine knew he was facing a lean-faced young man whose eyes were unpleasant.

"How," said the young man, "would you like to have me tell your old man about this? Or maybe some of the folks in the home town? It'd get around pretty fast, and I think you'd want to stay in California."

"How," asked Fontaine pleasantly, "would you like to be thrown out on your ear?"

"By you?" The young man Fontaine unbelievably. "Say, you may be a movie star and hot with the women, but you ain't throwing anybody out on their ear."

He returned his attention to Pauline. "Come on. You'd better come out of here with me. I knew I'd catch up with you. I know a dame in this town can't bust along without a job for—"

The young man did not finish. Or rather he did finish. Fontaine's angry blow clipped him neatly on the chin. It was a very competent blow because, as the young man slumped down, his chin took a second crack on the edge of the table.

The girl's face was white. "I'll never hear the last of this," she whispered to Fontaine. "I'll never be able to go back to Athena."

"Not even if I go with you?" "G-go with me?"

"That's what I said. I'll explain to your father." Fontaine looked at her quizzically. "What does your father do?"

"He owns a ranch." "Good. After I've explained things to him he can give me a job. I want a job."

The front door buzzer sounded a long, determined signal. Fontaine held a finger to his lips. "They've come to suggest I leave," he whispered. "Wait here just a moment." He lifted out of the kitchen, and returned a few seconds later with two cigarette boxes. "They'll never miss them," he told Pauline, moving them into his pockets. "Now out the back door."

He heard in a whirl, her mind full of questions, Pauline asked the only one which did not really matter. "What," she said, "are the cigarette boxes for?"

It wasn't Maurice Fontaine who grinned down at her. It was Morris Font who was going to earn $7 a week and board and room as a ranch hand. "The cigarette boxes? They're for two tickets to Athena, Oregon!"

Hats Larger For Street Wear

WE are going to venture forth in big hats. We are not going to reserve them for "best"; we are going to set them jauntily on our heads when, in the morning, we leave home, whether it be for business or pleasure. Moreover we are going to like them, they are so becoming.

They are not big like cart-wheels; no one would have the audacity to suggest that an active woman would appear in anything so extreme; they are discreet enough to make travel in taxi or bus feasible. After the many off-the-face hats of past Summers, the shade-giving brims of the new ones will be welcome. Some wearers will bless their gentle flattery. These larger hats are part and parcel of the return to the "ewig Weibliche" that marks the season.

One well-known New York milliner, a strong advocate of bigger brims, says they have the "turn-of-the-century look." She likes to fold them up at the back, holding them close to the head so that the up-to-date curled bob loses none of its charm. The profile effect is stunning. On other models she turns the brim up at the side. If the truth be told, these hats could be easily pivoted to bring the upward swing where it is most becoming.

Not content to leave brims round, this designer slashes some of them and works them into the fluted contour of an ace of clubs. The alluring glimpses that this treatment affords of eyes, brow and hair cannot be guessed at—the hats must be seen in place.

With wider brims come 1900 trimmings. Dainty lilies-of-the-valley lie in sprays at the front, or sometimes the back, of big hats. They have the Spring-like aspect that goes well with white collar and cuffs of sheer lace-edged muslin on black or navy frocks. It was Molyneux who tucked a row of tulips through the wide silk girdles of his dresses, and so gave milliners the idea of "planting" the Dutch flowers on hats. In the red and white candy-stripe variety they are stunning on dark blue.

The most beguiling of the bouquets are mixed ones, so realistically reminiscent of old-fashioned gardens that they may almost be expected to have a perfume. Mignonette, double daisies, anemones, poppies, roses, all are candidates for these clusters. They are set high at the front of natural straw hats, to give a bit of the soaring look that is modish, especially when it comes to trimmings.

Birds of bright feathers are lighting on Summer hats. As the aviaries where they are hatched are the minds of milliners, it is impossible to give them scientific names. But what's in a name! It is their brilliant plumage that really counts. The Summer landscape will be considerably brighter because of it.

Veils that went with the Gibson girl hat are much in evidence, only now they are lifted. The modern mademoiselle is far too sensible to impair her sight with dancing dots and lines. But she will condescend to let her pet milliner put a huge bow of veiling at the back of her hat, or, and this is the very latest, place a halo of it under her brim, in such a way that it droops devastatingly over her forehead.

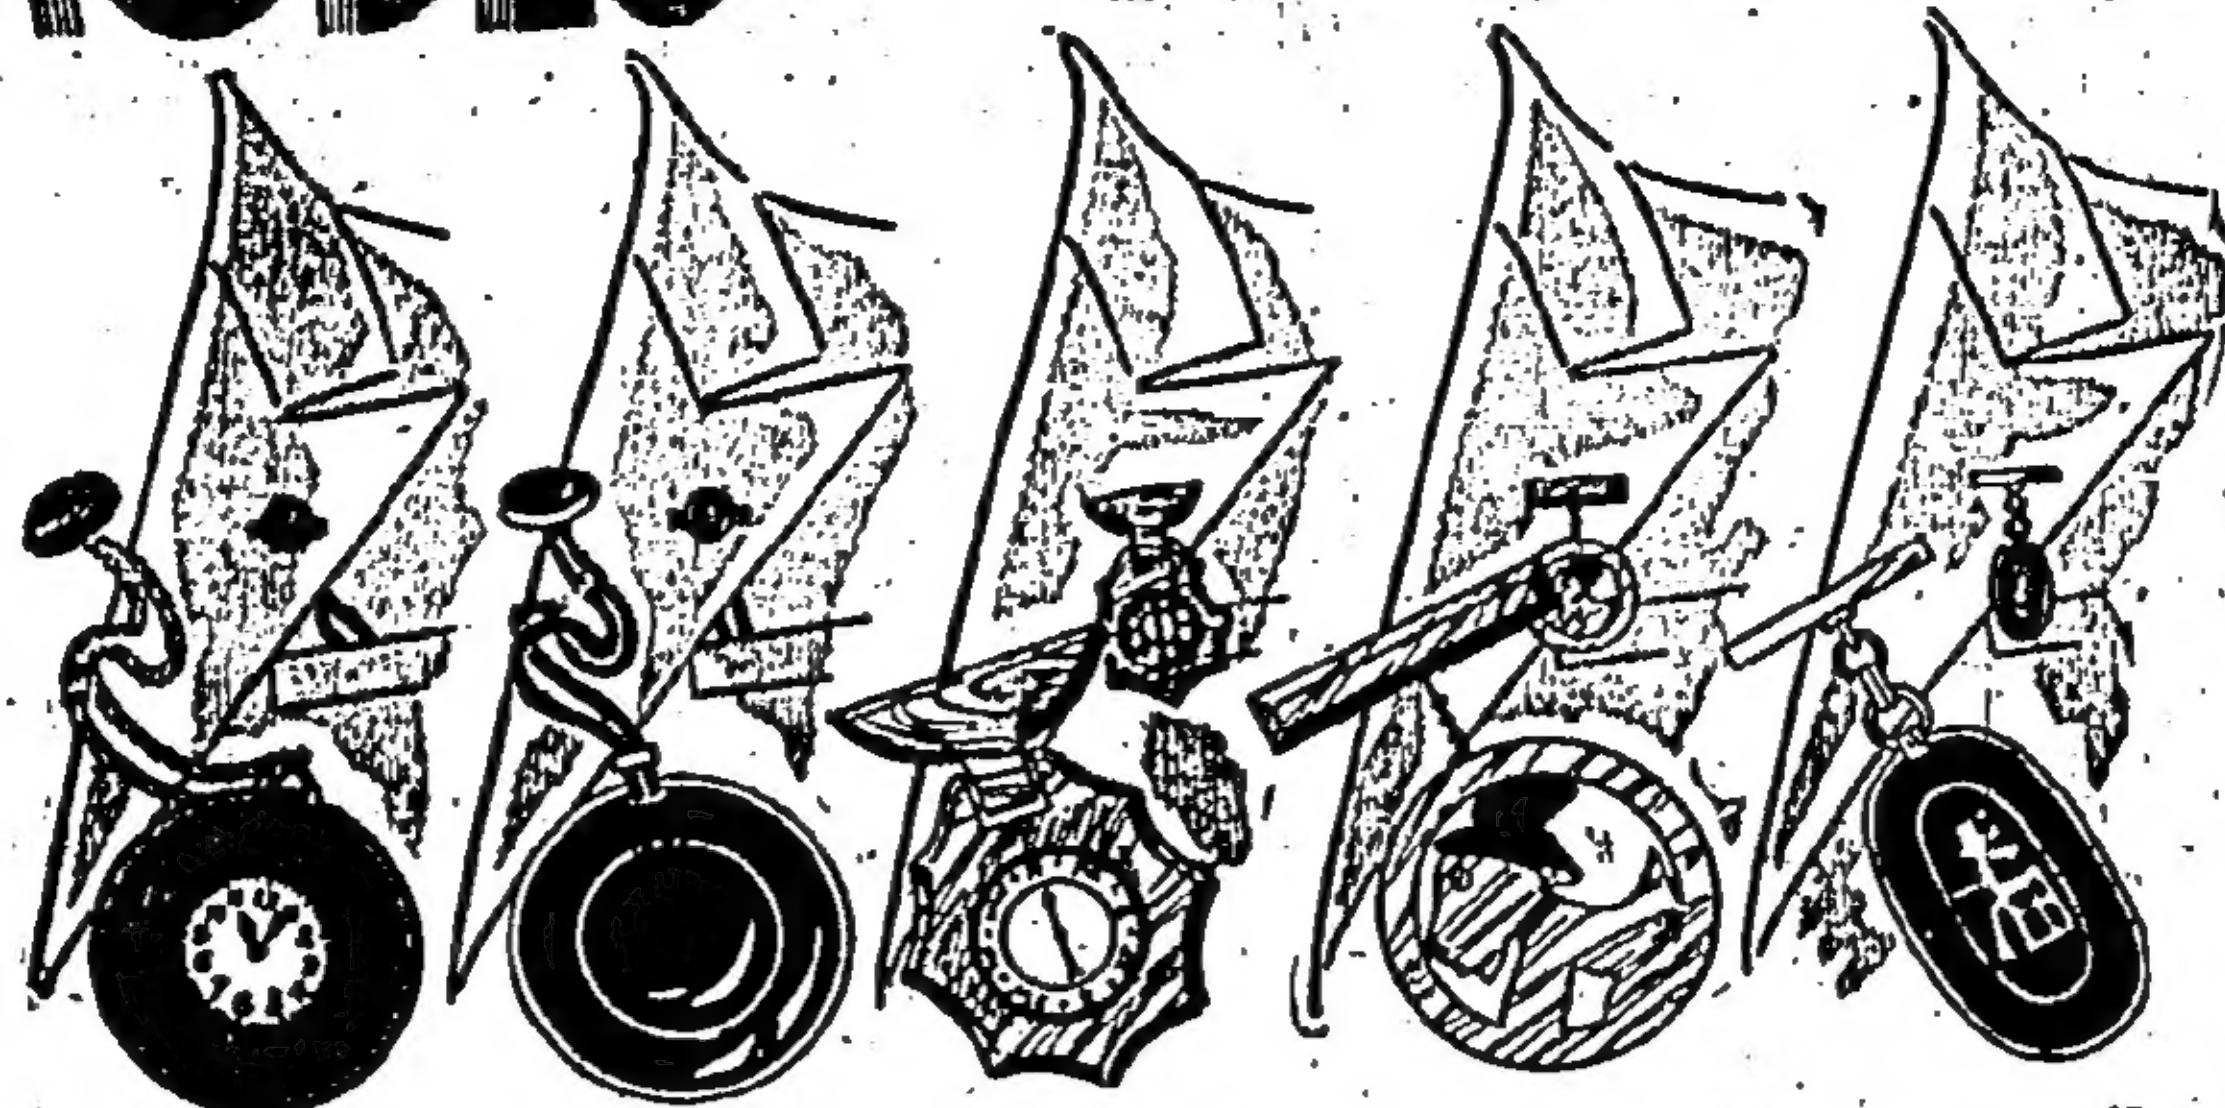

SUMMER LIPSTICK

THE state of the weather can have a lot to do with the colour of the cosmetics one chooses. It is claimed that lipstick should be a clear red to avoid appearing artificial under the bright sunshine. With this in mind, a lipstick has been created that has no blue in it. It is a clear, light, natural-looking shade. It comes in attractive casings with jewel-like tops of simulated carved jade. This case may match the embellishments of vanity cases, which have flowery or geometrical bas-relief designs fashioned of the same jade-like material.

LUCKY DOGS

WHILE lots of poor little dogs, through no fault of their own, have to depend on charity for their succour, like so many humans, other fortunate animals, because fate has treated them kindly, live in the lap of luxury. Like humans these, too, for they are fed and clothed and brushed and bathed and manicured and housed, without any regard for expense. When they are born they are tended like rich babies, and when they die they are mourned as dear friends.

Some of the world's most fortunate dogs find their way into Hollywood homes. Most of the film stars are great dog-fanciers, and nearly all of them have a dog, or several dogs, to keep them company when the conversation of their own kind drives them to an appreciation of the mute canine.

Merle Oberon is interested in Dalmatians. She has two handsomely spotted puppies, and when she feels like romping with them she dons shorts and shirt and enjoys herself like a child. Merle is one of the few stars who realise that a dog prefers to be a dog. She gives her pets kennels to sleep in—elaborate ones, certainly, complete with all doggy luxuries—but kennels, nevertheless.

Victor McLaglen's Irish wolf-hounds enjoy a natural existence, too. Perhaps these South Africans know best how to give a dog a good time. Lovers of open spaces themselves, they understand what effect cramped conditions might have on a puppy's mind.

Guarding The Stars

dogs. They have Great Danes and Alsatians—handsome animals on which the film colony puts no restrictions. Both Florence and Verree walk abroad frequently with their stately pets at their sides—the dogs with heads lifted high as if to tell the world "we are chosen to guard the stars." Perhaps they are basking in reflected glory, too, for members of their breeds have already distinguished themselves on the screen.

Terriers of all kinds seem to be first favourites in Hollywood. Claudette Colbert has a faithful "Scotty," and Luise Rainer purchased a little black Scotch pup as soon as she settled down in her foreign home. Edmund Lowe also has a partiality for little dogs, and his favourite is a shaggy-haired Australian terrier.

The lap dogs are not well represented in Hollywood, perhaps because there are few women with enough leisure there to give them the attention which they demand as their right. Ruby Keeler has a black Pomeranian, and Marian Marsh has a snow-white Pekingese.

No Pampered Poodles

French Poodles are definitely unpopular now, and none is owned by the more distinguished film people.

Rochelle Hudson has a fluffy pup at present, and she insists that it is going to be a Chow dog when it grows up. Now it looks like a little woolly bear that has come to life in a baby star's nursery.

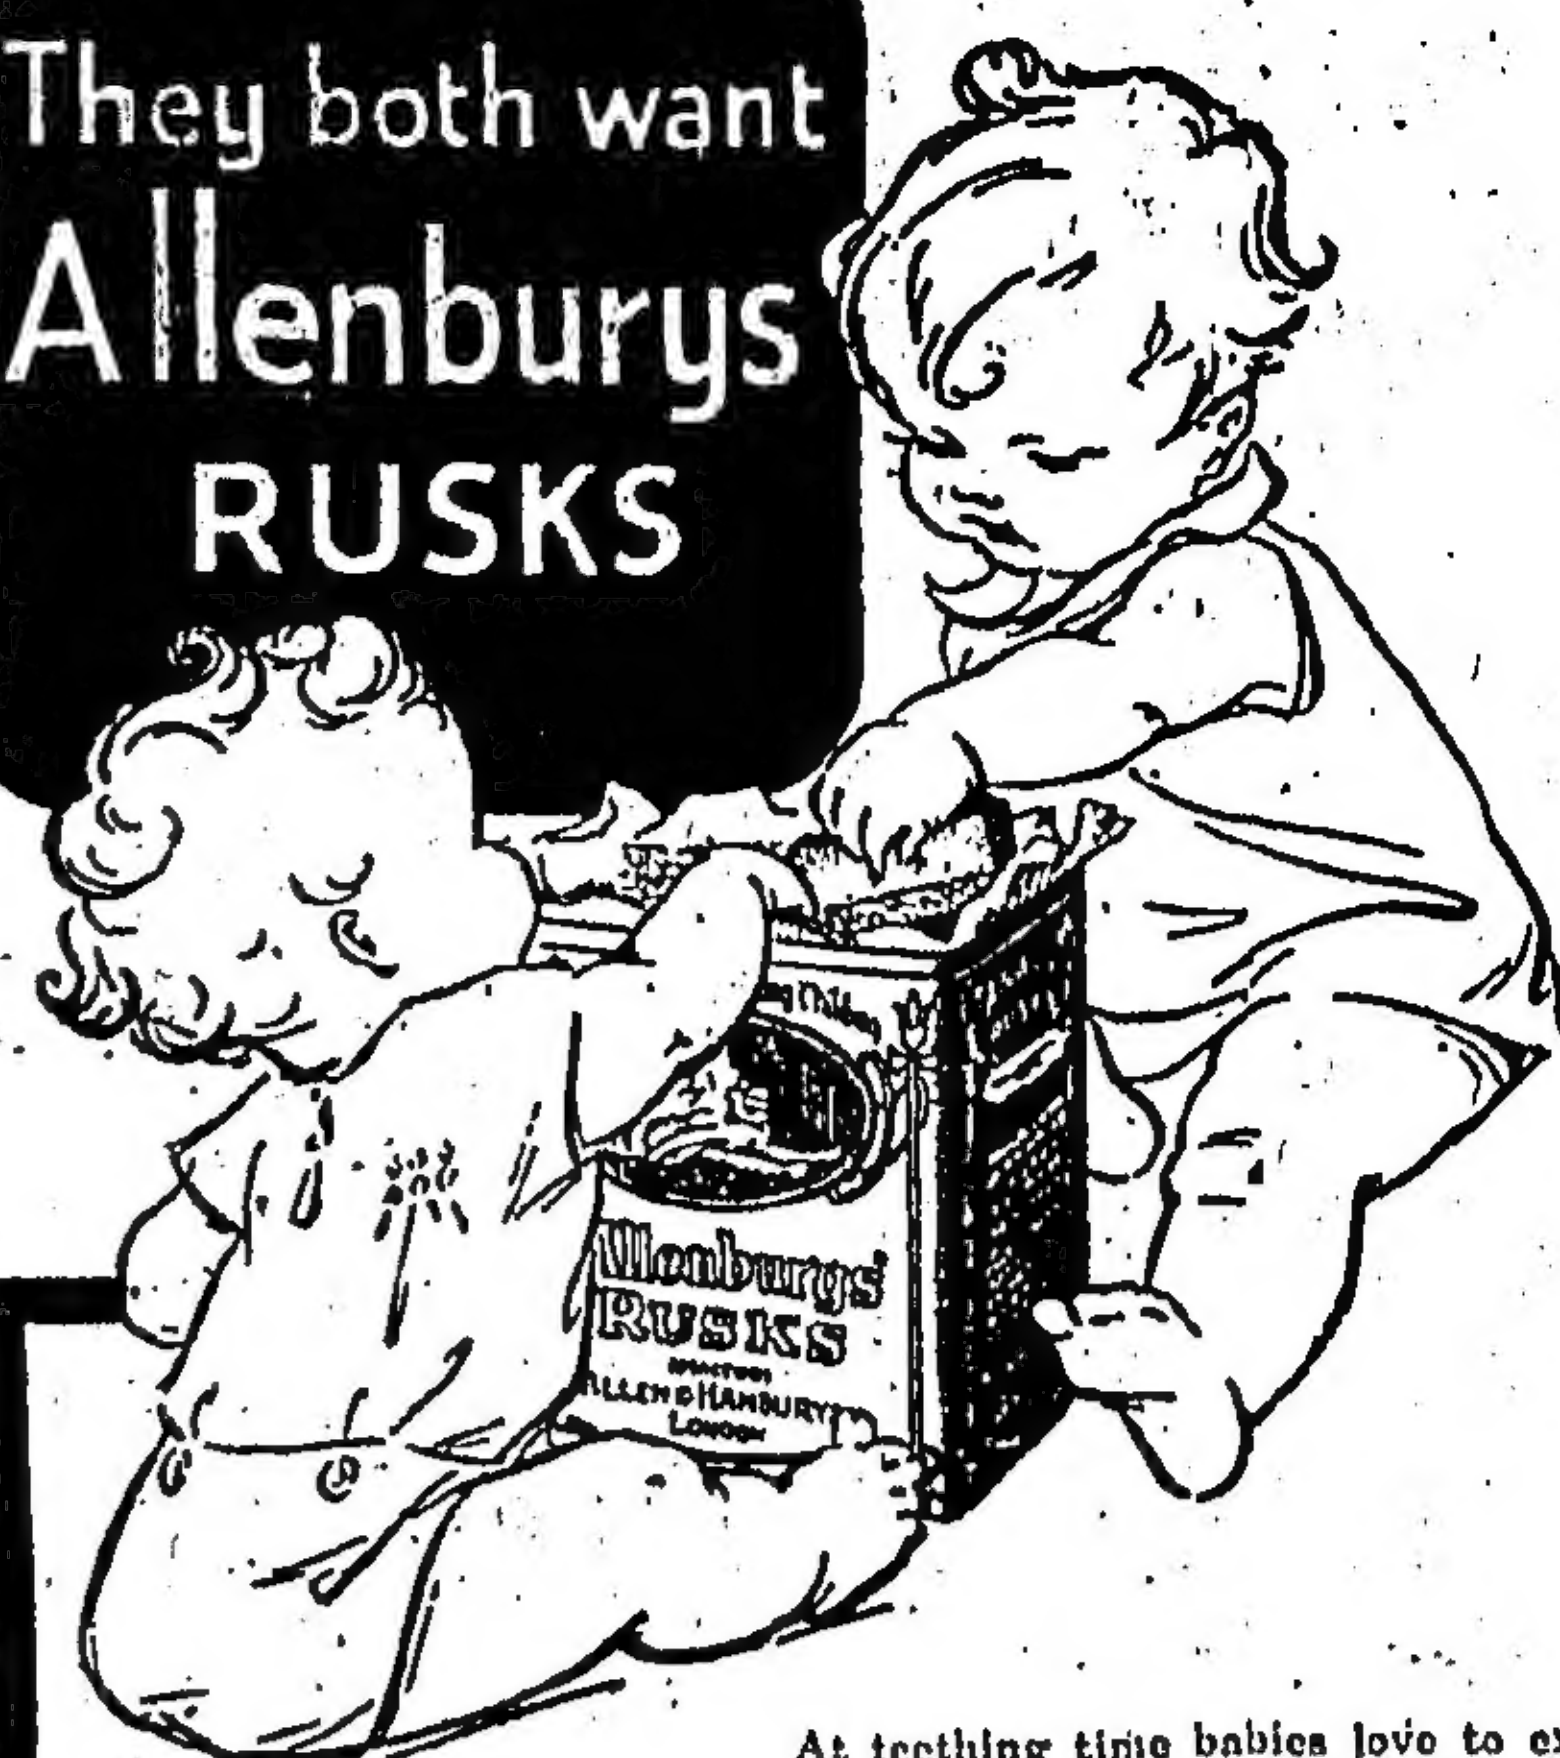

Of course, some of Hollywood's women go to extremes in order to manifest their affection for their pets, just as the women of Europe and England do. There is a shop in the fashionable shopping centre which caters only for dogs. There one may buy tailor-made coats for terriers. Of thick plaid, bound in pliable leather, these are priced at about $5 apiece. There are shoes to match!

NECKS are IMPORTANT Slendering Exercises

A GOOD exercise for the neck is to hold the head erect and bend it slowly, first to the right, touching the right shoulder, then to the left, touching the left shoulder. This acts directly on the muscles of the throat.

Skin food should always be applied with a view not only to nourishing the skin, but exercising the muscles as well.

Before applying it, place the fingers of both hands on the muscles just in front of the lobes of the ears—if you open your mouth wide you will find these easily.

Press firmly, then rotate a dozen times to the right and a dozen times to the left.

Since these muscles are the important ones upon which most of the structure of the face depends, this exercise is one of the finest things you can do for keeping the contours firm.

Another Exercise

ACTION: To tighten the muscles under the chin which, when they become relaxed, accumulate fat. In turn the fatty tissues cause the muscles to sag still more, so that in order to dislodge the fat the muscles must first be strengthened, which is the work of this exercise.

Method: While chewing a piece of gum, move the head slowly in a complete circle. The chewing, which may sound funny, is a necessary part of the exercise, you will feel the muscles under the chin coming into use. Gum is not essential, but it makes it easier to remember you must chew.

The circular motion which your head should describe must be complete—first forward, so that the chin rests on the collar-bone, then to the left shoulder, back as far as it will go, over to the right shoulder and round. Then reverse the direction.

Prescription: Not less than ten times each way every morning; and do chew hard, so that the teeth clench each time.

C.S.C.C. JUNIORS WIN AT LASTDUNCAN SUSTAINS FIRST DEFEAT*F. X. SILVA SAVES RECREIO

The season's third "possible" was recorded yesterday when H. F. Westlake Jr.'s Civil Service rink (C. Champelovier, A. Bower and H. Westlake Sr.) achieved the feat at the 18th end to secure a lead of 20-14 against N. M. Currie's Hong Kong Football Club "B" rink, who lost ultimately by 26-14. Other skips who have recorded an eight this season are A. Hyde-Lay (K.C.C.) and A. E. Carey (Police).

The Civil Service juniors recorded their first win of the season with a smashing success over the Football Club "B," winning by 43 shots after being well up on all rinks, while the Kowloon Cricket Club juniors sustained their second successive defeat when they bowed to their Kowloon Bowling Green Club neighbors.

C. G. Silva, last year's leading skip was again beaten, scoring on only eight heads against A. R. Minu's I.R.C. four, while R. Duncan lost his unbeaten record when he bowed to A. Hyde-Lay, of the K.C.C., by 3 shots.

H. G. Sherriff's four scored a seven, while R. R. Wood's rink chalked up two successive sizes.

BOWLS INCIDENT SITUATION CLARIFIED BY H.K.F.C. OFFICIAL

(To The Editor, "Sunday Herald")

Sir, — With reference to the findings and remarks relative to the lawn bowls game between Mr. A. Hyde Lay and Mr. F. J. Jones, will you please publish these few points which, in the circumstances, it is necessary should be made clear.

First I should like to point out that the meeting did not fully consider the most important evidence that should have been laid on the table, that is, a statement from the Hong Kong Football Club officials.

Now Sir, I will state what took place on the evening of the match. This statement was made in the hearing of Mr. R. P. Phillips, the Referee.

Instructions were given to the Chinese green-keeper to reserve the two rinks for Hong Kong championship players. Five rinks were laid out, as I was preserving one end of the green — we had a Club Singles championship game on No. 5 rink, a Hong Kong Rink championship game on No. 4 rink, a Club rink game on No. 3 rink, a Club pairs game on No. 2 rink and No. 1 rink was reserved for Mr. Jones and Mr. Hyde Lay.

The No. 1 rink on which the protest was made could hardly have been called an end rink as the tape was 11 feet from the side of the green, and before the play started I pointed out to them the fact that the rink was playing very straight on the one hand and had a perfect draw on the other.

After the trial head, I asked both players and the Referee: "If they wanted anything and, if so, to let me know. No question was asked and no protest was made until both players "packed up" on the 19th head.

I am at all times willing to do everything possible to assist and promote the game of Lawn Bowls, and my experience of greens warrants a little consideration.

Had the players in question raised their objection in the proper quarter, some method would have been adopted to overcome their prejudices to the rink in question.

J. RUSSELL, H.K.F.C. Bowls Convenor.

THE WEEK'S TENNIS

VITAL GAMES IN FOUR DIVISIONS

RECREIO'S BID
FOR HONOURS

Radio To Entertain
Craigengower

There is practically one good match in each division of the Lawn Tennis League in this coming week's programme of games.

On Tuesday the Recreio, who finished up last season second only to the C.R.C. in the premier League, will challenge the champions, and there is a likelihood that the winners of this encounter will carry off the title, despite a strong bid by the I.R.C.

On Wednesday, the C. R. C., favourites for the "B" Division title, will entertain the K.C.C., their strongest rivals, now that the Craigengower obstacle has been overcome. Should the Chinese field the same team as they did against C.C.C. the visitors will not have much chance of making a game of it, but it is highly probable that the C.R.C. will again call on "A" Division players. The Indians and K.C.C. (1) should provide an interesting encounter at Sookunpoo in the "C" Division, while the Radio, who are conceded a fair chance of winning "D" Division laurels, will be faced with stern opposition against Craigengower, who are also in the running for top honours.

BURTON v MATTHEWS IN GOLF FINAL GIANTS FALL BY WAYSIDE

The surprises which featured Thursday's play in the Yorkshire Evening News golf tournament continued to hold sway yesterday when Sid Easterbrook, Cox, and Reginald Whitcombe, all of whom are British Ryder Cup players, were beaten in the third or semi-final rounds.

The final, over 36 holes, will be played to-day between Richard Burton (Cheshire), a British Ryder Cup player, and A. G. Matthews, an unknown player from Rochampton.

BRITAIN LEADS WIGHTMAN CUP SUCCESSSES

EASY WIN FOR MISS ROUND

But Encounter Still Very Open

Wimbledon, Yesterday. Leading by 2 matches to 1, with four matches to be decided to-day, Great Britain have an excellent chance of ending the American sequence of five wins in the Wightman Cup series.

Inspired by Kay Stammers's display against Helen Jacobs, the leading U.S. player, Dorothy Round, former Wimbledon champion, swept through Mrs. Sarah Palfrey-Fabyan in straight sets to give Britain a 2-0 lead.

The Americans, however, won the first doubles match after dropping the second set.

Three Results

Results, as cabled by Router, were as follow:

Miss K. Stammers (Britain) beat

Miss H. Jacobs 12-10, 6-1.

Miss D. Round (Britain) beat Mrs.

S. Palfrey-Fabyan 6-3, 6-4.

Miss C. Babcock and Mrs. Van

Ryn (U.S.) beat Miss E. Dearman

and Miss N. Lyle 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

To-day Miss Stammers should beat Mrs. Palfrey-Fabyan, while Mary Hardwicke is conceded a good chance of beating Carolyn Babcock for the vital fourth win. The encounter is, however, very open and much will depend on the game between Dorothy Round and Helen Jacobs—the British girl won her Wimbledon crown from Miss Jacobs on the same court in 1934.

Miss Stammers, who beat Miss Jacobs last year in the Cup series, was led 3-0 and 4-2 in the first set yesterday, but then secured the lead at 5-4, when she missed two set points.

[Later results will be found on Page 208]

PROBLEM OF GIANT LINER

What Exactly Is The Queen Mary?

Commercial Proposition Or Just A Gamble?

A MID verbal gratulation and across the Atlantic entirely at the expense of the Treasury. Officials of the Cunard-White Star Company have constantly assured us that a ship of this size can only pay if she is one of two ships able to maintain a weekly service between Southampton and New York throughout the summer season. The economy depends on running the service with two ships.

The Queen Mary was originally conceived in the days of North Atlantic prosperity in 1929 and her construction was actually begun in the less prosperous days of December, 1930. Twelve months later the financial crisis supervened, and work on the great ship was abandoned. After long and elaborate negotiations the Government agreed to advance $4,500,000 to the newly-formed Cunard-White Star merger, and work was accordingly resumed in March, 1934. In September, 1934, the Queen Mary was named and launched amid general rejoicing.

As has been remarked, the skeleton at the feast is not a congenial part to play. But what exactly is the Queen Mary? Is she a business proposition, or a speculation, or an advertisement, or a speed-boat, or a means of curing unemployment, or merely a piece of national vanity?

That she is an engineering and technical marvel, with her 80,773 tons, 30 knots, and 1,018 feet over all length, nobody will deny. But she is not presumably to cross and to a congregation at the mosque of his sect. He seems of the breed of Viscount Castlerosse, a decoration fitted to adorn one of Lord Beaverbrook's famous parties.

But that is not the whole story. The Aga Khan, to the external observer, is no more than a playboy of the Western world. He is, however, something more. In a genial way, he is well read, with an astonishing fund of information. He has plenty of shrewdness. He is a bargainer in diplomatic negotiation with all the 'Oriental' genius for finesse. He can assume, at a bound, the habits of an Eastern sovereign who does not lightly brook disobedience. Had he given his mind to it, he has the talent to be a politician of not inconsiderable distinction. But he has preferred to approach the serious side of life interstitially. It is an interest he enjoys as an occasional relaxation.

His position is a curious one. His religious function brings him tribute from millions, and he is a very rich man. He has no territory, though he has been said to desire territory in India. In some degree, he is a keen Indian nationalist, though of the type that does not want undue emphasis upon the democratic side of nationalism. His religion he interprets in the broadminded way suitable to an experienced man of the world. He does not find it incompatible with enjoyment of the main discoveries of Western civilisation, so far as these adorn the life of a man of the world.

A genial cynicism of temper; an enormous appetite for life; a profound desire to show that he can do, and do well, all that the aristocratic children of this world can accomplish; a power to recollect, on great occasions, that he is, after all, something between a Pope and a Prince, with the title to a status that befits this mystery; these are his outstanding qualities.

As A Mohammedan . . . One does not quite see him as the embodiment of the fighting qualities of Mohammedanism. One doubts a little that his interest in the theological niceties of his creed is profound. He pursues his political adventures far more comfortably in London or Paris or Cannes than he could do in India. But he is content to prove that, not less than Leo X, one may have the obligations of a papal office, and yet find them compatible with enjoyment. He takes that to be the mark of a civilised man.

There are parts of India and Africa where his word is law; but there are parts of Lancashire and London where men wait not less eagerly for his pronouncements just before Derby Day. To have fused those varieties of experience into a unified personality is surely one of the notable achievements of our time.

Spiritual Head Of Indian Mohammedans

Aga Khan: Playboy Of The Western World

THE Mahatma apart, the Aga Khan is perhaps the best-known Indian in English-speaking countries, says The New Statesman. But though he was the chief Mohammedan figure in the Round Table Conference, though he has been the Indian delegate to the League of Nations Assembly, it is as none of these that he is known.

For the British public, the Aga Khan is one of the three or four most successful owners on the turf. He has won the Derby; and men follow his advice on racing matters with the solemnity that his own people give to his counsel in the religious field. His popularity is immense. For them, he ranks with Lord Derby and Lord Astor. Success at Epsom transcends all differences of race or colour or creed.

Typical Society Man

To the outside world, the Aga Khan is, above all, the typical figure of society whom one sees on the Riviera in the winter, in London in the season, and in the Tatler at all times. He is the fashionable man-about-town, as well known in Paris as in London, more fitted, to the outward eye, to a gathering at the Ritz Hotel than

CATASTROPHE!

HOW HONG KONG ESCAPED DESTRUCTION

(By Phyllis Juby)

THERE is an astonishing article in the May issue of the Scientific American by Henry Norris Russell, Chairman of the Department of Astronomy and Director of the Observatory at Princeton University. Unknown to any but those astronomers who scan the sky through their telescopes, a billion-ton minor planet recently passed closer to the earth than anything ever yet observed. Mr. Russell explains why the newly-discovered planet did not strike the earth, although its orbit intersects the orbit of the earth, and he assures us that the earth is safe for a long time to come. The history of its discovery is briefly this:

On the 12th of February this year the astronomer Delporte reported from the Belgian National Observatory at Uccle, near Brussels, the discovery of a planet in the constellation Leo which showed a most unusual motion—about eight or ten times the average rate for an asteroid. Later observation in American and European observatories permitted the computation of the orbit, which had been described as one of the most remarkable orbits known to astronomers thus far.

Figure 1, which is based on calculations by American astronomers, gives a clear idea of the situation. This is how Mr. Russell explains the meaning of the diagram. "The orbit passes very close to those of Venus, the earth, and Mars. In our diagram the earth's orbit is supposed to be exactly on the plane of the paper. The other orbits come up through it at the points marked by crosslines, and drop down again at the dotted crosslines shown on the opposite side. The closest approach to the earth's orbit is at the point marked A, where the planet's orbit lies above the earth's, but by only 1/60 of the distance between the earth and the sun—that is, no more than 1,500,000 miles.

"This is the closest possible approach between the earth and the new asteroid—and it actually happened, very nearly if not exactly, on February 7, last. When the planet was discovered, it was about eight million miles from us, and receding at the rate of a million miles per day. By the end of February it was 28 million miles away, and at the end of March it was 80 million miles from the earth and twice as far from the sun.

"On the other side of the sun, as the planet comes in, its approach to the earth's orbit is not so close—about 2,200,000 miles—but still very much nearer than any other planet ever comes.

"The approach to Venus' orbit, at the point marked B, is still closer—about 1,000,000 miles. The least distance from Mars is at C, and is slightly less."

Uneasiness.

Considering all circumstances (the speed of the earth, the period of the planet, which is 930 days, etc.) there is no likelihood that the planet can be observed at so close a distance again for another thousand years. The danger of a collision is still more remote. A change of only 1 1/4 degrees in the relative inclination of the planet's orbit to the earth's would bring a chance of actual collision. But that change would take about 10,000 years, and then,

The excitement subsides somewhat, but a more general feeling of relief is only brought by a communique stating that the planet can be expected to strike in Asia, with Hong Kong as the centre.

It is estimated that an area of a thousand miles' radius will be affected. The danger zone is mapped out as follows: The whole of South China, and as far north as Chengtu, Hung-chung, Tsinan and Tsingtao, a region that includes the cities of Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and Hankow. Then the island of Formosa, and to the south the greater part of the Philippine Islands. To the west, practically the whole of French Indo-China, the Eastern half of Siam and a small part of Burma.

THE universal feeling is that everything humanly possible should be done to evacuate that territory and at least save human lives. In fact, in many quarters it is definitely felt that it is imperative to make some organized effort, because it could be foreseen that hundreds of thousands of people would move of their own accord and an uncontrolled migration of such magnitude would hold grave dangers for the rest of the world.

Geneva's Task.

At the outset it was clear that this evacuation would meet with almost insurmountable difficulties, for the population of this area is over two hundred million. So, although people in Europe and America feel relieved, this problem is paramount in their minds; so much so that political controversies, national events, and even war threats simply drop out of the picture. At the request of the Governments whose territories are threatened, the League of Nations calls an emergency meeting. As a result of this meeting, numerous committees are formed, with the object of working out practicable plans for the evacuation. These committees are in session day and night.

The committee on transportation reports that according to Lloyd's Register there are 30,979 ships in the world with a tonnage of 64,885,972, and even if the greater part of these ships are to be at the committee's disposal, it would be impossible to transport more than twenty million people, at the utmost, to various parts of the world in the remaining fourteen months.

Therefore the committee in its tentative plan suggests that from the northern part of the threatened Chinese area, the population should be moved farther up 'north outside' the danger zone, and to Siberia. That would absorb about sixty to eighty million people. The other millions the committee proposed to transfer to Australia and South American countries like Colombia, Argentina and Brazil, these countries having vast and sparsely populated territories. Should it be necessary to find additional space the committee recommends also Mexico and Ethiopia.

To ensure that all will be moved from the danger zone in time, it proposes to make use of all available naval vessels and the aircraft of the world.

Finance.

Meanwhile the other committees are confronted with no smaller problems than that of the transportation. The two hundred million have to be fed and clothed during the period of transit and for some time after. So it is proposed to remove all artificial limitations imposed in many countries on the production of food supplies and industrial products, and provide measures that the agriculture and industry of the world should produce to full capacity. It is realized that as some of the countries will be troubling their population, it would be necessary to ensure adequate policing in these places to keep order; so it is proposed that the Great Powers should mobilize to form an international police force for that purpose.

The most formidable problem which cropped up, however, was in the finance committee: where was the money to come from? Finally it is decided that all nations of the world should contribute according to their ability and the countries directly involved should tax their well-to-do classes to the utmost.

At last, as a working plan is adopted and all arrangements completed, attention is turned to Hong Kong and Shanghai as the two main ports from where the majority of the people will embark.

As a first step, by the decision of the Home Government, the Hong Kong Government is granted special powers. At a momentous meeting of the Legislative Council a number of emergency measures are rushed through. Martial law is immediately declared. The Government assumes all control of food and other supplies. The army and naval forces stationed in the Colony receive orders to be in readiness. The Volunteer Defence Corps and the Police Reserve are mobilised. Labour Companies are formed to cope with the immense amount of work now necessary. As enormous food and other supplies will have to be stored in the Colony, temporary godowns are to be erected; also barracks in Kowloon and the New Territories to house the people pouring in from the interior.

Border Defences.

To avoid dangerous overcrowding of the Colony it is decided, at a subsequent meeting of the Legislative Council, that at least half of the present population of Hong Kong must be removed before admitting people from outside.

Immediately, therefore, a strong guard with artillery and armoured cars is sent to the border. Another Ordinance decrees that only a minimum number of clerks to cope with the necessary routine work are to be kept in Government offices; all other available Government employees must be detailed into emergency units to take care of the various tasks of evacuation. This same Ordinance applies also to private firms.

THE early preparations are scarcely completed, when advice is received that the first twenty boats to take on approximately 40,000 people are due to arrive in a few days' time. The problem of who should be the first to sail is made easier by the regulations of the League of Nations committee which decreed that the tradesmen and farmers should go on ahead to help prepare habitations and crops for the rest. One ship was reserved for the wives and children of Europeans who wished to return home. Under the supervision of the emergency units the embarkation proceeded smoothly.

But things were not going as well everywhere. Terrified masses from the interior of China, understanding little, and ignorant of the regulations of the Hong Kong and Canton Governments, were on the move towards the border.

There they came up against the military, who refused to let anybody pass. The first arrivals camped peacefully, but as their numbers increased they grew more impatient and aggressive, and one day they attempted to force their way. A company of the Hong Kong Volunteers stationed at this section fired into the air to frighten them. But, instead of retreating, they threw stones and even used firearms, so that the Volunteers were forced to fire into the crowd. There were casualties on both sides. Reinforcements were rushed to the border immediately.

On the following day another incident occurred in Kowloon, where a mass of people, arriving in some hundred junks, attempted to land and attacked the police who met them. There, also, were heavy casualties.

Executions.

While the removal of the people proceeded with constant friction, necessitating the whole population, drafted into the emergency units, to be in constant readiness, the Government made plans for the removal of the banks, archives, treasury, and all valuable movables. It was decided to send these things partly to the Straits and to India.

The months were passing in constant excitement; the men in the emergency units directing the evacuation were exhausted by the gigantic task which kept them on their feet day and night. It should be mentioned here that the Volunteers, Police, Reserves, and the various other emergency formations fulfilled their duties admirably. In Shanghai things did not go so well as they did here, and there were several major disturbances. Although crimes of all descriptions were committed in the Colony, there were some hundred executions in the first few weeks under the martial law, and these quickly brought the masses to their senses.

AND so finally the day arrived when the Army and Navy sailed for Australia, where they were to reinforce the police, and only a handful of men remained on the Island. After they had cut off the water supply, the electric current, and seen that nothing valuable which could be removed was left behind, they also departed and

Hong Kong was left—a ghost island. The town, perfectly void of human life, presented a most extraordinary aspect; the only sign of life was the rats, growing fat and increasing in number.

The Fatal Day.

It is impossible here to go into all the months following the evacuation; all the hardships encountered by the transplanted people, the diplomatic upsets caused by various incidents, sharp notes exchanged between Governments.

Finally the fatal day set by the scientists came—but passed quite uneventfully. On the following day some sceptics were inclined to believe it was all a false alarm, when, late in the afternoon, there were various atmospheric disturbances. Torrential rains and earthquakes were reported from many parts of the world. In Europe and North America a phenomenon very much like the Aurora Borealis was observed for four days.

After that the atmospheric conditions again became normal. Cables from Java, India and the Straits reported that aeroplanes flying over the threatened area could not observe a sign of the expected major disaster: there had been floods and in some parts the consequences of severe earthquakes could be seen.

Following these cables a statement was issued by the emergency committee of scientists to the effect that the planet had already passed over the earth without coming into contact with it, and it was already 18,000,000 miles away. There must have been some miscalculable deviation in its orbit. And now the earth is declared safe for the next 125,000 years to come.

We had better pass over the innumerable calamities, conflicts and international troubles arising from the efforts of the nations to return to normalcy and the "status quo." Just to mention one thing: the main body of the 20,000,000 Chinese transported to Ethiopia, after finding great possibilities there and not wishing to risk the hardships of another evacuation, refused to leave the country. Premier Mussolini was raging, but he was not in a position to undertake another war for the possession of that country.

Colony Seized.

At last the Civil Service of Hong Kong received instructions to return and prepare the Colony for resuming its normal life. The Government and its employees started their return voyage on six naval vessels which were to station here until further orders.

Approaching Hong Kong the officials beheld an amazing sight. The entrance to the harbour was blocked by a large number of warships flying the Japanese naval ensign. In the distance along the Fringe, the Kowloon wharf, and in the town itself they seemed to perceive signs of great activity. The Japanese boats had all their guns in readiness and, soon, a motorboat came alongside the British flagship bringing a note from the Japanese Admiral. "As the British Government has abandoned Hong Kong," the Japanese Imperial Government has taken possession thereof, and the Admiral regrets very much that at the moment landing of foreign nationals is prohibited by Imperial edict."

The rest I leave to your imagination.

Imagination.

Let your imagination run wild and end in your own account of the evacuation of Hong Kong.

THE Honourable Mr. N. L. Smith, B.A., will receive general congratulations on his appointment as Colonial Secretary. A list of his former appointments indicates that he will have very little that is new to pick up about the departments. That, of course, is the advantage of the Hong Kong system of transferability, which it would be very hard to match elsewhere even where there is nothing in the regulations to prevent it. In any service of considerable size, when times are bad, quite a lot of re-employment can be secured by just sitting still and taking advantage of normal wastage, which is naturally greatest amongst the senior officers. Creation of premature pensions is not an economy at all, though many economists overlook the fact. It is also quite a common experience that, contrary to what one might expect, retirements do not come in a regular average from year to year, but in bunches, due to the disappearance of "sick pensioners" and so on. One may also add a word of regret that Mr. Treatman's health presumably gives no indication of a sufficient recovery to warrant a continuation of his official career.

CHINESE AFFAIRS

It is very difficult to know at what point in our system suggestions get made with a reasonable chance of being looked upon as acceptable, but Mr. Smith's tenure of office as S.C.A. will have given him the required familiarity with local customs to judge whether there is anything that can be done with good effect to raise the general level of the status of women in Hong Kong. We are all rather tired of the concentration of attention on the mui-tai. There is no denying the intimate connection with the status of the recognised concubine. But the worst of these customs of money payments for the person of the female half of humanity is that they create a low status for the whole sex which sets the tone for their treatment in ordinary social relationships. They are looked upon as in some sort a chattel for which it is conceivable to make a bargain. It is not a question of an ancient Chinese relationship maintained by old-fashioned people. What about those residents who would be deeply offended if they were treated as anything but Europeans? A new W. T. Stead would have no trouble at all in collecting plenty of evidence for an appendix to his "Modern Babylon." European custom may be very well in its way, and Chinese custom in its own way too, but there does not seem to be any logic about allowing men to be European one day and Chinese the next.

THE CANTON WAR

How is any sane man to account for the recent outbreak of military movements in the "Kwang" Provinces? How will it affect us? We have a foretaste of the inevitable consequences in the collapse of the Canton dollar, which makes it almost impossible for the mainland purchaser to buy foreign goods, but the puzzle is to guess what idea is behind these intrigues and menaces. What advantage can the leaders hope to get? Both the Nanking troops, and even more the Japanese, have had quite a lot of training from qualified German instructors, which makes it certain that mere numbers are useless. Besides the enlistment of thousands of men, who will be requiring food and equipment, all of which costs money, there is no chance of success without a large and continuous supply of ammunition of at least as good quality as that at the disposal of the other people. How is that supply to be kept up as the distance from the base increases? Is that to be the first work of new Canton-Hankow Railway? The plan of profiteering out of one's own Treasury, and getting paid out of taxes paid by oneself, does not strike one as very sound. Yet it is certain that no large army nowadays can be properly supplied except with a railway, and a very competent commissariat. It is expected that Nanking will yield to a show of force, and will then proceed to fit out the new arrivals

WHAT IS GOD LIKE? PERSONALITY SHOWN IN CHARACTER

GOD SEEN IN PERFECT LIFE LIVED BY CHRIST

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

TRINITY Sunday raised the question of belief in God. We are told to-day that people want to know about Him. But what is it they want to know? When someone comes along and tells you that God is "the Absolute" or the "Ultimate Reality," or the "Infinite" or the "Eternal," or something of that sort, you probably feel inclined to say "Thank you for nothing. He may be all those things very adequately expressed, but the information is no earthly use to me." It is about as much good as Euclid's definition of a plane superficies. Such terms really tell you nothing because they try to tell you everything.

If you were to ask someone what sort of a fellow your neighbour Snooks is, and he replied that he is "a physical and psychical cosmic entity," you would have been told precisely nothing about him at all. What you want to be told is, what sort of a person he is to know; how he behaves; if he is mean or generous; if he is friendly or a snob; if he is to be trusted; and so forth.

In a word, what you want information about is his personal character. You are really not very much interested in anything else about him. If you are told that he is a director of half a dozen companies, and a large property owner, that also does not answer the question, which was "What is he like?"

What you want to know about him is what sort of a neighbour he is to live alongside of, to deal with, and with whom to have social relations. And it is the same with God. The one thing you really want to know about Him is: What sort of Person is He?

The Real Person
For a person's character is the one really important thing about him. He may be six feet three in height and have a face like a film star. On the other hand he may have a face that would almost stop a tram, but if you are thinking of establishing a friendship with him, these points about him are of quite secondary importance. His personal character is the thing that matters. In fact nothing else about him matters at all. If therefore, God wanted to make Himself known to us, this was the one thing about Him which wanted disclosing, His Character. And not only is this the only thing about Him that we really want to know, but it is also the greatest thing about Him. The richest, the most concrete and vivid thing that we know in this world is personality. The sun's light, the windy heavens, the overhanging hills, the illimitable seas, are all of them lower and lesser things than the personality of the least human being. And God's character is the greatest thing about God that there is to know. It is that which makes the Christian belief in the Incarnation at least credible. If God wanted to show us, not His omnipotence, nor His infinity, but His personal character, there was only one way in which He could do it. He must show us His character in the only terms in which it could possibly be intelligible to us, i.e., in terms of human character, in a human life, voice, face and form.

Character in Action
Moreover the only way in which we can readily get to know a person's character is through action on his part. Descriptions are not of much use. We must see his character displaying itself in actual deeds and actions and words. We really get to know what a man is like when we see what he does and how he speaks and thinks. Therefore, if we are to know with any degree of certainty what God is like, He must live a human life in front of us. Let a man live with you for but one day, and you will know more about him, and what he is like, than fifty pages of detailed description of his character could tell you. What we need is to see him "at it," to see him at work and at play, in his dealings with his fellow-men, encountering things like pain and loss—to see in fact, how he behaves. Then we know.

Is there anything to prove that the life which was lived before the eyes of men in Galilee was not the complete expression of the character of God? That life and character are the very highest, the very best that we know. That life is there in human history; a life actually lived; the life of the man who was known as Jesus of Nazareth. Even those who have doubted, or even denied, His Divinity have never doubted that His life was the one perfect thing the world has known. You can pick holes in the lives of even the world's greatest heroes, but His challenge still rings out across the ages, "Who can convict Me of sin?"

The Perfect Life

A modern writer has said of that life, "Even to-day there are only two things that can be believed about Christ by those who can see the facts at all: either He was God made man, or He was man made God."

The Christian Church has always believed the former; but if you take the latter alternative, then it raises the question not "Is Jesus as good as God?" but "Is God as good as Jesus?" Because, if He is not, then man is greater than his maker, and the stream has risen above its source. Moreover most of us would feel that if God is not as good as Christ, then He has no serious claim to our attention. He is negligible, for we could not give our allegiance to a God less good than that. So, if we are asking the question "What is God like?" surely it is only common sense to look around us, to see where we can find something (or Someone) which embodies to the utmost that we can conceive all spiritual beauty and grace and truth. Inevitably we are brought up against Jesus of Nazareth, and as we see in all its splendour the wonder of that perfect character, and realise that the character of God can be no less perfect, then we are bound to say, "Well, that is good enough for me."

PERFECT PROTECTION AT ALL SPEEDS WITH MOBIL OIL!

Zippering along at sixty-five means nothing to these charming examples of modern womanhood. They like speed and just as their driving is "capability" itself so is their choice of lubricating oil. They use Mobiloil because they know it protects their costly car engines at all speeds and under all driving conditions. It has that "extra margin of safety" that makes motoring a round of pleasure and not one long series of motoring worries and expenses. Moreover, with her natural flair for "buying well" the lady driver prefers Mobiloil because it lasts longer and gives her more for her money.

Chamberlain versus Eden

THE whole question of the revision of the constitution, procedure, and purpose of the League of Nations has come up for definite decision within the next few weeks is obvious to everyone. The extraordinary thing is that it has been postponed so long. On no major problem has there ever been so complete a lack of clear thinking. Even at Versailles there was no agreement between the men who envisaged a super-State using force, and the section who, following President Wilson, thought of a deliberative assembly whose decisions would be backed only by moral prestige, so far as the constituent States were concerned. This fundamental point was therefore left ambiguous; though the President might have been warned by the big fact in the history of his own country that a similar ambiguity led to the Civil War between Federals and Confederates.

Only the Labour Party has consistently argued for the enforcement of "collective security" at all costs, in place of the old national defence and exclusive alliance system, but what credit they might have gained for logic in this way has been tarnished by their refusal to recognise that the new system would greatly increase our responsibilities and the chances of war, and would therefore require steady preparation of armaments and a larger army reserve. Collective security, disarmament, and pacifism were all popular slogans, but absolutely inconsistent policies. For success they involved getting other people to do a good deal of our work—which other people are not at all inclined to do—and quite a lot of bluff. Signor Mussolini called the bluff, and that is why he is to-day celebrating triumphs while Mr. Baldwin is "bitterly humiliated."

The three slogans turned out to be very popular, and the 11,000,000 signatures to the "plebiscite," appended just before a general election, were considered by the Government to make it necessary to pull the disregarded Convention out of its obscurity and see what could be done about it. Mr. Lloyd George truly said a fortnight ago that the Opposition was defeated not by argument but by assent. Mr. Baldwin said that he made support of the League the basis of our foreign policy; what was really wanted was not anything so vague as support, but a definite statement of how the outstanding problems were to be solved, and next a definite agreement with France for co-operation. Sir John Simon was jettisoned for carrying out what had evidently been the Government policy up to that time, for he was transferred to another Secretaryship of State.

When it became clear that France would not agree to any non-military pressure that would be effective, but only to a flimsy pretence of a boycott, and that only after such delays as would make the whole plan a farce, there was another moment of indecision. Either effective measures or none at all. The "lowest common denominator" policy secured a maximum of loss, inconvenience and irritation, with no results at all. The only policy was drift, in hope that the Ethiopians would be able to make good. But the British Intelligence service is second to none, and it appears that it was realised that a breakdown was coming by the Government while the public was still being deluded by false news. Sir Samuel Hoare was therefore instructed to make the best terms he could to save the worst consequences of total defeat. An outcry from those who were not behind the scenes, and who had so recently voted for the defence of Abyssinia as a matter of principle, was inevitable. There was no attempt to resist it. Another Foreign Secretary was jettisoned for carrying out the policy of the Government. There was a temporary escape under cover of the popularity of Mr. Anthony Eden, a consistent advocate of the principle for which the constituencies had voted. But it will be noted that there is still no declaration of a decision on the big questions that are still open. This can hardly be postponed beyond the end of this month, when the League Council will meet.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain is the leader of the "Old Conservative" section of the Cabinet, (nearly half), and in the City the other day he declared that "the sanctions plan has been tried out and has failed." It has not been tried out simply because he and his friends have never believed in it, and M. Laval agreed with them. He declares that the policy of the "Young Conservatives," which Mr. Eden has consistently advocated, is "mildsummer madness." It is difficult to see how such divided counsels can be reconciled much longer. There is no more fence to sit on.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. H. R. STURT

This is the ninety-seventh of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyas, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Herbert Rothsay Sturt, F.I.A., Managing Director of China Underwriters, Ltd.

Mr. Sturt is a Londoner, having been born there on September 7, 1882. Educated privately, he elected for the career of an actuary and entered the chambers of Mr. T. G. Qualifying as a Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries in 1912, he took up the appointment, the following year, of Assistant Actuary to the China Mutual Assurance Co., Shanghai, later becoming Manager and Actuary, remaining with the Company until its absorption by the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

In 1923 Mr. Sturt came to Hong Kong as Life Manager of China Underwriters, Ltd., succeeding Mr. R. Farrant in his present post, as Managing Director, in 1925. THE NEXT WAR HOW SOON WILL YOU BE KILLED?

CIVILIAN HAS 50-50 CHANCE OF SURVIVAL

(By DEON HOFMEYER)

I HAVE gone to a little trouble lately to try to determine, chiefly as a matter of academic interest, in what circumstances I am most likely to be killed in the next war. The question is important in its implications, and it is also a difficult one, because of so many conflicting, and therefore dubious, opinions, expressed by statesmen, scientists, authors, pacifist societies or military experts.

"The military mind," wrote Marshal Foch, "always imagines that the next war will be on the same lines as the last. This has never been the case, and never will be."

The very first possibility I have to consider is that of being blown up in my own civilian bed not many days after the final exchange of ultimatums. To quote again from Foch: "The carrying power of the aeroplane is increasing... By the use of bombs... the centres of population situated in the rear, and whole regions inhabited by civilians, will be seriously threatened."

Civilians' Danger

That civilians will be more directly and mortally affected in the next war than in the last I think most people, including military minds, are agreed. Mechanical inventions have so lessened distances—both for projectiles and armed conveyances—that the civilian will indeed have to live far from the sphere of hostilities to remain quite untouched.

If I should be in London, Berlin, Paris or Rome, it may be a matter of only a few hours from a declaration of war before the aeroplanes are roaring overhead, walls toppling round me and poison gas penetrating everywhere.

Without calling up lurid pictures to inflame the imagination, the situation put bluntly seems to be that women and babies and defenceless workers in factories and offices must expect to some extent to be killed or mauled, bombed, gassed or starved. The question remaining really is, how many? What will be the extent?

Massed Bombing

The very worst that could happen from the civilian's point of view would be the successful massed bombing attack from the air.

It is supposed by some that such an air attack might be launched almost simultaneously with

FIVE YEARS AGO

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of June 14, 1931.)

At the first night fete of the Victoria Recreation Club, Portugal beat England by 5 goals to 3 in a water-polo match. C. Roza-Pereira (3), L. Roza-Pereira, W. Lawrence, for Portugal, and M. L. Ralston (3) for England were the goal-scorers.

W. E. Hollands, of the Public Works Department, completed 18 years' service in the Government. He joined the service on June 14, 1913.

His Excellency has appointed Mr. Roland Arthur Charles North to be Deputy Clerk of the Councils.

The bodies of Yau Tang-yau, ship's boy, and Chang Koo-yu, ship's carpenter, were removed to the Public Mortuary after the Empress of Canada reached Hong Kong. The deceased were stabbed when a Filipino, Graciano Bilas, ran amok on June 5 while the ship was at sea. The Filipino was sent to the Mental Hospital.

The biggest rink win in the Lawn League was achieved by U. M. Omar's four (W. T. Brightman, A. E. Coates and E. el Arculli), who beat Lapsley's rink (W. H. H. G. Craig, R. G. Craig, H. M. McTavish) by 33 shots to all.

a declaration of war by a heavily equipped opponent. Its object—whether in the early stages of hostilities or later—would be to destroy essential home centres of supply and organisation.

Penetrating and widespread, it would shatter the undisciplined civilians, both bodily and morally, and so disrupt national life that further resistance would be useless.

Whether large bombing and gassing attack on important cities could be so violently and instantaneously decisive, nobody can prove. But I notice that Captain Liddell-Hart foresees "the triumph of the machine in war," far, aeroplanes striking in the first hour, and throwing the entire machinery of mobilisation out of gear, and making of the next great war a great chaos." Captain Liddell-Hart has the reputation of being authoritative and iconoclastic in his military views, radical, but in no way seeking sensationalism.

Gas Attacks

In a report issued by the Red Cross Society in 1930—after investigations by military experts, chemists, psychologists, engineers and doctors—it was stated positively that women and children would be exposed to attack in the next war, and no part of a nation would be safe. The report concluded that "it must be admitted that the protection of civilians against gas warfare encounters great difficulties," and that "under the combined attack of gas, explosives and incendiary bombs the losses would become terrible."

"Militar-Wochenblatt," the leading German military publication, states on the authority of Lieut.-General Albrecht, that "the population of a large area may expect destruction at any moment. The next war will take the form of mass murder of the civilian population rather than a conflict between armies"; and Professor Langevin, director of the chemistry school of the College de France, believes "there are no means of protection against the explosive, incendiary and toxic bombs dropped from aeroplanes."

Evacuation of Cities?

Sir Samuel Hoare once said in the House of Commons that the striking power of the aero-chemical arm (all nations) between 1918 and 1928 had increased (it looks almost like a misprint) 1,500 times.

And if you want to be thoroughly dismayed, notice the report of General Joseph Duchene, of the Superior War Council of France, who on the conclusion of the 1934 manoeuvres stated that:

(1) It will be impossible to protect the civilian population in the next war;

(2) It will be useless and far too expensive to construct underground shelters for all civilians against air bombs and gas; and

(3) It would be best to evacuate the cities.

It is altogether the blackest side of the picture that I have so far considered, and another side, albeit somewhat grey, can be discussed before I need give myself up to the idea of being struck dead in my bedroom without having provoked a soul to attack me.

Contradictory Reports

For example, there is the question of the large-scale efficacy of poison gas, of which so much has been expected, one might say on which so much faith has been pinned; in the new pastime of aero-chemical warfare. There seems no saying with any truth or accuracy what great and secret developments may have resulted since 1918 with regard to this new and sinister weapon, and on no other topic are the experts more contradictory and wildly speculative.

ACCUMULATOR REVOLUTION!

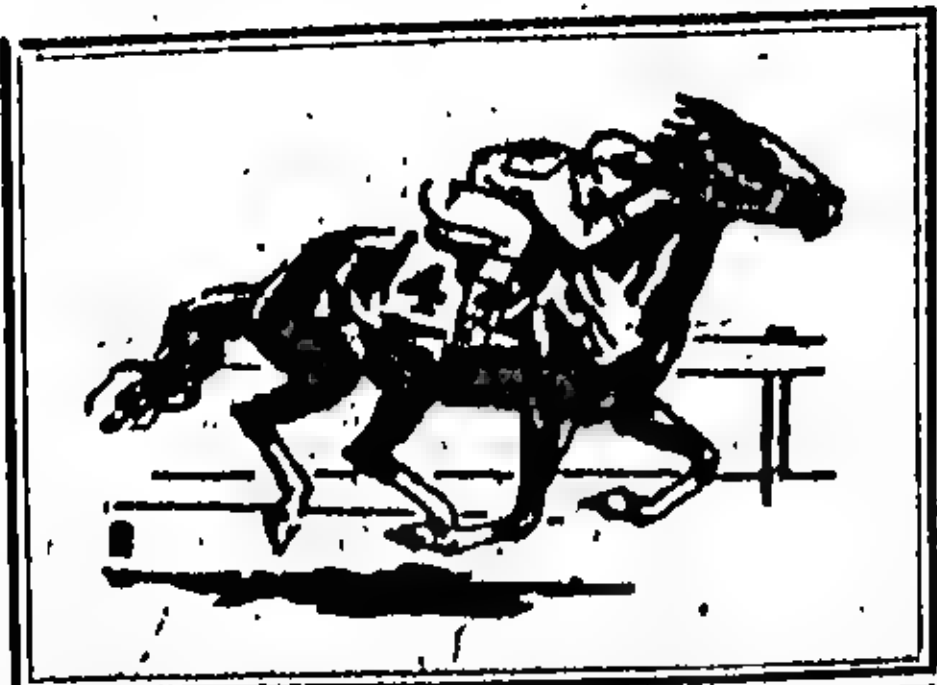

It has happened! For nearly fifty years, accumulator design has stood almost still. Now it has been changed at a stroke! The cumbersome glass box so familiar to you with its load of heavy "plates" is obsolete at last. In its place—a simple cylinder of lovely bakelite. Plate-less, almost unbreakable, and, in relation to size and weight, of almost double the ampere-hour capacity! Yet the cost is little more. Everywhere, in thousands and thousands, the new accumulator is taking the nuisance out of battery-operated wireless. Get a BLOCK accumulator to-day from

Mr. H. C. Pih, above, headed the list of jockeys for the first half of the season by recording 16 wins as against Mr. Black's 13.

Mr. Li-Lan Sang, owner of the Lan Stable, topped the list of winning owners, though he secured only third place in the list of stake-winners.

Mr. Leo Frost, above, champion jockey last year, recorded 11 wins at the Annual Meeting, easily leading the field, and then had to give up riding owing to an operation for appendicitis. He will be back in the saddle next September.

MR. PIH LEADS Better Last Year's Mark CHAMPION JOCKEY NOT FAR BEHIND

Mr. H. C. Pih, a former Shanghai rider, headed the jockeys' list for the first half of the Hong Kong Jockey Club season, with an advantage of three wins over Mr. Donald Black, last year's most improved rider.

Last year Mr. Pih finished up the season with 14 wins, 20 seconds, and 23 thirds.

It is significant that only three jockeys finished up ahead of Mr. Leo Frost, the champion jockey, despite the latter's enforced absence during all six Extra Meetings — a matter of 66 races!

The following is a complete record of every jockey at the Valley during the first half:

There were two dead-heats for third place and one race had only two starters.

Mr. L. Dunbar, above, leading owner of China ponies for many years, again headed the list of stake-winners, being the only one to top the $10,000 mark.

Mr. R. M. Wood, above, did not receive sufficiently good enough mounts to bring out the best in him. It was a great pity, as he showed splendid promise in the latter stages of last season.

Mr. Paul Botelho, above, was responsible for the second highest dividend, when he pushed Mr. Ulster's Shamrock into a dead-heat third place in the Tower Stakes to pay $164.50.

Mr. Gus da Roza, above, rode Mr. Dynasty's King's Warden to a new track record for China ponies over a mile and 171 yards.

MR. LEO FROST'S BAD LUCK

Sweeps Board Before Forced Out

All race-goers were genuinely sorry that Mr. Leo Frost, the champion jockey, was unable to ride at any of the Extra Meetings owing to an operation for appendicitis, and we are glad to be able to state that he will be back in the saddle again at the Seventh Extra Meeting on September 26. Below we give his figures for the Annual Meetings of 1935 and 1936:

	1	2	3	Un.
1935	14	8	2	24
1936	11	8	5	21

In both years he led all Northern jockeys by comfortable margins.

WEATHER AND THIRTEEN AT VARIANCE

Superstitious race-goers will blame the poor weather on the fact that the Jockey Club are having thirteen Extra Race Meetings this year, as against 14 last year, 13 in 1934, 15 in 1933 and 16 in 1932.

Hong Kong Jockey Club Maintain Best Tradition

WITH the completion of the Sixth Extra Race Meeting, which extended over two days, the first half of the local racing season was brought to a successful conclusion last Saturday.

Before reviewing the activities of the past few months I should like to preface my remarks by giving expression to a word of appreciation to the Officials of the Hong Kong Jockey Club for their untiring efforts in promoting the welfare of racing in the Colony. Clean and wholesome sport predominated throughout, and no greater tribute to the efficiency of the organisation is the fact that there was only one suspension for dangerous riding recorded, which, as compared with previous years, must be regarded with the utmost satisfaction. Improvements conducive to the comfort of the racing public were always given careful consideration—the innovation effected in connection with the announcement of dividends was a decided change for the better.

The next meeting will be held on September 26, and to most people the enforced absence from attendance at the Valley during the interval will be a source of disappointment, but I have no doubt that the majority of racing fans welcome the breathing space thus provided, especially with the advent of the really hot weather.

The weather, on the whole, was decidedly unkind. Deplorable conditions prevailed throughout the five days of the Annual Meeting. There was, however, a welcome change for the Second Extra Meeting, which was conducted under brilliant sunshine. The track was naturally on the fast side, and this materially enabled King's Warden (Mr. G. U. da Roza) to break the record for the 1 mile 171 yards distance, which was really a magnificent achievement, considering that it carried the maximum burden of 168 lbs.

The Jockeys

After the Annual Meeting, Mr. L. G. Frost, last year's champion jockey, stopped riding, and had to undergo an operation, from which, I am glad to say, he has almost fully recovered. His genial presence on the track was badly missed by his numerous admirers, and it is hoped that we may have the pleasure of seeing him again in the saddle at the commencement of the second half.

Mr. A. H. Potts, above, was responsible for the very fair starts that featured the first half of the season.

The absence of Mr. Frost, coupled with the accidents to Mr. Ralph and Mr. Davis, in addition to the suspension of Mr. Y. T. Fung, made the shortage of jockeys very acute, and owners were forced to call upon the services of novice riders in several important events.

Mr. W. H. S. Davis made a welcome reappearance at the Third Extra Race Meeting, and it is expected that Mr. Ralph, who has now fully recovered, will be able to follow suit during the second half.

This year's racing, however, has been remarkable for the improvement shown by novice jockeys. Mr. F. F. Li graduated after winning on Mayflower at the Second Extra Meeting, but he has as yet to score a win since his promotion. Evidently benefiting from superior mounts, Mr. Choy Wing Chiu also excelled himself, and although he has yet a long way to go to secure promotion, I have no doubt that his persistence will be rewarded before many months in the second half are over. Mr. Choy Wing Hay has been knocking at the door of promotion for some time past—he only requires another win to get out of the Novice Class. Mr. I. C. Harris, who has had considerable riding experience at home, made rapid strides and is now regarded as a jockey of no mean ability.

The Owners

Mr. Li Lan-sang headed the list of winning owners for the first half, and his coveted position was brought about to a great extent through Cossack's Beauty, which won three races at the Annual Meeting. This Chinese owner had 11 firsts, six seconds and 10 thirds, quite a creditable record in view of strong opposition from the other big stables, but it must be remembered that he had the biggest string of ponies competing in local racing. At the Annual Meeting he also had the benefit of Mr. T. L. Wong's experience, and subsequently Mr. S. Y. Liang carried on the good work.

Mr. L. Dunbar was second with 10 wins, 13 seconds, and 7 thirds, not so imposing a record when compared with the achievements of this stable in past seasons. In Liberty Bay Mr. Dunbar has an all-time champion and a pony which alone accounted for three wins at the Annual Meeting. Mr. Dunbar was rather unfortunate to be deprived of the services of Mr. L. G. Frost, the champion jockey, during the Extra Meetings, and his enforced absence was the source of keen disappointment to all. Mr. D. Black, however, proved himself a very able substitute, and Mr. Choy Wing Chiu also rode very promisingly for this stable.

DYNASTY'S EIGHT WINS

The Dynasty Stable had eight wins, nine seconds and three thirds. This stable possesses a powerful pony in King's Warden, which earned for itself the right to be regarded as second only to Liberty Bay, especially after its record-breaking run over the mile and 171 yards distance when carrying 168 lb. King's Lead, a griffin of this season, and a discard from the Kong Stable, very nearly created a sensation in the Derby, being only just "nosed" out by

Weather At Its Worst

Honeymoon Eve. Mr. F. Marshall, of Shanghai, met with fair success for this stable at the Annual Meeting, and since then Mr. G. U. da Roza has performed creditably.

EU TONG-SEN STABLE. Another Chinese owner in Mr. Eu Tong-sen also did well with nine firsts, four seconds and two thirds. Mr. C. Encarnacao was the first string jockey at the Annual Meeting, and since then Mr. Norman Deltz, with the assistance of Mr. Poy, have done yeoman service for this stable. This stable's major successes were recorded by Rose Evelyn, undoubtedly the champion of this year's subscription griffins, and which went through the Annual Meeting without being defeated.

Special mention must be made of Mr. J. F. Macgregor, the owner of Strathroy, which alone won three races and was second three times. Mr. V. M. Grayburn did not meet with any particular success at the Annual Meeting, but since then, with the assistance of Ythan (twice), Ribble (twice) and Snowy River, he did not do at all badly. The Kong Bros. Stable did not enjoy any success of a prominent nature, although Dawn Star provided this stable with four wins. The Eve Stable won the Hong Kong Derby for the second year in succession, for which they have every reason to be thankful for the masterly manner in which Mr. Needa handled Honeymoon Eve.

HARBARD'S DISAPPOINTMENT

The Harbard Stable had seven firsts, seven seconds and eight thirds, but should have done considerably better. In Royal Scot this stable had a pony which was confidently expected to win the Derby, but unfortunately the heavy state of the track proved a severe handicap. Royal Scot, however, later proved its real merits by winning the St. George's Plate by a comfortable margin.

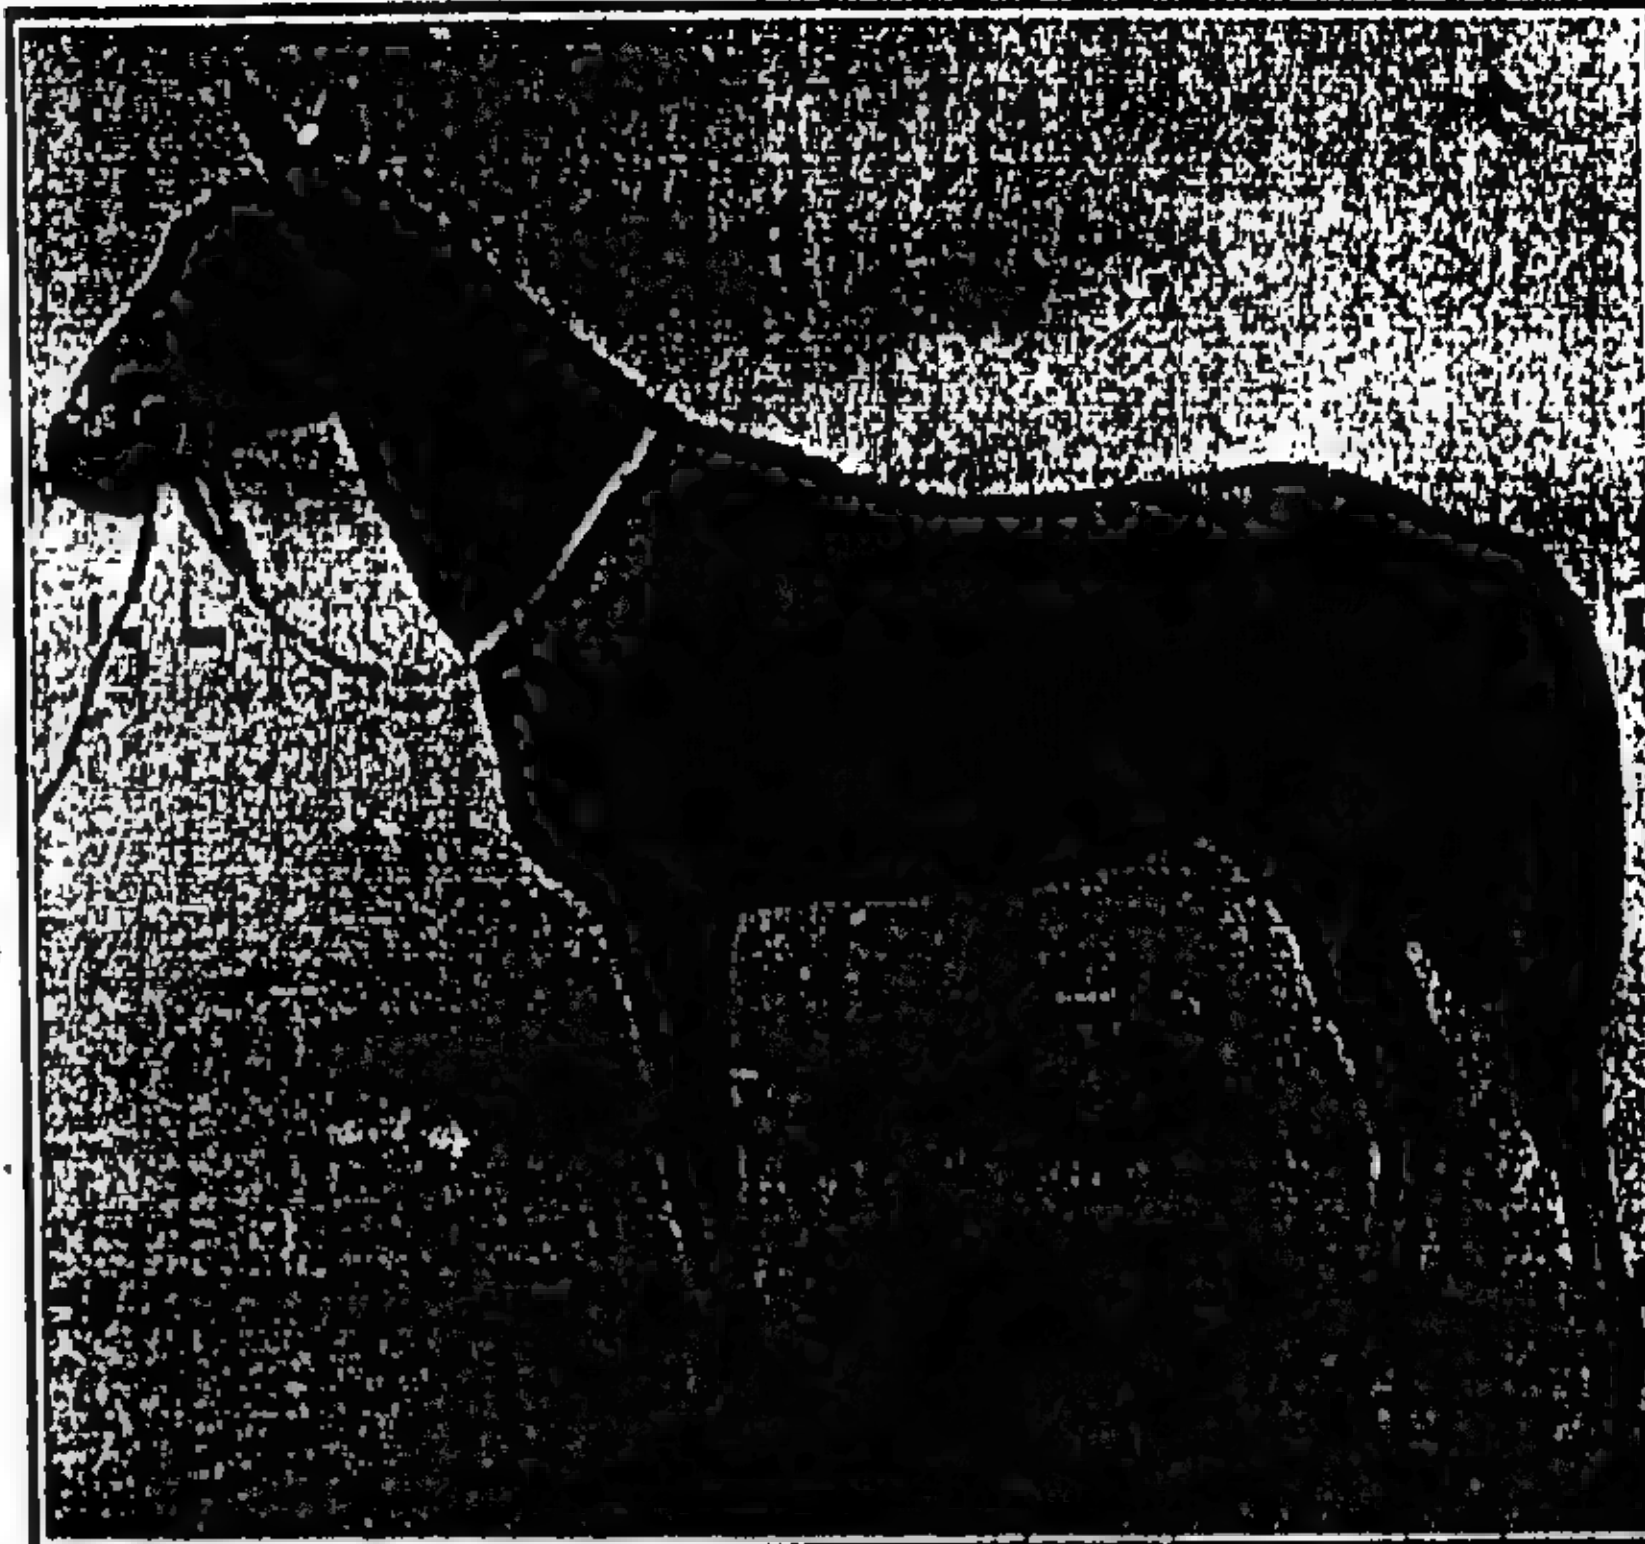

The Hem Stable had three firsts, five seconds and eight thirds. Under Mr. Harris, Herod, the 1935 Derby winner, paid a big dividend when it beat Soldier of Britain in the Shek-Pai Handicap over five furlongs.

The Why Stable enjoyed a very successful first half with six wins, six seconds and four thirds, while Mrs. Dunbar topped the list of lady owners with three wins and a second against Mrs. Tinson's two wins and two thirds.

The failure of Wadebridge and the absence of Trentbridge resulted in Mrs. Pearce being unusually low in the list.

Old-China Ponies

LIBERTY BAY. A review of past activities would not be complete without special reference being made to Liberty Bay, which is undoubtedly the outstanding griffin, and one which should reign supreme for many more years. Belonging to Mr. Dunbar, this pony has won every race in which it has taken part, and it is doubtful whether any other new pony will ever be capable of extending it. Liberty Bay won the Foochow Cup (Mr. Frost) over 1½ miles, the Challenge Cup (Mr. Frost) over 1¼ miles, and the Champion Stakes (Mr. Frost) over 1¼ miles during the Annual Meeting, and then provided Mr. Don Black with an easy win in the Easter Stakes (1 Mile) on the Second Day of the Easter Meeting.

Mrs. Dunbar's Bear Claw, above, was probably the finest looking pony in training. It was involved in the season's only mishap, when Mr. Black was unseated as the result of being badly crossed at the start of the High West Handicap at the Fourth Extra Race Meeting.

KING'S WARDEN. Undoubtedly the best in the Dynasty Stable, this pony has rightly earned the reputation of being second only to Liberty Bay. It has an imposing record of successes, the most outstanding of which was its brilliant victory in the Mils Bay Handicap (1 mile and 171 yards) at the Second Extra Meeting. Carrying the colossal burden of 168 lbs., it broke the record for this distance when it beat Diana Bay by a short head after one of the most thrilling finishes witnessed for a long time. Mr. G. U. da Roza was the jockey and he was deservedly applauded on accomplishing a really magnificent achievement. King's Warden won the New Stables Plate (1 Mile and 171 Yards) on the first day of the Annual Meeting with Mr. Marshall on top, and the same combination accounted for the Exchange Plate (1¼ Miles) on the third day.

DIANA BAY. A champion of former days, Diana Bay did not make an appearance during the Annual Racing Carnival, the inclement weather no doubt being responsible for its absence. In the Mils Bay Handicap (1 Mile and 171 yards), at the Second Extra Meeting, it was beaten by a short head by King's Warden, but keen observers believed that Mr. Black paid the penalty of a belated challenge—had there been another few lengths more to go Diana Bay would probably have won. However, Mr. Black made up for it by his masterly handling of Diana Bay in the Mount Parker Handicap (1¼ Miles) at the Fourth Extra Meeting. On this occasion he kept Diana Bay well in front of King's Warden and won fairly easily, although it must be admitted that King's Warden was again carrying 168 lbs.

COSSACK'S BEAUTY. This pony provided the Lan Stable with three wins during the Annual Meeting, when it relished running on a muddy track. It carried off the Old Course Plate (1¼ Miles), the Peking Plate (1¼ Miles), and ended up by enabling Mr. Wong to win the Ladies' Purse (Once Round).

HEROD. Beyond winning the Consolation Stakes, the Derby winner of 1935 did not meet with any success of particular merit during the Annual Meeting. However, with Mr. Harris reaping the benefit of 5 lbs. allowance, it accounted for the Shek-Pai Handicap (Five Furlongs) at the Third Extra Meeting and paid the handsome dividend of $100.80 for a win.

GLADIATOR. This pony made four appearances during the Annual Meeting, placed three times, and, with Mr. Frost on top, won the Victoria Stakes (1 Mile) on the second day. It, however, did not meet with any particular success during the Extra Meetings. SOLDIER OF BRITAIN. After winning the China Stakes (Mr. D. S. Li) over five furlongs on the first day of the Annual Meeting, this pony was confidently expected to carry off the Shek-Pai Handicap over a similar distance at the Third Extra Meeting, but it failed unaccountably. Mr. Pih was the jockey on this occasion, and it was indeed a sorry spectacle to see Soldier of Britain coming in last! This pony has since been a source of disappointment to its numerous admirers.

MACARONI. This big-hearted pony, whose reported blindness has been deplored by followers of the turf, has been placed in practically all its outings. It won the "All Out" Stakes (Six Furlongs) at the First Extra Meeting, but was later disqualified for bumping and boring, which resulted in Mr. Y. T. Fung being suspended for the remaining meetings of the first half of the season.

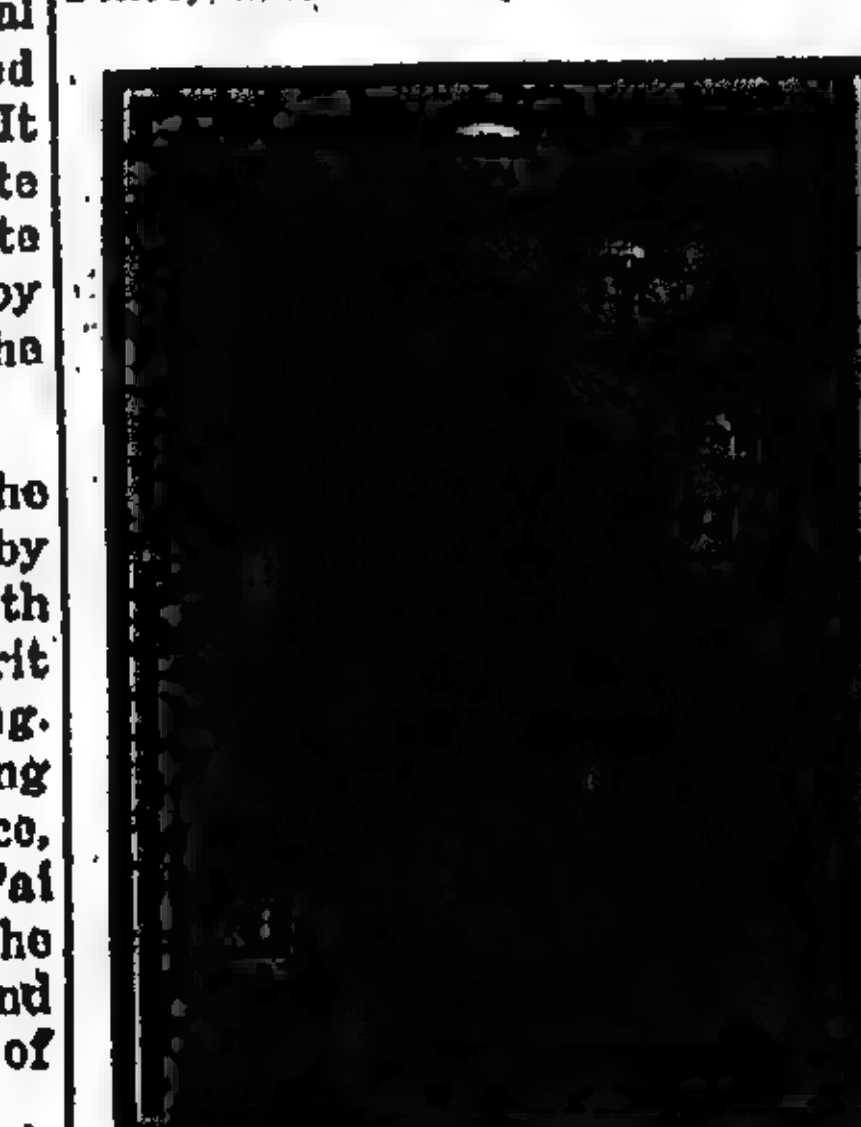

BY THE

The ponies I have mentioned are unquestionably among the best of the old China Griffins. Reference must, however, be made to the fact that Mayflower enabled Mr. F. F. Li to graduate from the Novice Class, and was also responsible for Mr. C. F. Chiu winning the first race of his career.

YTHAN. A pony that had repeatedly suffered defeat by the narrowest margin, Ythan came into its own when it recorded its first win in the Tai Mo Shan Handicap on May 2. Mr. P. P. Botelho was on top. That this win was no fluke was revealed when, showing its true form, it carried off the Pei-Ho Handicap at the Fifth Extra Meeting. Carrying 168 lbs., and again ridden by Mr. Botelho, it was indeed a grand achievement and it fully deserved its promotion to "C" Class.

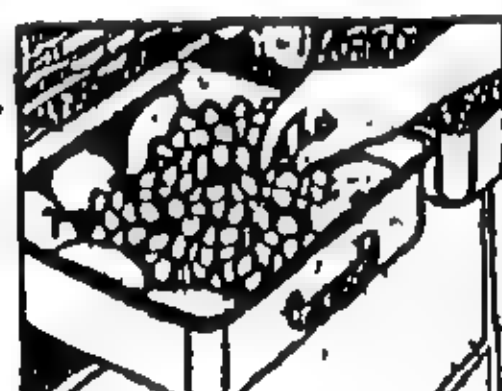

New Griffins

HONEYMOON EVE. Pride of place among the new Griffins must be given to Honeymoon Eve by virtue of the fact that it won the Derby. A pointer for the classic was provided in the Trial Plate, when Honeymoon Eve (Mr.

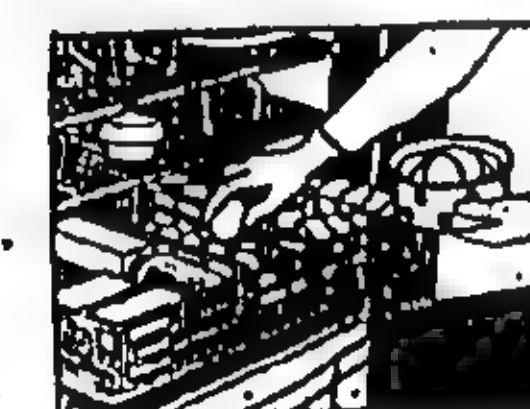

Mr. Norman Deltz, above, has, since the start of one period by an injured hand, was the only jockey to record four wins in an afternoon—at the Second Extra Meeting.

HERE and THERE

WHEN one has to take a number of carbon copies of anything the last copy is usually somewhat "woolly." But it gets even worse if it has to be kept for any length of time bound up with a bundle of other papers. The tendency is for slight friction to cause smudging. This, however, can be avoided, though only by a process the delicacy of which is hardly warranted if the "carbon" are not particularly important and do not have to be kept a long time.

Place the carbon copy on a flat, heat-conducting surface. Then, with a bunsen burner with a long flame, rapidly warm the typing, or whatever it is. This melts the very thin coloured wax of which the letters consist (the carbon "face" being only coloured wax), and it runs into the very fibre of the paper and "stays put" when it sets.

Divorces in Britain

During 1913 only 557 divorces were issued in England and Wales combined; for the first three law terms of 1935 the figure stood at 2,800 for the County of London alone.

Potato Alcohol

THE potato is now forecast as a new source of fuel for motor cars when the present natural resources have been exhausted because of unceasing use.

Mr. Guy N. Porter, a potato planter of Andover, Canada, advises that States without sufficient oil resources legislate that one-tenth of their motor fuel be made of alcohol produced from potatoes. In Germany, 98 per cent. of the motor oil being used at present contains this 10 per cent. of alcohol fixed by law. If such a measure were passed the potato consumption, according to Produce News, would be raised to 1,000,883 bushels annually, a crop five times as large as that put out in 1935. These potatoes would be required for alcohol production alone. Other equally remunerative industrial uses also may be found for the humble "spud."

Seats in Parks

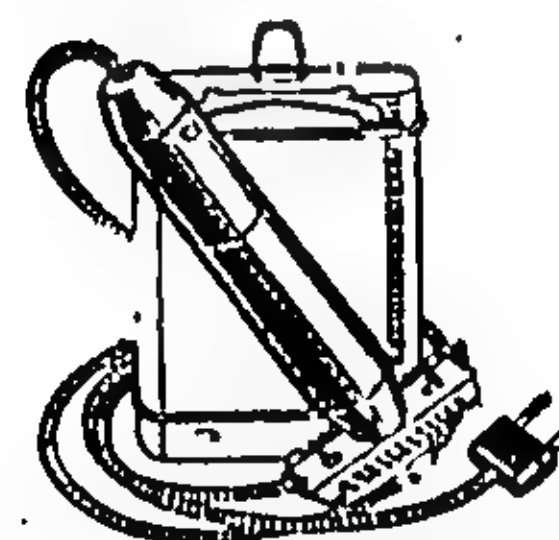

The Royal Parks of London provide a total of 160,000 chairs to the public on payment of a twopenny fee, in addition to the numerous free park benches.

SCIENCE MAKES POSSIBLE this marvellous razor!

When you have shaved with a "SIRAMA" just run your hand over your face! Ordinary razors cut the beard, the "SIRAMA" shears the beard; and there is a world of difference between the two actions; a difference so appreciated by men with tender skins and tough beards and by those who realise the importance of being perfectly shaved. The "Sirama" shears off the beard without pulling or tugging, off comes the hair just "once over" and you have had the finest, smoothest and easiest of shaves.

A tiny electric motor operated by a small battery, which lasts for months, makes the blade oscillate, this action shears off the beard independent of any pulling motion; constructed on the safety razor principle, using ordinary double edged blades.

With a "Sirama" you get a perfect shave.

Mainly about WOMEN

TWO animals lay on the front lawn in the sun—a stocky Scottish terrier, short of leg and aquat of body, and a small, fluffy cat, who was engaged in stalking crickets.

The Scotty, who had been watching her with interest, approached her at last and began to investigate the crickets, too. The cat arched her back and the fur on it began to rise; but Scotty, unmindful of these symptoms of resentment, thrust his nose into a clump of grass concealing one of the insects. The cat arched her back still higher and made a spitting sound. Scotty, surprised and somewhat indignant, growled low and threateningly.

Swift as lightning the fluffy paw shot forward, the claws were unsheathed in a flash and two spots of crimson appeared on the dog's nose. He sprang toward the cat, but she, with all the speed and grace of her race, was out of his reach.

"Poor Little Cat"

"Sandy!" thundered the dog's master, who had witnessed the drama. "Come here! Don't you touch that poor little cat! With those jaws you could grab her and break her back."

As if he would ever get the chance, I mused. The "poor little cat" would blind him with her claws before he managed to get his jaws together.

Anyway Scotty had learnt his lesson. He had learned that if he had a disagreement with a bit of downy fluff he would see those claws, usually hidden in cushions of flesh and fur. And, were he to inflict a wound on the cunning little cat, he would be chastised by its owner. Masculine masculinity dare not be brutal enough to fight pliant femininity.

One reason why men are afraid of women!

"Don't you think," I ventured to a woman of more experience, "that women are sometimes cat-like in their tactics?"

Swift as a flash came the answer. "I certainly think the women of your generation are."

Grace was given me to hold my peace and not show her she had proved my point. Or, perhaps, like so many men, I was a bit afraid.

Dread Of Scenes

All men dread rows or scenes with women. And with good reason. How typical is such an incident as this: A man gets into a bus and accidentally treads upon the foot of a woman.

"Look out, can't you!" she exclaims, her face distorted by pain and anger. "You stepped right on my foot."

"I—I—beg your pardon!" the young man stammers, flushing crimson. "I did not see where I was stepping."

"Well, another time look where you are stepping!" she commands. And the other men passengers—they try so hard not to look sympathetic with their brother offender, and they eye the woman with ill-concealed timidity mingled with animosity. Yet, even in these days of 'equality' of the sexes, should a man speak to a woman in that way, what voice and silent evidences of indignation there would be!

It seems men are still trained to consider the fairer sex as having most of humanity's virtue and meekness. And really, there is something more basic in man's fear of woman than just the dread of a row or a quarrel.

Ideal Of Virtue

One wonders that women have not grown weary of living up to an ideal of virtue. If they have, they have never admitted it. Whether or not they have played their part well, they certainly have played it hard; until, in some foggy and subtle way, woman has, to the male, become identified with the voice of Deity, and is to be feared accordingly.

And men are such funny creatures. They bluster about what they will or will not do, and then do the other thing. Hear the man who declares robustly that he is master of his own house—you may be sure he is not. It sometimes seems that, the more afraid he is, the less he admits it. Yet the man who has his own way in most things will tell you that he submits entirely to his wife!

"They are enemies," you say? "Do not try to reconcile them or life will stop." But let us admit at least that on the day when the sheep and the goats are separated, it will not be a case of separation of the sexes. — PHILIPPA.

About TOWN

EVERY now and then some incident happens in Hong Kong that reminds us what a completely non-political community we are. Bishop Hall reproached our Press with the fact that Chinese politics were less frequently mentioned than by the Shanghai papers. Very probably that is true, but is it not also natural? The International Settlement and the French Concession are only portions of larger Shanghai, and the changes of policy at Nanking have a much more direct interest there than to us. It is also much more possible to have personal contact with the leaders as they pass through on business or in course of retirement to practise calligraphy.

English Politics

IT must also be remembered that as we are a Crown Colony, our real capital is London, and one never knows how closely the party manoeuvres in Parliament may affect us. There is also the link with Foreign Affairs involved in the fact that we are a Crown Colony, and may be called upon at any time to share the dangers of a failure just as we may at any time profit by the success of British diplomacy. It must also be admitted that Home politics are much more readily studied and understood than the maze of rumours and contradictions that shroud such a subject as the recent movements of the Kiangsi troops on the Hunan border. But if we are going to play the part of a British Colony politically, we might as well keep more or less up to date. One of the features of English political life to-day is that it is quite taken for granted that women have a right to take an interest in public affairs, and that if they have the necessary time and capacity it is just as much their duty to do so as it is for a man. The old idea that government is a matter of mysterious arcana for which only a few are fitted has been blown sky-high by the realisation that five-sixths of the work of administration are concerned with quite ordinary affairs—or at least ought to be—and that the experts have in the last 20 years made such a mess of the remaining sixth that it is hardly conceivable that other people of even a low grade of common sense could have done worse. It is therefore a reversion to the attitude of a generation ago that Dr. Kotewall's suggestion that we might have a woman on the Legislative Council was received with a cry of "No," and laughter. Why not? Are we in Hong Kong still at the pre-war stage of trembling lest the ordeal of standing for election should in some way compromise the female charm and delicacy which used to be so carefully protected—theoretically? It is not only that, as newspaper correspondence indicates, the status of mui-tsai, concubine, singing girl, arouses deep feeling that usually finds no expression. There is not one of the municipal functions that does not affect a housewife's daily life more closely than her husband's. And there would not in Hong Kong be any more of the supposedly demoralising contact with political life than is involved in accepting a nomination or being decorously elected in the same way as, for instance, the representative of the Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Picton-Turbervill

THE address given by Miss Picton-Turbervill to the Rotary Club was excellent in its realism and moderation. It gave a very accurate notion of the reaction that followed the excitement of the suffragette campaign, as of many another campaign that has ended in sending a new type of Member into Parliament. It does happen now and then that there is an effective speech; it does happen that there is a dramatic division that makes history. But almost all effective legislation is a question of details and drafting, which is usually done in committee and, to be quite frank, only those who have some hidden well of enthusiasm to bear them up can resist the boredom of the routine work. It is rare indeed that any man or woman can carry much weight in deciding votes except after a long period of hard work in the transaction of humdrum business that would be better repaid in almost any other calling.

Of the 14 women who work with the 600 men in the Palace of Westminster, how many are known by name to the outside public? The truth is—and it is one of those contretemps that will insist on defying prophecy in the hurly-burly of politics—all the idealistic enthusiasms of the visionaries, all the fervour of the Pankhurst pioneers was killed by the fact that the first woman to be elected was Lady Astor. An American, the wife of a millionaire, fond of back-chat but without wit or humour, she could not fill the part that the first woman legislator was expected to play. Subsequent Members, even including Margaret Bondfield and the Duchess of Atholl, who held Ministerial office, have done useful work without arousing any great interest or rising above the average of ability. The Duchess at any rate carried on the tradition of the Ramsay family, which has provided the Universities and the Church with so many professors and dignitaries.

Our Own Case

NO suggestion is of much practical use unless it is definite, and the point is to think what service could a woman perform in Hong Kong? Mere nomination would have several drawbacks. What then would be the electing constituency? I suggest that it should be formed of the committees of the various charities that receive a Government grant. There is no need to give a list. They are all well known, and their activities cover a very large field of social life wherein our peculiar circumstances make it difficult for officials to intervene. As public money is already voted, it would seem reasonable to try any method that has promise of making it as effective for the common good as possible. Such a woman representative would naturally become the medium of new ideas cropping up in the course of the work of the various societies.

Noel Hammond Seeks Laurels
NOEL HAMMOND, the Shanghai and Interport 100 Yards Free Style champion, is reported to have left Shanghai for England via Canada, where he hopes, with a little serious coaching, to secure a place in the British Olympic swimming team for the Berlin Games.

Marques Still Uncertain
E. MARQUES, the Interport and Victoria Recreation Club Breast-Stroke swimmer, has returned to the Colony from Shanghai and will be competing in the different galas here. Marques played football while he was in Shanghai, but is uncertain whether he will continue with the game next season.

H.K.I.A.S.A. Wound Up
THE Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association was officially wound up on Friday last when the three remaining representatives of that body, the Royal Navy, the Hong Kong University and the European Y.M.C.A. were unanimous in their decision that the H.K.I.A.S.A. could serve no further useful purpose.

Colony Water-Polo Shield
IT is more than likely that, unless a Colony water-polo competition is organised this season, the H.K.I.A.S.A. shield, which has only been competed for during the 1933 season and which was won by the European Y.M.C.A., will repose in the latter's custody for all time. It is believed, however, that the Shield will be donated to any responsible body organising a Colony water-polo tournament.

R.A. Water-Polo Hopes
LIEUT. D. H. N. BAKER-CARR, R.A. has succeeded Lieut. H. C. Withers, the Army sprint champion, as the Royal Artillery Swimming Officer. Lieut. Baker-Carr is at present skipper of the Gunners' water-polo team, and is experiencing great difficulty in raising a side to succeed last year's Area water-polo champions, most of the latter players having left the Colony for other stations.

Hung Keen On Swimming
WILLIE HUNG, the C.R.C. tennis player, is also very keen on swimming and is out bathing at either Repulse Bay, Big Wave Bay or Shek O every Sunday. He is also a very good all-round cricketer, being a member of the K.C.C.'s senior league champion team.

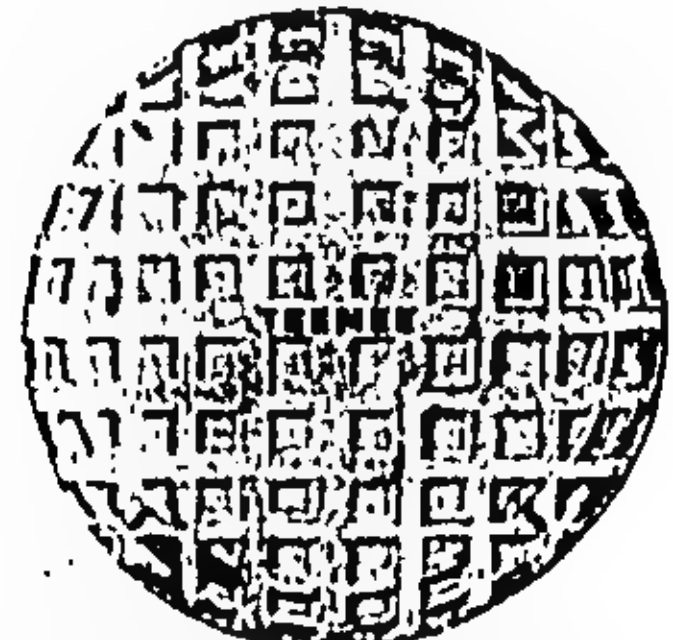

Chip Of The Old Block
IRON BUX JR., who took part in the recent amateur boxing contests at the Lee Theatre, is the second son of the veteran boxer who in his younger days held every title from bantamweight up to middleweight in the Philippines. The son is now showing promise of developing into an excellent boxer and it is understood that his father is going to "take him in hand."

Urge For A.B.A. In Colony

IT is to be hoped that now that a start has been made in staging amateur boxing contests in the Colony, those responsible will not let the grass grow under their feet, but will continue to stage tournaments regularly. There is a very great need for an Amateur Boxing Association in the Colony and, providing some of our more experienced boxing enthusiasts come forward and lend their assistance, there is no reason why one cannot be formed.

Shutes' Going Home

E. L. H. SHUTE, the Civil Service Cricket Club lawn tennis player, and Mrs. Shute, with whom he plays in the Mixed Doubles Badminton League, accompanied by Kenneth and Warwick Shute, the tennis twins, will be leaving the Colony for home in 10 months' time. Shute will have then completed his three years' term in the Naval Hospital.

C.S.C.C. Lose Tennis Player

W. H. DALEY, who played tennis for the Civil Service Cricket Club, has left the Colony for England and will not be returning.

Hayward's New Interests

A. W. HAYWARD, the former Interport cricket captain, has two new interests. Firstly, he has taken up lawn bowls, turning out for the Football Club and, secondly, he is invariably an interested spectator at the League baseball games on Sundays.

Nooy Leaves For Batavia

D. J. NOOY, the Hong Kong Hockey Club player, who also turned out for the European Y.M.C.A. during the past hockey season, will leave the Colony for Batavia on transfer next Tuesday.

Coaching Would-Be Referees

CORPORAL Reynolds, of the R.A. S.C. is conducting refereeing classes among the Rifles in preparation for the coming Soccer season. He has at present about 13 who hope to be qualified by the start of the next season.

By the Judge

South China's League Plans

IT was at first thought that South China would only be entering one team in the First Division next season as most of their "A" team players would be away and probably would not back until late in the season. Mr. Chan, their representative on the Council, tells me, however, that as far as he knows the team will be returning before the commencement of the season. It is also probable that South China will be entering a team in the Third Division.

Johnson To Replace Pile?

A. S. C. PILE, the Interport and Police full-back, will not be available next season as he will be on leave. Johnson, their centre-forward, may be tried in that position. Johnson was actually a full-back before he took up the centre-forward position in the Police team.

Honniball To Visit Sourabaya

R. HONNIBALL, the Kowloon Football Club's first eleven forward, will be leaving the Colony on a business trip in the very near future. He will be going to Sourabaya and will, it is understood, be away for about a month or two.

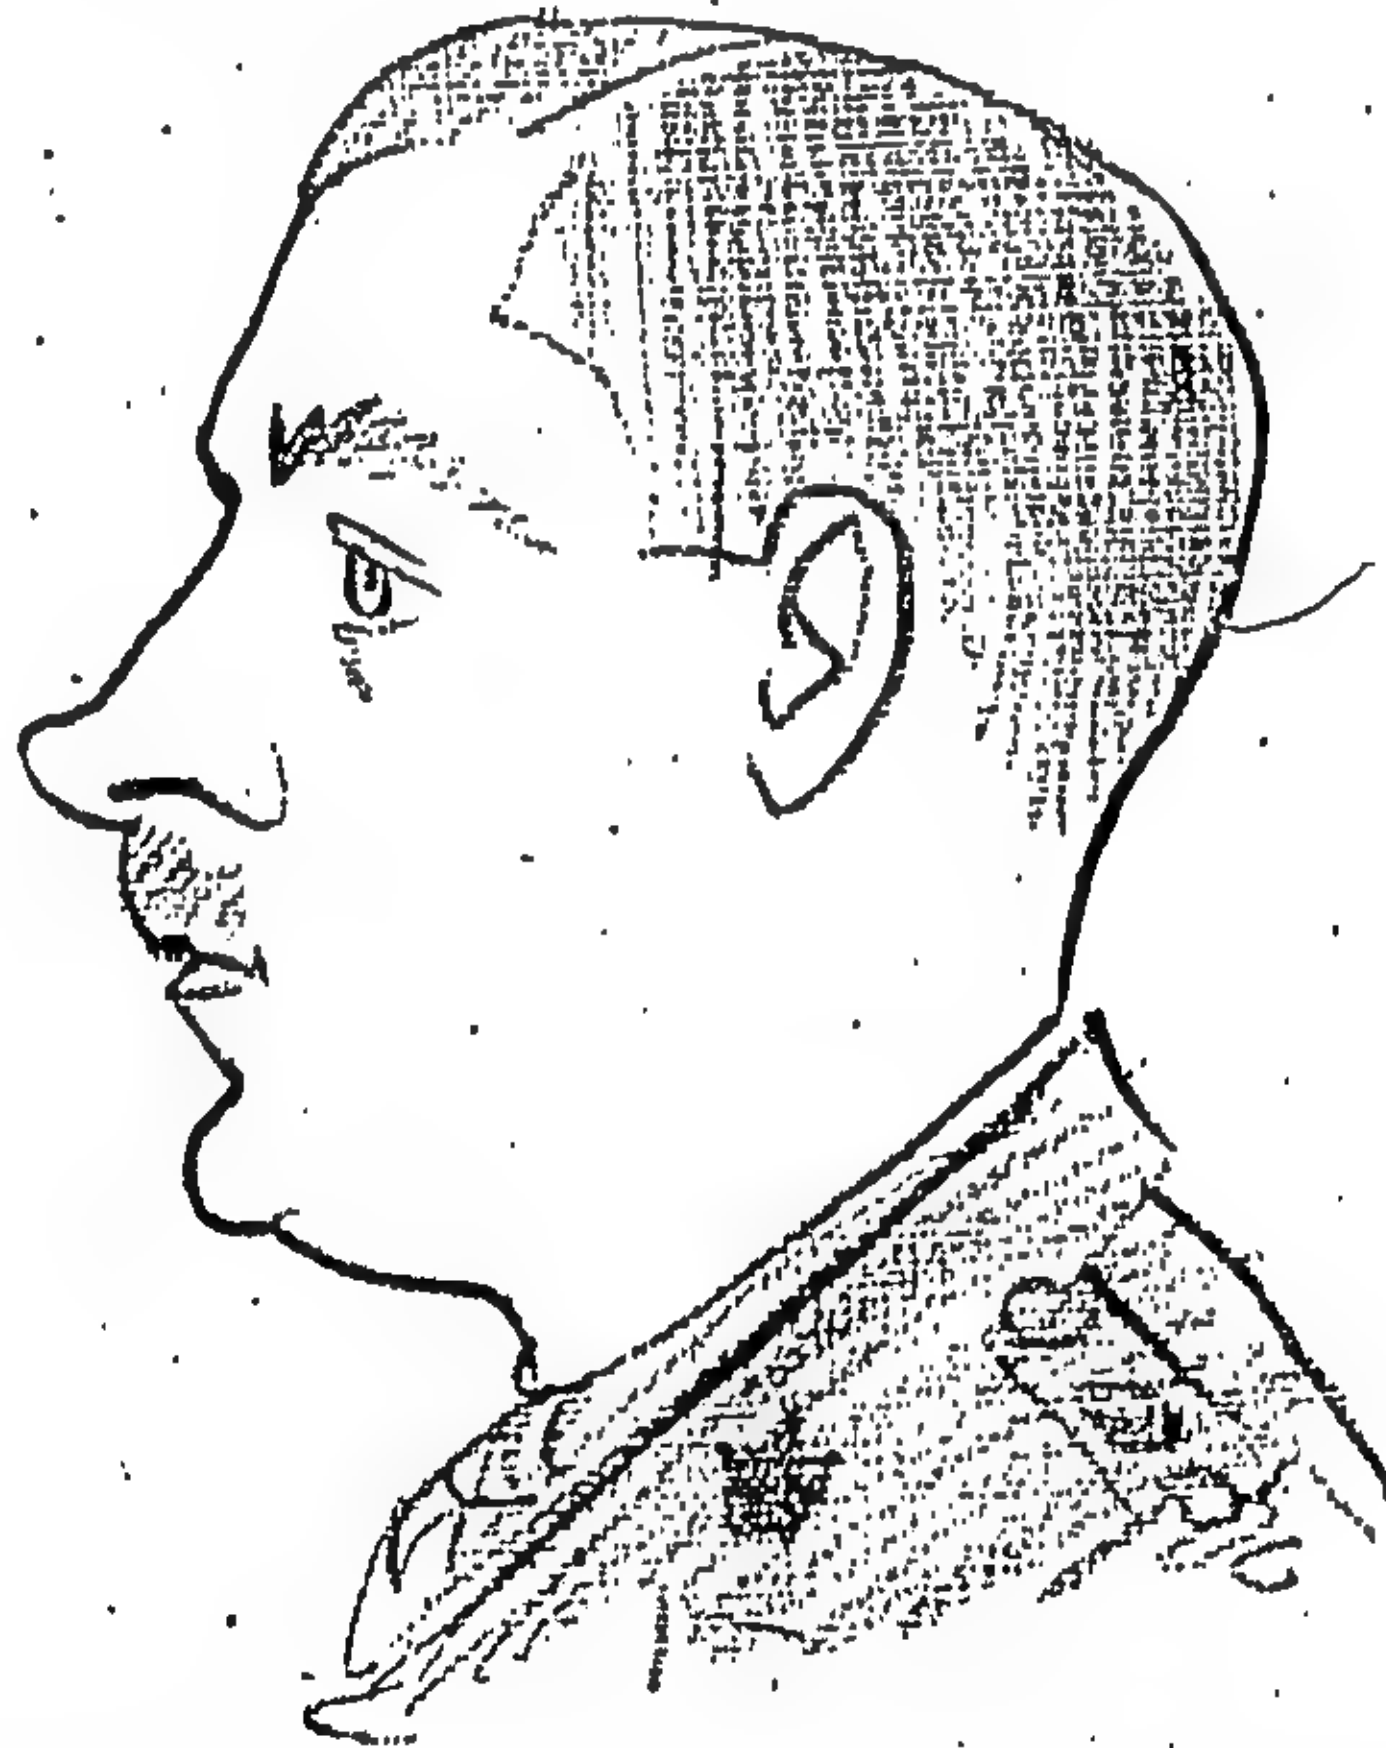

Chinese Police Moving Up One

HEARTENED by their success in the Third Division of the local Football League, the Chinese Police will probably be entering the Second Division next season.

Booker Specialising In Golf

FEW know that Inspector F. E. E. Booker, the Police lawn bowler, was a very fine footballer years ago being one of the most dangerous forwards in the Colony. He also used to play a good game of tennis and is still a keen golfer, being one of the semi-finalists in the "Kent Cup" competition—he was defeated by J. Wass, the hockey player.

SPORTS PERSONALITIES XIX

CAPTAIN Lionel John Walch, R.A.S.C., who is the Army cricket captain here, was born in Hobart, Tasmania, in 1896 and went home to England for his education in 1906. He first went to Hall School, Sidmouth, and then to Aldenham School, Hertfordshire, finally entering Sandhurst in April 1915 and obtaining his commission in September of the same year. Cricket has always been Capt. Walch's game, and, to use his own words, he "started reading books on cricket from the age of about 7 or 8 years." He won his first eleven blazer while at school, but, due to the fact that he was at Sandhurst during the War, he did not have a chance to play for the Academy as there was then no cricket to be had at all.

Capt. Walch has several big scores to his credit in Regimental cricket and has also hit up a number of centuries. He played for the British Army on the Rhine and also for the R.A.S.C. team at home.

Cricket, however, is not his only game as he also plays, with more than average success, tennis, hockey, badminton and five, while he secured second eleven colours for Association football while at school.

Capt. Walch was for 18 months the Hon. Secretary of the United Services Recreation Club, having only recently relinquished the position. He was, incidentally, responsible for the design of the Loch Ness monster which played such a prominent part at the Military Tattoo in 1934.

CAMERA NOTES

The third Festival Week of the German Theatre has recently been celebrated in Munich. Among the productions listed was a performance of Wagner's famous opera "Rienzi," which was honoured by the presence of the German Chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler, who was accompanied by the Ministers Herr Siebert, Dr. Rudolf Hess and Dr. Goebbels, Minister for Propaganda.

ions Despite Many Handicaps During First Half

Needa) and King's Lead (Mr. Marshall) came tearing down the straight neck-and-neck, and Mr. Needa just managed to get his mount in front on passing the winning post. The same thrilling finish was repeated in the Derby, when, although trailing behind most of the time, it was really determined riding on the part of Mr. Needa that enabled the Sassoon Stable to win the Derby for the second year in succession—they won last year with Herod. The initial classification of the ponies found Honeymoon Eve in "B" Class, but it was immediately promoted to "A" Class after its easy victory in the Morrison Hill Handicap (Mr. Davis) over six furlongs at the Third Extra Meeting.

ROYAL SCOT. Confidently expected to carry off the Derby, Royal Scot (Mr. Harriman) occupied only third position. Comments by followers of the turf seemed to indicate that Mr. Harriman made an error of judgment in keeping Royal Scot away from the Trial Plate, as it would have given the pony an opportunity of Hong Kong Handicap "B" Division at the First Extra Race Meeting.

BEAR CLAW. This pony was the hope of the Dunbar Stable for the Derby, but it ran unplaced. With Mr. Frost on top, it won the Malden Stakes and the Grand Stand Stakes (six furlongs) at the Annual Meeting, and provided Mr. Black with an easy win in the Kellett Handicap at the Third Extra Meeting. It was, however, responsible for Mr. Black being unseated in the High West Handicap at the Fourth Extra Meeting, but, fortunately, the jockey did not suffer any serious injury beyond a bad shaking up—this was the only riding mishap of the season!

ROYAL CONSORT. Boyond winning the Racing Stakes (1 Mile) on the Third Day of the Annual Meeting, with Mr. Harriman up, this pony did nothing outstanding.

DAWN STAR. The Kong Bros. Stable had a lot of faith in this pony in the Derby, but it had not been trained up to the high pitch necessary for such an important race as the Derby. However, Dawn Star later revealed its true form by winning three consecutive races, on each occasion with Mr. Ip Kui Ying on top, to finish up the first half with four wins.

KING'S SCEPTRE. At one time this pony was regarded as a strong candidate for the Derby, but, beyond winning the "Black Rock" Stakes on the Second Day of the Annual Meeting and the Customs Handicap at the last Meeting, it did little of note.

Old Subs.

Very little can be said about the old subscription griffins, as there are so few of them left. BISTRE accounted for the Garrison Cup, ably ridden by Mr. Wong, on the second day of the Annual Meeting. TINY STAR won the Royal Navy Cup with Mr. D. S. Li as the jockey, and provided Mr. Deitz with a surprise win, at the Second Extra Meeting, by carrying off the Sub-Griffins Handicap and paying a big dividend.

YOUNG CHAP paid a fairly substantial dividend when Mr. Pih brought it in for a win in the Northern Stakes on the Fourth Day of the Annual Meeting. COPPER IDOL, with Mr. Deitz up, won the "Hay and Corn" Stakes at the First Extra Meeting. SEVENTEENTH OF SEPTEMBER had an interesting tussle with Copper Idol in the Bon Vista Handicap (1 Mile and 171 Yards), but managed to secure the verdict by a length, after fighting it out all the way down the straight.

WADEBRIDGE proved a great disappointment, failing to win a single race.

New Subs.

Races confined to subscription griffins of this season furnished some of the best and most keenly contested events.

ROSE EVELYN. Undeclared at the Annual Meeting, Rose Evelyn, the undisputed champion of the new subscription griffins, provided Mr. Encarnacao with four wins. In the race for the Wong-Nei-Chong Stakes (First Section), Rose Evelyn, despite a bad start succeeded in just winning by a short head, but in the subsequent three races in which it participated, there was no doubting its superiority. Under Mr. Deitz, however, it suffered its first defeat in the "Tyam" Handicap "A" Division at the First Extra Meeting when it was beaten by Wild Cat (Mr. S. Y. Liang)—it carried 168lb. on that occasion, a concession of 13lb. to Wild Cat. It, however, had its revenge last Saturday to chalk up its fifth win. Rose Evelyn enjoyed the distinction of finding itself in company with Royal Scot in "C" Class when the Classification was first issued!

WILD CAT. Wild Cat, unquestionably the next best 1936 sub., created a sensation by beating The Gorilla in the Valley Stakes, and, incidentally, in conjunction with Strathroy paid the biggest double dividend of the first half. In the "Tyam" Handicap at the First Extra Meeting, over one mile, in which Wild Cat inflicted its first defeat on Rose Evelyn, its rider, Mr. S. Y. Liang, displayed good judgment and, after a generous application of the whip, managed to secure the verdict by a neck. The same combination also won the Swatow Handicap at the Third Extra Meeting.

THE GORILLA. Made a red hot favourite for the Valley Stakes, and ridden by Mr. Frost, The Gorilla met with unexpected defeat at the hands of Wild Cat, but it was believed at the time that the muddy track was partly responsible. The Gorilla won the Union Plate (Mr. Pih) over six furlongs at the Second Extra Meeting, and revealed its true form when Mr. Harris, in spite of carrying 168 lbs, brought it in to win the Kongmun Handicap, for novice jockeys at the Third Extra Meeting.

GOLD SOVEREIGN. A great deal was expected from Gold Sovereign, but it was evidently not really fit during the Annual Meeting. It later provided Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho with two wins in the Novice Class, both of which were accomplished with comparative ease at successive Extra Meetings.

STOPWATCH. One of the smallest ponies of the new batch, Stopwatch met with no particular success during the Annual Meeting, but, ably handled by Mr. Ip Kui Ying, this game little fellow later proved its ability by recording two successive victories.

These five were unquestionably the best among this year's lot of subscription griffins. There were indications in the early part of the training season that MOUNTAIN VIEW would develop into one of the leading ponies, but, beyond winning the Governor's Cup, it did little to justify its earlier promise. On the other hand, HUMBER failed to show any promise at the beginning, and then, after changing ownership, made rapid improvement, succeeding in winning the Nanling Handicap at the Fifth Extra Meeting fairly easily and then followed this up with another win at the last Meeting. THE HERO was another from which much was expected, but it only won one race, The Wong-Nei-Chong Stakes (Second Section). CELEBRATION TIME, a nice-looking pony, won the Nil Desperandum Stakes (Second Section), under Mr. Needa.

Old Australians

ABLE AMAZON: Just prior to the race for the Australian Championships at the Annual Meeting it was quietly rumoured that Able Amazon was not quite fit, but, guided by Mr. D. S. Li, this worthy champion produced a brilliant last quarter to beat Strathroy by several lengths. There is, however, some truth in the rumour now prevailing that Able Amazon has not fully recovered from that gruelling race, in consequence of which it did not take part in any further engagement.

VIXEN TOR. There must also be something wrong with Vixen Tor. After accounting for the Bendigo Stakes on the First Day of the Annual Meeting, this pony then sustained several surprising reverses and was eventually rested. More should be heard of it next season.

BAG TOR. With Mr. Proulx on top, Bag Tor won the Melbourne Cup (1 Mile and 171 Yards) on the second day of the Annual Meeting, and then started in only one other race.

SHOOTING STAR. Piloted by Mr. Frost, Shooting Star had an easy win in the Adelaide Stakes on the Fourth Day of the Annual Meeting.

BOBNIK STAR. Bobnik Star had only one solitary win to its credit, when Mr. D. S. Li brought it in to account for the Coral Plate on the Third Day of the Annual Meeting.

SNOWY RIVER. At the First Extra Meeting Snowy River, under Mr. Black, revealed its true form when it managed to beat Rose Ann in the Moonie Ponds Handicap by a short head. It was one of the best finishes seen for a long time.

AUSTRALIAN BOY. With Mr. Davis on top, Australian Boy won the Coolgardie Handicap at the Third Extra Meeting, and was always a possible winner in all its later engagements, eventually winning the Bondi Handicap last Saturday.

New Australians

STRATHROY. This pony has rightly been proclaimed the best of this year's lot of imported Australian ponies, and, in view of its consistent progress, it will offer Able Amazon a spirited challenge when they clash on a hard track. Strathroy's improvement has been so pronounced that, in spite of carrying 165 lbs., it broke the record for the 1 Mile and 171 Yards distance. On this occasion Strathroy's powerful burst over the last quarter attracted considerable attention among the rail fans.

At the Annual Meeting, Strathroy, which has always been ridden by Mr. Black, won the Sydney Maiden Stakes (Second Section), and was second to Able Amazon in the Australian Championships, after running unplaced in the Rooty-Hill Derby! Since then it has had two further wins, and further successes for this classy pony may be expected.

HOLIDAY EVE. After winning the Sydney Maiden Stakes (First Section) at the Annual Meeting, Holiday Eve made no further appearance, and its return to the track will be keenly awaited, as it is undoubtedly one of the best of this year's Australian ponies.

YO-HO. Yo-Ho was also not seen in action during the latter stages of the first half. A powerful pony, it provided Mr. Marshall with two wins at the Annual Meeting, the outstanding of which was the Rooty-Hill Derby.

A GRAND TIME. A big-hearted pony, and one which was confidently expected to give a strong challenge in the Rooty-Hill Derby, A Grand Time (Mr. Pote-Hunt) won the Blue Mountains Plate (1½ Miles) on the Fourth Day of the Annual Meeting, and followed up this success by winning the Canterbury Park Handicap, with Mr. P. P. Botelho up, at the Fourth Extra Meeting.

ELECTRON. With Mr. Frost on top, Electron accounted for the "Albury Stakes" on the third day of the Annual Meeting, and, piloted by Mr. N. Deitz, it carried off the Calliope Handicap at the Second Extra Meeting and the Warwick Farm Handicap a fortnight ago. This is another powerful pony which should win several more races.

RANGER. Though it won the St. Kilda Handicap (1 Mile 171 Yards) under Mr. Black at the Third Extra Meeting, it did nothing else of importance.

LANCASHIRE LAD. After winning the Perth Plate (first section) at the Annual Meeting, and coming in third in the Rooty-Hill Derby, Lancashire Lad made only two other appearances, and with no success.

THE DUNLIN. Surprise-winner of the Flemington Plate (Mr. Frost), The Dunlin secured second place in the Blue Mountains Plate at the Annual Meeting.

running on a sodden track. However, there is no questioning the fact that Royal Scot is one of the outstanding griffins of this season, and its reputation was restored when it carried off the St. George's Plate in effortless manner, and thus partially avenged its earlier defeat at the hands of Honeymoon Eve. There was keen disappointment following the announcement that Royal Scot had been classified as a "C" Class pony, but full amends were made when it was promoted to "A" Class without having competed once in "B" Class, thus setting a precedence in the annals of local racing.

KING'S LEAD. A pony discarded by the Kong Stable and later purchased by the Dynasty Stable, King's Lead very nearly provided the sensation of the year when it was beaten by the narrowest margin by Honeymoon Eve in the Derby. Under Mr. Marshall it was actually leading 20 yards from the winning post, but it then faltered and that fraction of a second enabled Honeymoon Eve to secure the verdict. King's Lead, however, won the Griffins Spring Handicap on the fifth day of the Annual Race Meeting with Mr. Marshall on top, and, under Mr. Deitz, accounted for the

FRENCH CHAMBER PASSES 40-HOUR WEEK BILL BY 385 TO 175

Mrs. Sinfonora Martinez Hernandez, left, of Rivas, Nicaragua, is here shown with a nurse after she had given birth to six babies, four girls and two boys, three of whom died immediately. Of the remaining three, shown in the picture, only one girl survived. The mother is shown with her husband and a nurse.

WHAT WILL BORAH DO? AGAINST GOLD STANDARD

Landon In Limelight Through Hearst Press
COLONEL KNOX NOMINATED FOR VICE-PRESIDENCY

Cleveland, Yesterday.
The Republican Convention has nominated Colonel Knox, a candidate for the Presidency, to the Vice-Presidency. The 1,003 delegates voted unanimously for Colonel Knox.

The name of Mr. William Hearst was linked with both successful candidates. It was the boast throughout the country in the Hearst press that converted Governor Landon from an almost unknown State politician into a national figure, while Colonel Knox acquired contacts throughout the country as circulation manager for the Hearst chain.

As the weary delegates scattered to their homes the question on all lips was: "What will Borah do?" Senator Borah quitted Cleveland on Thursday night, and the possibility of his bolting from the party was increased by a telegram sent by Governor Landon, in which he said that he interpreted the sound money plank of the party platform as meaning "currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold."

BORAH RETICENT
Mr. Borah, on reaching Washington, declined to say whether he would support Mr. Landon. He declared that he was not clear on the meaning of Mr. Landon's reference to gold. "If it means that he is for the gold standard, I am wholly in disagreement with that."

He added that he had no objection to the selection of Colonel Knox as Vice-President.—Reuter.

AIR SERVICE FOR WEST INDIES?

London, Yesterday.—The Colonial Secretary, Mr. A. W. B. Ormsby-Gore, stated in a Parliamentary reply yesterday that the Government were considering the possibility of the establishment of a British air service in the West Indies, but he was not yet in a position to make any statement on the subject.—British Wireless Service.

"The babies are fine," Dr. Frank Jaul tells Mrs. Emil Kasper, Little Ferry, New Jersey, mother of quadruplets in a Passaic hospital. Passing an early crisis in their young lives the babies are now conceded a good chance to live.

Mr. Wm. Kay For Honolulu

Hong Kong's Representative At Conference

Hong Kong will be represented by Mr. William Kay, M.A., the popular Headmaster of King's College, at the Seminar-Conference on Education in Pacific Countries, which will be held in Honolulu, Hawaii, from June 30 to August 7 this year.

Mr. Kay's special contribution to the Conference will be a paper on "Higher Education in Hong Kong."

The purpose of this Seminar-Conference is to offer to a selected group of administrators, educators and scholars from the different Pacific countries, the opportunity to study and discuss the racial, cultural and educational problems which have arisen as a result of the modern contact of people, and to secure an interchange of experience as to how such problems are being dealt with. The gathering will be held in conjunction with the annual six weeks' Summer Session of the University of Hawaii.

The membership of the Seminar-Conference will consist of directors of education, school principals and other leaders in both government and mission work, social scientists, social workers, and other vitally interested people. Representatives are expected from Australia, Canada, China, Great Britain, Japan, New Zealand and America, as well as from American, British, Dutch and French dependencies in the Pacific.

Mr. Kay will leave the Colony next Wednesday by the s.s. Tatusa Maru. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Kay and child, who, however, will leave at Yokohama and will proceed to Karlsruhe, where Mr. Kay will join them on his return from Honolulu in about the middle of August.

SITUATION RELIEVED ENGINEERING CRISIS MAY BE AVERTED

Strike Of Dockers At Havre Called Off

LILLE FACTORY HANDS BACK AGAIN AT WORK

Paris, Yesterday.
After a debate which lasted all day the Chamber yesterday passed the 40-hour a week bill by 385 votes to 175. The bill will now be presented to the Senate.

There is every indication that the great engineering strike, which is the most serious factor in the strike situation, will be concluded to-day. Walters and employees in restaurants and cafes in Paris have resumed work, but their fellow-workers at Marseilles are still striking.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

COLLECTIVE CONTRACT
Paris: The most important individual strike settlement was reached on Thursday evening, when the employers and employees in the metallurgical industry signed a collective contract at the Ministry of Interior.

A Havre message says that the threatened strike of dockers has been called off, following a settlement in which the men receive a 12 per cent. increase in pay. Lille messages report that 35 factories in Lille and 38 in Roubaix have again started work. About 10,000 men are still out at Valenciennes.

Situation In Spain BECOMING MORE SERIOUS EVERY HOUR

Malaga: The situation consequent on the general strike and the conflict between Socialists and Communists is becoming more serious every hour. The chief of the municipal police was fired on and killed while he was out walking. A striker was killed and several seriously injured in a clash between rival organisations. Two children were accidentally shot dead, and the death toll for the past three days now stands at 12.

The members of the National Federation of Labour have called off the general strike, but the General Union of Workers have refused to return to work. The outlook is ominous and obscure. No newspapers have been published in the past five days.

VISITORS MOLESTED

Gibraltar: Rioters have been molesting visitors on the outskirts of Malaga. Police and armoured cars have been conveying the mails for Gibraltar, and reinforcements of the Civil Guard and shock police have arrived at Algeciras from Cadiz, owing to the fear of disturbances on the occasion of the annual fair to-morrow.

COAL STRIKE THREATENED

Madrid: A strike throughout the Spanish coal industry is threatened. It is understood that the demands include the replacement of the Ministers of Finance and Labour in the recently-formed Cabinet. Representatives of the province of the Asturias informed the Government that a strike would commence forthwith unless their requests were complied with.

COAL STRIKE IN BELGIUM

Brussels: The coal strike has spread to the large fields in Hainaut province around Mons, where over 1,000 men have struck. Five collieries in the Lillo district are already out.—Reuter.

CORRESPONDENCE

AN AVERAGE CHRISTIAN — All correspondence, particularly open letters, must be signed by the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as a sign of good faith.—Ed.

His many friends will be glad to learn that Mr. W. C. (Willie) Hung, the well-known local solicitor, of Messrs. Deacons, has now fully recovered from his recent indisposition and has returned to his place in the office.

Archbishop Pierre du Bois de la Villerabel, above, aged 72, of Rouen, France, refused to obey the Vatican's order deposing him as Apostolic administrator until he made a personal appeal to Pope Pius XI.

WHILE COLONY SLEEPS

No Action Against Peace Breakers

BUT CAR DRIVERS BEWARE!

"Unless the Police are satisfied that the noise complained of is such as to cause a disturbance of public tranquility, they will not take any action," said a senior Police officer when interviewed by the Sunday Herald yesterday at Police Headquarters on the question of the many complaints that have appeared in the Press, from time to time regarding the noises made at night by all-night night joggies, parties, hawkers crying their wares, etc.

The officer in question said that although it was laid down in the Ordinances that no person or persons shall make any noise between sunset and 6 a.m. that is calculated to disturb public tranquility or cause annoyance to any person or persons, it was more or less an unwritten law to treat "reasonable" offences leniently, provided these offences were not committed after 11 p.m.

It was also stated that if any private individual had any complaint to make, he would be given every assistance by the Police who will not, however, take any part in the summonses arising therefrom, unless witnesses were forthcoming to prove that the nuisance complained of not only annoyed one particular person, but was of such a nature as to disturb public tranquility.

So far as the tooting of motor-car horns was concerned, this official stated that the authorities at one time intended passing an Ordinance forbidding the use of horns during the night, but, after due consideration, it was felt that such a law might lead to a larger number of motor fatalities, and it was decided, instead, to instruct all traffic officers to take action against anybody who was found sounding their horns unnecessarily, especially after sunset.

BISHOP HENRY VALTORTA

Tenth Anniversary Of Consecration

Yesterday was the tenth anniversary of the consecration of His Lordship Bishop Henry Valtorta as Vicar Apostolic of Hong Kong and Bishop of Leroc.

His Lordship is at present in Italy on the first of his visits to the Holy See since his consecration. He is expected to return to the Colony by the m.v. Victoria on July 25.

FIGHT OUTSIDE GARAGE

Fuillier E. Warren, of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, was yesterday charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy with assaulting Yau Lun, a motor-car driver, in Hennessy Road on Friday. His Worship bound both the defendant and the complainant over in a bond of $50 for one year, and ordered the defendant to pay $2 compensation to the complainant. Apparently blows were struck, following an argument about the hiring of a car.

Hong Kong rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. yesterday was 0.59 inch. The total since January has been 23.11 inches, against an average of 29.40 inches.

American Flag Day Origin Of Stars & Stripes Goes Back To 1777

The American community will to-day celebrate Flag Day, or the anniversary of the day on which the American National Flag, the Stars and Stripes, was authorised. It will perhaps be recalled that it was on June 14, 1777, that the flag with 13 stripes and 13 stars was first used as the national emblem and continued to be so until Congress passed the following act, which President Washington signed:—

"That from and after May 1, 1795, the flag of the United States be 15 stripes alternate red and white, and that the union be 15 stars, white in a blue field."

New States
This action was necessitated by the admission of the States of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union. The flag of 1795 had the stars arranged in three rows of five each instead of in a circle, and served for 23 years. With the admission of more States, however, it became apparent that the 1795 flag would have to be further modified, hence in 1818 a law was passed by Congress providing:—

"That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be 13 horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union have 20 stars, white in a blue field."

"That on the admission of every new State into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag, and that such addition shall take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission."

No Local Celebration

Since 1818 additional stars have been added until to-day there are 48 on the flag. No law has been passed to designate how the stars shall be arranged. At one time they formed a design of a larger star, but now, by common practice, they form six rows of eight stars each.

Interview by the Sunday Herald yesterday, an official at the American Consulate said that no particular arrangements had been made to observe Flag Day, adding that the only two National Days that were celebrated locally were Independence Day and George Washington's Birthday.

Commemoration In Manila

Flag Day will be commemorated by the Manila Lodge of Elks with the usual Flag Day exercises in the Lodge hall at the Elks Building at 5 p.m. to-day.

The officers of the Lodge, headed by Exalted Ruler Edward B. Ford, will put on the introductory exercises and the altar service. The history of the Flag will be read by E. E. Selph. The address of the day will be delivered by Frederic H. Stevens.

The evolution of the flag from the flag of King Henry the Seventh to the flag of to-day will be illustrated by Misses Evelyn Bartholomew, Florence Brasse, Eleanor Hodrick, Anita McGrath, Alla Riordan, Marion Robb, Virginia Robinson, Yolanda Schmidt and Mary Ruth Stagg. Several musical numbers will be rendered by the Manila Male Chorus.

FROM HERE AND THERE

A VERY pleasant reception was held at the R.A.F. Mess, Kai Tak, following the quiet wedding of Squadron-Leader J. N. D. Anderson and Miss Constance Emery at the Rosary Church, Chatham Road, last Thursday.

The bride, who only arrived in the Colony last Monday evening, by the m.v. Scharnhorst, was wearing a lovely afternoon frock with a matching three-quarter-length coat in a turquoise shade. It was a fascinating material, patterned in itself with little sprays of roses. She wore a shallow, large brimmed black hat trimmed with velvet ribbon in two or three shades toning with the frock, and carried a bouquet of pink zinnias and fern.

Among the guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Blake, the former having given the bride away; Wing-Commander and Mrs. Bishop, who was wearing a navy blue silk frock, patterned with coloured sprays of flowers in subdued tones, and a becoming, shady navy blue hat. Mrs. Rybot, who was there with her husband, was in a plain green silk linen frock trimmed with pleats; Miss Chauvin was wearing a frock of a gay flower pattern with a tricolour ribbon in shades to match the material of her dress. Miss Peggy Morrow was also in a silk flower-patterned frock and small black hat.

Other guests included Colonel Harrison, Captain Waller, Lt. Colonel Marsh, F.O. Officer F. C. Hayward and his spouse. The bride and groom left for Hong Kong for the North and Japan.

A VERY interesting and enjoyable evening was given at General Gaston Wong's residence in Boundary Street last Friday evening when the General and Mr. Li Chor Chi were hosts to a number of their friends. Messrs. Brambilla, Suennen and Nemias, the accomplished string trio of the s.s. President Hoover, delighted with their selections, Mr. Li Chor Chi, who was in excellent voice, sang a number of songs to an orchestral accompaniment, and Mr. Gerald Sydney, who recently arrived in the Colony with high credentials as a teacher of singing, played pianoforte items.

Amongst the numerous guests were Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. D'Arcy-Evans, Lt. Col. A. C. Marsh, Lt. Col. Robertson, Squadron Leader Dalzell, Capt. and Mrs. Eccles, Countess de Courseilles, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Marsden, Miss Carson, Miss Johnson, Capt. and Mrs. Crookshank, Mr. and Mrs. Carson, Capt. and Mrs. Walsh, Miss Himsforth, Capt. and Mrs. Denning, Lt. Comdr. Drage, Major F. W. Chier, Capt. and Mrs. Davies, Mrs. Y. K. Chow, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Chan and Dr. S. F. Li.

The many friends of Miss Betty Chan will be glad to know that she is now recovering from an operation for tonsillitis and is now recuperating at the Yeung Wo Hospital.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Dodwell, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson, Mr. Cyril Champkin, Capt. and Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Portallion, Miss Irene Butler, the Misses Nora and Dorothy Stone, Mr. G. G. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Langston, Mr. L. J. Robertson, Mrs. de Ste. Croix, Mr. J. P. Ferguson, Mr. A. K. Dimond, Miss P. Lammett, Miss Ray Fisher and Mr. Laurie Allan.

A MOST delightful cocktail party, at which between 30 and 40 persons were present, was given on Friday evening by Mrs. Harry Woods at her flat in Nathan Road, in honour of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Lenore Winfield, of Colombo, who has just arrived in the Colony on a short visit to her mother and sisters.

During the evening the twins, Doris and Aileen, were induced to break their all-too-long silence and charmed the company with excerpts from their repertoire, their mother accompanying them.

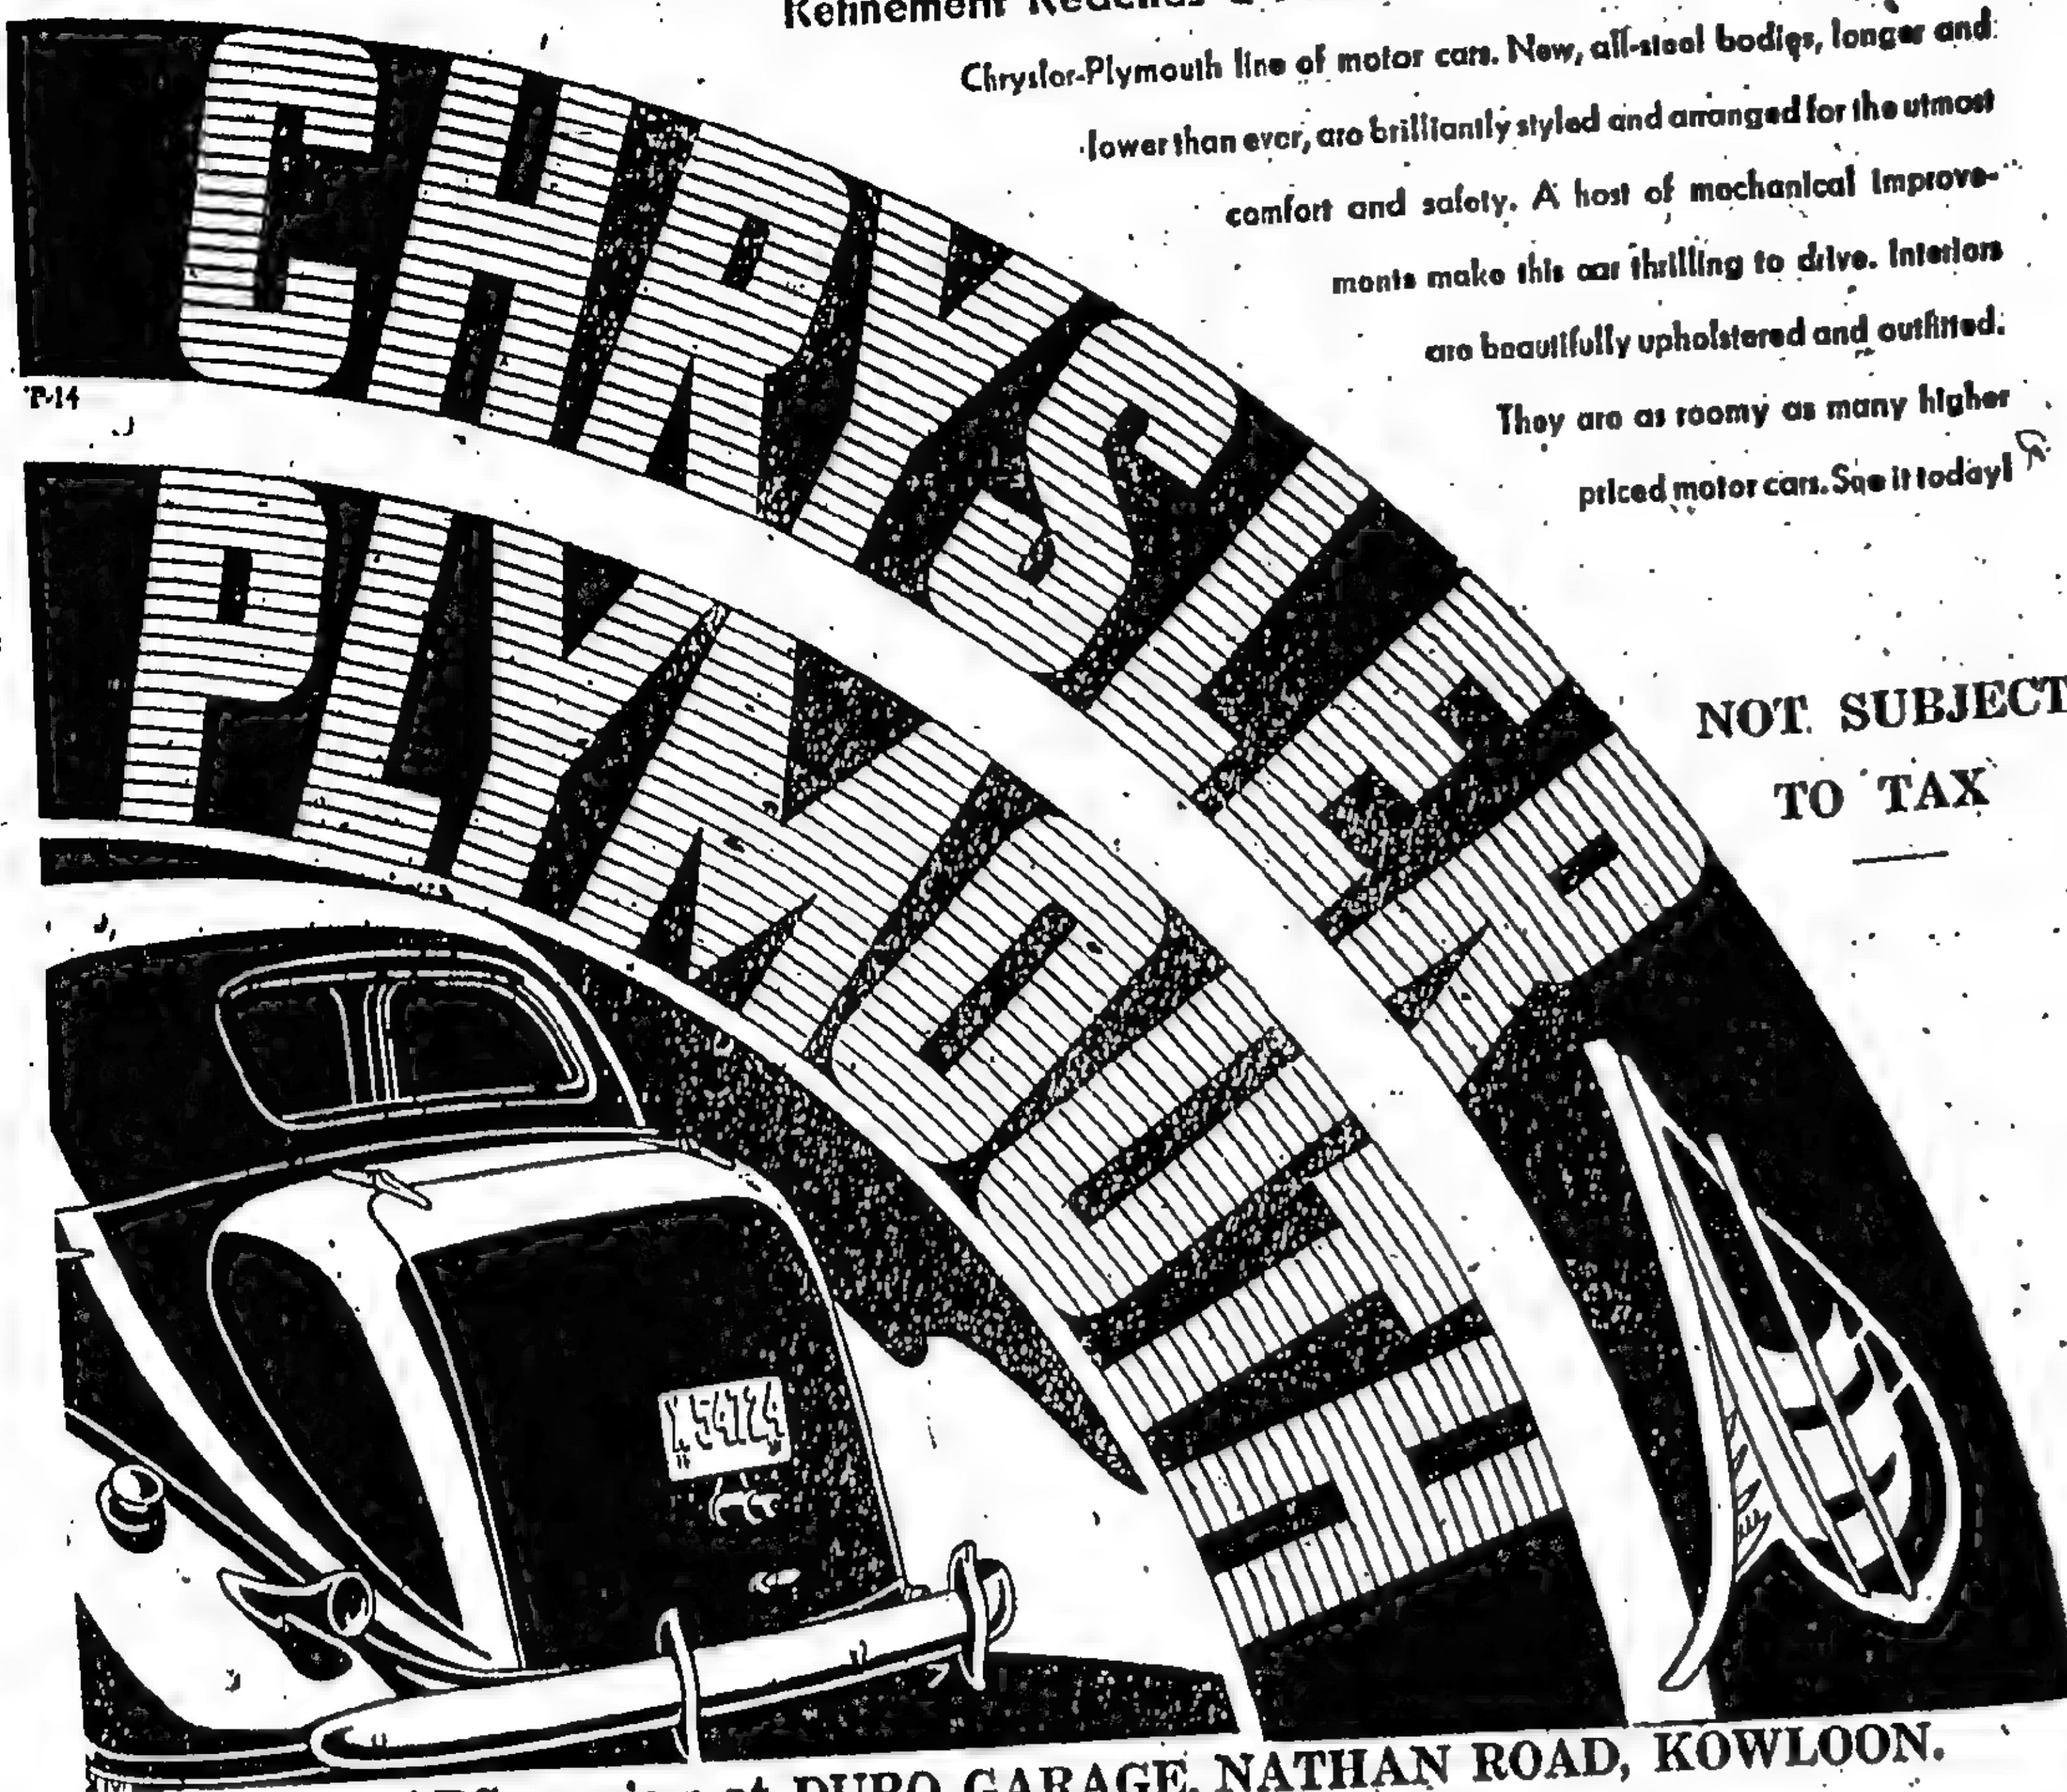

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Dodwell, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson, Mr. Cyril Champkin, Capt. and Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Portallion, Miss Irene Butler, the Misses Nora and Dorothy Stone, Mr. G. G. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Langston, Mr. L. J. Robertson, Mrs. de Ste. Croix, Mr. J. P. Ferguson, Mr. A. K. Dimond, Miss P. POLITICS IN BELGIUM

M. Van Zeeland To Try Again

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Brussels, Yesterday.

After King Leopold has given audience to the ex-Premier, M. van Zeeland, yesterday for over two hours, it was announced that the latter would make one more attempt to form a Government of National Unity. It is believed that M. van Zeeland ultimately consented to do this because the King urged that the interests of the country demanded the formation of the new Government without any delay, especially in view of the disquieting way the strike movement was spreading.

M. van Zeeland is expected to announce the formation of the Cabinet to-day. It is taken for Police dogs are now on the trail of the other assailant.

It is believed that Mr. Sigrist incurred Arab displeasure owing to his firmness in dealing with Arab rioters.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Messrs. Harriman's
Weekly Report

Messrs. G. A. Harriman & Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday states:—

The local market during the week under review has been on the quiet side with rates in some sections showing a slight decline.
More interest was, however, displayed in Philippine Gold Mining shares, the outstanding feature being the sharp rise in Antamoks and Demonstrations, the former advanced to a new high level of $4.60 and the latter touched $1.13.
Amongst investment counters Hong Kong Trams opened firm at $10 but declined again at the close with subscription offer at $9½.
Hong Kong Electric were easier with business done at $50½. Telephones (old) continued in demand at $25 after, sales at this rate.
Dairy Farms came to business at $19.70 and further shares could be placed at $19.50. Minor issues ruled easier: Hotels were put through down to $4.40, closing with buyers at this rate. Cements also suffered a decline having changed hands at $8.27½. China Lights (old) eased off with business put through at $10.60/65.
Ropes and Watsons were easier with shares offering at $4 and $3½ respectively. Providents (old) were rather neglected with sellers at 95 cts. Great interest continued in Philippine Gold Mining shares with Antamoks steadily taken up from $3.50 to $4.60, a new high record. Demonstrations changed hands in large parcels at the enhanced rate of $1.04/1.13 closing firm with buyers at $1.10.
United Paracales were also popular with transactions done at $1.05/1.10. Big Wedge also showed strength at the close with enquiries for shares at 38 cts after business done at 39 cts. Sterling counters were rather quiet with Hong Kong Banks changing hands at $1570 and Unions at $515. The tone of the market at and active.

will be housed in an annex to the present Station. The annex will form the first section of a new the latest features of the most modern power stations in the world.

These large contemplated extensions are an indication of the faith of the Directors of the China

Light and Power Co. in the future of the Colony, and also of their far-sightedness in ensuring that the Company shall have ample provision for any increased demand consequent on future developments.

It may be mentioned as a matter of general interest that Mr. J. H.

Penlington, representing "International Combustion, Ltd., who conducted the final negotiations on behalf of his principals in connection with the order for the boiler, came out as far as Penang by air.

On June 5 last he left the Colony by the R.M.A. Dorado and was the first through passenger to leave

Hong Kong connecting with the

K.L.M. plane at Penang, which makes him due to arrive in London in 6½ days from the date of his departure.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

A cartwheel hat... maybe what you want. But perhaps you can't find one that doesn't make you look top-heavy. If that is your trouble... go to DOLLY VARDEN'S... there is an exquisite collection of hats... they are lovely beyond description. I should call them personality hats... a hat for every personality. Large ones, small ones, straws, stitched taffetas, whites in straws and stitched fabrics. In all shades of the most fashionable colours including many in the "economy colour" — navy blue. It is the economy colour because it harmonises with almost any ensemble.

The handbag which is the perfect match... No ensemble can be called "perfect" without it... that is fashion's ultimatum. LANE, CRAWFORD'S is the shop where particular attention is paid to such details. When you buy a dress there, you need not go elsewhere to search for accessories. Just now they are showing a collection of such lovely handbags that I wish I had a dozen hands. I was dazzled by the variety of designs and materials. There are perfectly stunning handbags of beads, lace and beads, wooden beads, sequenced, corded crepe de chine, linen and brocades. From $7.75.

Everything you will need from now until the end of the season is certainly found in this adorable shop... MAIZEE'S, our American shop, evening dresses, afternoon frocks, sport clothes for active or spectator wear at popular prices. A tempting collection of youthful-looking, finely styled frocks in all sizes. They have light prints, sports and dressy prints, eyelets, sharkskins in stunning styles. And, please, don't wander around looking for that posy; MAIZEE'S have got enough for a flower show. For the sake of those forgetful people! MAIZEE'S are selling the Helena Rubinstein beauty preparations.

They keep their friends at MAYO'S SHOPPE... oh yes, they do. And once you have gone there, you will quickly learn why! There is always something to please you. This week they have a new shipment of most original type of smartest looking cotton dresses, in exquisite colours and all sizes. And the prices... also quite original... from $8.50. Everybody wants linen hats now and in this little shop there is the largest selection in town, in all styles and shades... and if that is not enough they will make you one to your own or any design. They also do bleaching, dyeing and cleaning.

An evening dress which is "different" that is what discriminating women are looking for just now. Only eight days to the Government House Ball... and PAUL RENNETT'S feature those "different" things you want to wear at the Ball. Flower-shadowed sheers... organdies with a spirited grace, drifting, ethereal chiffons... these new evening gowns have just the right degree of formality for summer. This all may sound very expensive but you will be agreeably surprised! And how about providing for a rainy day? They have lightweight rubber capes in white and pastel shades... only $6.50.

Three cheers for NOXZEMA! It is certainly one of the greatest discoveries ever made. I used to say goodbye to my skin every time I went to the beach... just left it about the matsheds... shed it like a snake — only a bit more painfully! But since I know NOXZEMA — I just smile at the sun. And at home it is our friend in every trouble. If hubby comes home with tired and aching feet, Johnny burns his finger or baby is worried with rash — I just say NOXZEMA! All good Dispensaries sell it. Sole Distributors: United Traders, Pedder Building.

Would you like a new face...? I bet you there are thousands of women who would... Those are the ones spending half of their husbands' earnings on gilded boxes and crystal bottles. But others just smile into their mirrors and know that they are beautiful... those are the women with plain common sense... they use MIMI Hollywood beauty aids. They have no money to waste and know that what is in the jar does the trick. MIMI beauty aids are the most expensive on the market but they are also the most reliable. Recommended by your favourite film-stars. From the Wing On Co. Ltd., Hariram Silk Store, Kowloon, and Miss Naylor's, St. George's Building.

Products of Bloomfield Laboratory "Acidofilac." That viable aciduric Bacilli destroy harmful germs in the system is a proven fact, not subject to question. "Remineraliser" remineralises the blood, supplementing the deficiency of natural minerals in the system. Made by Bloomfield Laboratory, 14, Queen's Road. Petersen & Co., Sales Agents.

Symmers have been spoiled... for many a man and woman... unpleasant memories of sunburn... so one sits under the shade of a beach umbrella and looks longingly toward the cool sea where all the others are frolicking. If you are one of these "beach-flowers" go quickly to the GRAND DISPENSARY, where they have the most complete stock of lotions and other preparations to cure all summer ills. They are qualified chemists and pharmacists and you can rely on them to prepare your prescriptions most conscientiously, using only the best drugs and chemicals.

DUCKFIELD SCORES 280

GLAMORGAN'S BIG TOTAL

Sandham Enables Surrey To Save The Game

WYATT SCORES CENTURY

London, Yesterday.
A new record for the highest individual score for the season was made by Duckfield, of Glamorgan, when he scored 280 runs against Surrey at the Oval, but the Welsh county could only win on the first innings. Their total of 550 for 6, incidentally, is also the highest total to date.

The match produced 1,118 runs for the loss of 20 wickets, Sandham distinguishing himself with his first century of the season for Surrey.

R. E. S. Wyatt, the Warwickshire captain and a candidate for the English captaincy, took 107 off the Northamptonshire bowling at Peterborough, but the match ended with Warwick securing only first innings points.

A feature of the mid-week programme was the fact that most of the matches were decided on the first innings, and in the case of the Worcester-Leicester game at Leicester, rain interfered to such an extent that no play was possible yesterday.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were as follows:—

At the Oval, Glamorgan beat Surrey on the first innings. Glamorgan: 550 for 6 dec. (Duckfield 280, Brierley 94) and 166 for 4. Surrey: 402 (Sandham 104).

At Peterborough, Warwick beat Northamptonshire on the first innings. Warwick: 228 (R. E. S. Wyatt 107) and 170 for 6 dec. Northants: 179 (Holles 5 for 65) and 150 for 7.

At Cambridge, Essex beat the University by 5 wickets. Cambridge: 207 and 220 (M. Tindall 87).

Essex: 175 and 256 for 5 (T. N. Pearce 110 not out). At Hove, Sussex beat Somerset by 258 runs. Sussex: 186 and 292 for 9 dec. Somerset: 124 (J. Cornford 6 for 42), and 76 (J. Cornford 5 for 38).

At Leicester, Leicester took first innings points from Worcester. Worcester: 101 (H. Smith 5 for 36) and 265 for 8. Leicester: 163 (Parks 5 for 64). There was no play on the third day (Friday) on account of rain.

At Oxford, the University drew with the Minor Counties. Minor Counties: 251 and 294. Oxford: 288 and 28 for 0.

At Lord's, Yorkshire took first innings points from Middlesex. Yorkshire: 242 (Sims 6 for 98) and 105.

Middlesex: 182 and 77 for 6.

At Liverpool, Hampshire took first innings points from Lancashire. Hampshire: 293 (Boyce 101 not out) and 200.

Lancashire: 292 (Watson 115; Hermon 7 for 71) and 66 for 2.

The German queen of the air, the majestic dirigible Hindenburg, is here shown in this extraordinary night photograph as she passed over Brooklyn Bridge, with lower New York's beautiful skyline as the background, on her first return trip from Lakehurst, New Jersey, to Friedrichshafen, Germany, last month. The picture was taken by a photographer stationed in Brooklyn, a few minutes after midnight.

TO-DAY'S BASEBALL PROGRAMME

Eastern's Challenge To Japanese

AMERICANS TO MEET VOLUNTEERS

In view of Eastern's magnificent display last week and also the fact that their team will be considerably strengthened by the inclusion of three good newcomers, their game against the Japanese Young Men's Association should be the more interesting of the two League Baseball games scheduled to take place this morning.

Prior to this game, the Americans will meet the Volunteers and this too should be interesting, though both sides will not be at full strength.

The Americans will be without both Drager, their outfielder, and Williams, their catcher, but Allen, a newcomer, will be seen behind the plate in the latter's place, while Barros will take Drager's place, and these two players should not weaken the team.

No Reserve

Thompson will be pitching and it is a pity the Americans have not a reserve pitcher in the team, though Hearther can be brought in for a few innings, if necessary. Carpenter, who has shown good form so far will cover the third base with Rogers at short-stop. Mayhew, who would be better at short-stop, on account of his experience, will be at second.

The Volunteers will be minus their captain, D. Leonard, and his absence will be greatly felt, not only because of his playing abilities, but because of his steady influence over the team, when in a tight corner.

Bowen has not been showing any improvement in his pitching, and the brunt of the attack will probably fall on Perola's shoulders, with Costa assisting him for a few innings.

Abbas will be covering short-stop and while he is a good fielder and throws well, he would do well

KING'S BIRTHDAY PARADE

ASSEMBLY OF TROOPS AT 4.30 P.M. ON JUNE 23

INSPIRING SPECTACLE AT VALLEY

FOR the first time in many years the military ceremony marking the celebration of the birthday of His Majesty the King will take an entirely new form and the public will be given the opportunity of seeing His Majesty's troops and Volunteers on parade in review order at Happy Valley.

The parade, which comprises the Royal Navy, Army, Naval Volunteer and Volunteer Units, will take place at Happy Valley on Tuesday, June 23, marking the 42nd birthday of His Majesty King Edward VIII, and his first birthday ceremony since his proclamation as King, and will commence at 5.30 p.m. sharp. Intending spectators must be in their seats in the various enclosures by 5.10 p.m. The entire parade will last 50 minutes.

The assembly of troops will take the King from the parade ground, place at 4.30 p.m. at Happy Valley. This terminates the King's Birthday, and troops will be in position day part of the parade.

At 5.30 p.m. His Excellency the Governor will then take up his position at the Saluting Base and at the same time the Massed Bands under the Direction of Bandmaster A. B. Bartholomew, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., will arrive and will be given a general salute. He will then inspect the line.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, Kt., C.M.G., C.B.E., attended by his Aide-de-Camp, Captain W. J. R. Cragg (V/Lincoln), will arrive by motor-car shortly afterwards.

The Union Jack, which will be at the masthead at the moment the Governor arrives, will be furled and the Royal Standard, will be broken at the masthead, signifying the arrival of His Majesty the King. His Excellency the Governor will have in the meantime taken up his position to the right of the Royal Standard, a Royal Salute of 21 guns being paid to the Royal Standard by the Mountain Battery, H.K.S.R.A.

The Royal Salute

The entire parade will then advance in Review order and after being called to the halt, will give the Royal Salute. His Excellency the Governor will then call for three cheers for His Majesty the King. A Royal Salute will then be given as the Royal Standard is furled, signifying the departure of His Majesty not to coach.

Improved Players

The two most improved players of the Volunteers are Beltrao at second-base, and Hassan at centre-field. The former is now developing into a safe baseman and is improving his throwing-in. Hassan is very safe in his fielding and displayed good judgment with high balls during the recent practice games. He is, however, not too good with the bat.

The Eastern, with the inclusion of Billy Woo, Tong Kwan and Cha Yue-ting, expect to give the Japanese Young Men's Association a drubbing, and as these players are taking over the weak positions, they should be a hard team to beat.

M. el Arcull will start the pitching, but Billy Woo, who is reported to be a good pitcher, will probably relieve him.

Old Hand

T. Hamet will probably be retained at first-base to allow Chan Yue-ting to take up the short-stop position. The latter has not been seen in any baseball games this season, though he played for the South China team several years ago. Tong Kwan, the South China footballer, will be at second-base in place of Abbas, who is being rested.

The Japanese are very much worried about a pitcher, Mikuni injured his arm recently and has not quite recovered. Amasaki, though a useful pitcher, is unable to last the entire game and the other pitcher is Yamasaki, the centre fielder. The Japanese will field the same players as last week but will be forced to make several positional changes.

The following are the line-ups: Americans—Allon (c), Thompson (p), Hearther (1st b.), Mayhew (2nd b.), Carpenter (3rd b.), Rogers (s.s.), Howard (l.f.), Barros (c.), and Reid (r.f.).

Volunteers—Perola (c) and Bowen (p), Wintges (c), Costa (1st b.), Boltrao (2nd b.), Hussain (3rd b.), Abbas (s.s.), Omar (l.f.), Hassan (l.f.) and Sa (r.f.). Eastern—O. el Arcull (c), M. el Arcull (p), Chan Yue-ting (1st b.), Billy Woo (2nd b.), T. Hamet (3rd b.), Tong Kwan (s.s.), Kitchell (r.f.), Nazarin (c.f.) and Ismail (l.f.).

Paul Mack-Hale, of Worcester, Massachusetts, tipping the beam at 285 pounds, was the heaviest passenger on the first return flight of the Zeppelin Hindenburg from Lakehurst, New Jersey, to Friedrichshafen, Germany. All passengers were weighed before they were permitted to board the air queen.

Cheung Chau Notes

Cheung Chau, Yesterday.—An interesting ceremony was performed on Friday last, namely, the laying of the foundation stone of the new Chinese Church in connection with the Relief Mission. The service opened with a hymn and the reading of Psalm 108, followed by prayer and an address by the Rev. M. A. Grant. Another hymn was sung and then the Rev. A. K. Reisinger, founder of the way in which in China, spoke of the way for the God had prepared the way for the acquisition of the beautiful site. The building is surrounded by beautiful flame trees now in full bloom. He also spoke of the difficulties in getting down to a foundation. At one corner they had to dig down 17 feet. To-day was the 20th birthday of the founder's daughter, who is in training in America for mission work.

Good progress has been made, the walls being in most places level with the tops of the windows. Steel frames are employed and the walls are of Hong Kong granite, set in cement. A number of visitors came from Hong Kong for the ceremony. Most of the workers of the Mission were present and visitors came from the other churches in Cheung Chau. The weather was all that could be desired and was fine between two wet days.

Great improvements have been made in the roads, and the Assembly Hall has been put in good shape and renovated.

The last two week-ends have seen crowds of visitors flocking to this beauty spot.

Preparations are being made for the Dragon Boat festival. The large matchless theatre has been rebuilt, and we anticipate a busy season. Our Own Correspondent.

TO-MORROW'S LAWN BOWLS CARD

Two Good Open Pairs' Ties Featured

ABANDONED PROTEST GAME FOR WEDNESDAY

Several interesting games in the Second Round of the Colony Open Pairs Lawn Bowls Championship are scheduled to take place to-morrow, the clash between N. J. Bebbington and A. Hyde-Lay of the K.C.C. and A. M. Omar and U. M. Omar of Craighower providing the main feature.

Another very close game should be witnessed on the Football Club green where W. L. Walker and H. H. Rose, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, encounter M. A. R. Souza and W. V. Field, of Craighower. Walker, although a comparative newcomer to bowls, having only taken up the game last season, is in brilliant fettle at the moment and he and his partner should enter the Third Round.

On Tuesday A. W. Grimmer, former holder of the Pairs title with F. J. Jones, and his partner C. Strange will be featured in probably the best game of the week when they clash with L. J. Silva and H. A. Alves at the Kowloon Cricket Club. The latter pair showed excellent form in the First Round when they proved themselves a formidable pair.

EX-BOOK-KEEPER IN TROUBLE

False Use Of Firm's Chop

SIX MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT

Anthony Ng, aged 39, unemployed, was yesterday charged before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy with obtaining $400 by means of a chop, purporting to be that of the Yee Hop scaffolding contractors for the purpose of their affairs by way of receipt, well knowing same to be forged, with intent to defraud.

Defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Detective Sergeant P. O. Guild said that the defendant was formerly employed as an assistant book-keeper at the Royal Engineers' Store and was an assistant treasurer of the Area-Sports Board.

On October 18, 1934, he was given a crossed cheque in favour of the Yee Hop firm of contractors for work done to the stands at Soekunpo. Defendant went to Jervois Street and had a chop made.

He asked for a cash cheque to be given instead of the crossed one, which was done. Defendant, by means of the forged chop, cashed the cheque and utilized the chop to the receipt.

On January 6, 1935, defendant absconded and at about 4 p.m. on Wednesday he was seen by Q. M. S. Giles, who recognised him and caused his arrest, in the City Hall Library.

The defendant had stated to the Police that at the time of the theft his wife had died and left him with six children, who are now living with his parents, and that he was in straitened circumstances.

Political circles regard these Government measures as the consequence of pressure which has been brought to bear by the dissatisfied Republican groups, and it is rumoured that a new Government may be formed in the course of next week, in which the moderate Socialists will be represented. It is added that the moderate Socialists may demand that extensive powers be granted to the new Cabinet, including the right to dissolve the Cortes, if this should be deemed necessary. —Router.

AUTONOMY IN INDIA

Orders-In-Council Debated

OPPOSITION GIVES ITS BLESSING

London, Yesterday.

The House of Commons yesterday debated a number of draft Orders-in-Council under the Government of India Act, which will have the effect of bringing into operation the whole of the Act except Part 2 relating to the Indian Federation. The Under-Secretary for India, Mr. R. A. Butler, in moving the approval of the Orders, said that if provincial autonomy was to be inaugurated on April 1 next the timetable which the Government had in mind was that the general elections would be held approximately eight months hence.

Spokesmen of the Labour Opposition and Liberal Party joined in wishing the scheme the fullest measure of success, and Sir Samuel Hoare, who as Secretary for India piloted the India Bill through the Commons, speaking for the first time as First Lord of the Admiralty, added his blessing.

He said that a significant and satisfactory fact of the debate was that no one had suggested that the initiation of provincial autonomy should be delayed, although there had been criticism of some of the financial proposals. As a result of the Orders the provinces—several of which were of greater magnitude than some European countries—would have an opportunity for the first time on an extended scale of developing their own provincial life.

Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Amory, two of the principal critics of the Bill, also spoke. Mr. Churchill said that he and his friends would do nothing to obstruct the carrying out of a policy which Parliament had approved, and Mr. Amory expressed the wish that there might go from the House a message of goodwill to the new provinces and to India as a whole. —British Wireless Service.

CONSUMPTION OF TIN

Better Position Disclosed

SIAM'S OBSTINACY MAY CAUSE "WAR"

Amsterdam, Yesterday.

The position of the world tin consumption is better than might have been expected in view of the general conditions, the chairman of the Billiton Tin Co., Ltd., told the annual meeting, pointing out that the 1935 consumption of 142,350 tons equalled 70 per cent. of the 1929 record, while in 1936 it was estimated at 156,000 tons, 87½ per cent. of the record. The increase was largely due to the better demand from the American automobile and tinplate industries.

Although he would regret the abandonment of international co-operation, owing to Siam's obstinate attitude, he declared that the company was fully protected for the tin war which would break out if agreement with Siam were not reached. —Reuter.

Harry Twiford, disabled war veteran and proprietor of a Los Angeles garage which "wasn't doing so well," discovered a litter of four pups in the basement of his establishment one day. BERLIN WILL BE GAY

Plans For Olympic Games

CURFEW ORDERS TO BE SUSPENDED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

The German capital during the Olympic Games will present an aspect of unwonted animation. The shops in all the main streets will be brightly illuminated until 11 o'clock in the evening, and negotiations are going on with the aim of extending the closing hours for shops, which is now 7 p.m., till 10 p.m. in Greater Berlin, to enable spectators returning from the games to do their shopping in the evening.

It is also planned to abolish the curfew hours for restaurants, cafes, bars and cabarets altogether for the duration of the Olympic Games, so that establishments may remain open throughout the night. The eagerness of every class of the population to contribute their share towards entertaining Berlin's foreign visitors is illustrated by the fact that even the drivers of municipal garbage trucks and the city's unemployed will co-operate in an entertainment programme arranged for the guests of the capital.

It is announced that bands alternately composed of employees of the various municipal departments, including the garbage-men and fire brigades, members of ex-sailors' and other associations and the unemployed will give several daily concerts on Berlin's crack avenue, the Unter den Linden. —Trans-Ocean Service.

BY-ELECTION AT LEWES

SUPPORT FOR TWO CANDIDATES

POLLING NEXT THURSDAY

London, Yesterday.

Polling takes place next Thursday in the by-election in the Lewes Division of Sussex, and the Prime Minister has addressed a letter to the Conservative candidate, who he says has every reason for asking for the support of the electors. "You can point to great progress made in the development of our social services under the National Government. You can instance the enormous improvement in trade and industrial conditions reflected in the fact that during the first quarter of this year industrial production as well as employment beat all previous records. The very fact that you stand for national security as a means to promote world peace is itself sufficient reason why the electors should rally to you."

The Opposition candidate has received a letter from his leader, Major Attlee, who declares that the main issue of the day is poverty in the midst of plenty and that the policy of the National Government is one of restriction and waste. —British Wireless Service.

TREATMENT FOR HAY-FEVER

Successful Experiment In England

London, Yesterday.

A treatment for hay-fever which has been given a trial over a period of five years at St. George's Hospital in London has proved successful in 99 per cent. of the cases. The treatment involves the application of ionised zinc to the inside of the nostrils. Three or four applications are given, after which the majority of patients are free from attacks of ordinary hay-fever for a year.

Precautionary applications are given at the end of 12 months and again a year later, and after that there is usually no recurrence of the trouble. —British Wireless Service.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN

Training Centres Examined

KING'S SURPRISE VISITS

London, Yesterday.

H. M. the King, in addition to fulfilling a number of official duties yesterday, found time to pay surprise visits to two of the Ministry of Labour instructional centres for unemployed. Yesterday morning he held a Privy Council at Buckingham Palace, at which Sir Samuel Hoare took the oath on his appointment as First Lord of the Admiralty. Later His Majesty received in audience the South African Defence Minister, Mr. O. Pirow, and the British Ambassador in Turkey, Sir Percy Loraine.

The first training centre which the King visited yesterday was at Acton, where he toured all the departments and questioned the men undergoing courses of instruction to fit them for employment in other industries than those to which they had been used, but in which there is no longer the same demand for labour. The King proceeded to Slough, where he spent an hour in another instructional centre among some 600 men, mostly transferred from the specially depressed areas.

In this centre there are courses in more than 20 different trades, and after a complete tour His Majesty expressed satisfaction with the success which was attending the methods of practical training adopted at these centres. —British Wireless Service.

London: The newspapers give considerable prominence to the discussion aroused by the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer at a political dinner on Wednesday evening, in which, as the Prime Minister subsequently explained in the House of Commons, he put forward suggestions with regard to the end of the League sanctions, which were "provisional" reflections on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute which had occurred to him—Mr. Chamberlain—personally.

Despite Mr. Baldwin's additional comment that the Government had yet reached no conclusions on the matter discussed by Mr. Chamberlain in what was practically an impromptu discourse to an "exclusive and politically educated audience," there is vigorous speculation in the press as to the relation of the Chancellor's observations to the policy of the British delegation at Geneva when the Council meets on June 26, writers tending to anticipate the Government's decision according to their individual hopes or fears.

EARLY DEBATE? A number of questions will be addressed to the Foreign Secretary in the Commons on Monday arising out of the Chancellor's reported remarks, and in Parliamentary circles there is a growing feeling that it will be found convenient to have an early debate in the Commons on foreign affairs.

Journalists in touch with the state of Parliamentary business mostly fix on June 22 as the likely day for the debate, but others anticipate an earlier date. Mr. Chamberlain's speech last Wednesday was strongly criticised by the leader of the Opposition, Major Attlee, speaking at Oxford last night, and also by Lord Davies, addressing a demonstration in South Wales. —British Wireless Service.

Flexible Wood Promised

There seem to be no end of uses to which wood can be put. Most people know that paper is made from wood pulp; the Frohbiton era in America was responsible for a conception known as wood alcohol; artificial silk has wood as its basic constituent; and the Germans claim to have invented not only a wood motor fuel, but actually a form of chocolate from wood.

Now, from the Forest Products Research laboratories at Princes Risborough, comes the news that wood can be made flexible like fish

At the laboratories the process has been tried with success on ash, beech and elm, and it is believed it would apply to most English wood.

Sharp's the word, Sir THE NEXT WAR

Liston to two Americans. Francis P. Garvin, president of the Chemical Foundation, has said: "Chemistry makes war comparatively cheap. One manufacturing plant could produce enough poison in one day to stifle the life in a city like London."

"Thirty asphyxiating gases were known at the beginning of the war; to-day there are more than 1,000, whose potency can only be surmised. . . . The properties of new gases are held as secrets of State, and may never receive currency while peace lasts."

Another View

The second American maintains: "Since the World War no new and deadly gases have been discovered. Any house or building can with little effort be converted into a first-class gas-proof shelter. . . . (But will the shelter be gas-proof after two or three bombs have been dropped on it?) On the whole, however, it seems possible that just because the poison-gas topic is mysterious and sinister, rumours about devastating effects on entire cities have inclined to exaggeration."

There is no way in which gas can be used against a civil population, except from the air, and the quantity required to cause widespread havoc would be too vast; it is the opinion of Captain Liddell-Hart that no air forces in Europe to-day are large enough to carry such a quantity, and what they could carry would be met by fairly adequate protection."

1,000 Tons of Gas Needed
There are others who agree; and it has been calculated that to immobilise London for only two hours with mustard gas—which would be the most likely kind to be used—would in theory require not less than one thousand tons of gas.

In practice, owing to winds and other interference, the amount might be five to ten times as much; and to distribute even the theoretical 1,000 tons would require a fleet of at least 1,000 bombing planes—a figure which to-day is out of the question. Again, it is possible that popular imagination, stimulated by all the reports of record-breaking flights and of continual improvements in aeronautical efficiency, has come in recent years to take an exaggerated view of the capabilities of aircraft in warfare. Some people when contemplating future warfare promptly have visions of air armadas destroying London, or bombers pounding Cape Town into pulp.

Replies to Terrorists
It is apparent that writers on the military situation, too, vary between terrorists on the one hand, and, on the other hand, those who perhaps err on the side of being too coolly reassured. In a few of the following paragraphs I have drawn somewhat on the views of the latter.

The long-distance flights of which we hear a lot to-day do not bear proper relation to the radius of action of an air fleet in time of war. In peace-time a pilot usually has aerodromes at stated intervals to welcome him. When he reaches his objective he is under no necessity to return. And he also has much more space in his machine for fuel than is available under conditions of war, when he would be loaded to the limit with explosives and cumbersome cylinders of gas.

Little more than five hundred miles, it has been said, would be the limit of a bomber's radius of action under these conditions, when the machine would be compelled to keep flying throughout its operations, and eventually to return all the way to its base, or at all events to beyond the boundaries of hostile country.

Aircraft to-day are clearly faster, larger and more reliable than in 1918, but it should not be overlooked that in their fundamental principles they are the same mechanical contrivances, having of their nature certain weaknesses which limit their powers as weapons of war.

One Technical Fault
To function at all the aeroplane must be in the air, and to remain in the air it must keep moving and dare not stop. Unlike the case of any armoured car, tank, train or torpedo-bomb destroyer, a slight technical failure or failure on the part of anyone in control—and in battle perhaps a single bullet—may bring about the complete destruction of both machine and crew.

For a massed attack on an enemy's home country to have decisive results (that is, to be crushing), according to a French authority on air warfare, three conditions are all simultaneously essential. The attacker must possess an established measure of superiority in the air (which means he must have overcome, immobilised or thoroughly intimidated the opposing air force); the defending country must offer concentrated targets whose destruction would so disrupt everyday life as to compel surrender; and, thirdly, and at the same time, these targets must be inadequately protected from the ground.

The Best Targets

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAY'S CARTOON

Edward VIII

THE 10 Edwards who preceded Edward VIII on the throne of England were: Edward the Elder, King of the Angles and the Saxons (898-924), Edward the Martyr, King of the English (975-978), and Edward the Confessor (1042-1066). The next Edward to sit on the throne of England was Edward I (1239-1307). Between 1307 and 1353 there were five more Edwards on the throne. Edward VII succeeded Queen Victoria in 1901 and ruled until 1910. The present King Edward is the 11th of that name.

be left alone. At the very least he should be the object of spasmodic and swift bombings whose primary purpose would be, by driving thousands to panicky refuge and interrupting essential services, to cause a breakdown of national morale.

In answer to my opening inquiry, I fear I find it difficult to go further than venturing that as a civilian (in a European capital, we should say), I stand a good 50-50 chance of survival. Possibly it will be in order to be sent off to do my bewildering bit on a mud-and-creater-straw tornado of a battle-front.

As Marshal Joffre observed during the war: "It costs ten to fifteen thousand lives to train a Major-General." It is no doubt nobler than being blown up in bed to die a one-fifteen-thousandth part of the price of training a Major-General.

are closely populated and highly industrialised make the best objectives for an air attack. Great Britain, for example, offers a far better target than Russia, and France than South Africa. But it is the countries which are most vulnerable in this way that have the most highly organised defences, both from the ground and in the air.

Thus the British Air Force, as Mr. Ramsay MacDonald once remarked in the House of Commons, tends to specialise in means of defence, in light and fast attacking machines, for instance, rather than heavy bombers.

The technique of anti-aircraft defence was hopelessly backward in 1914, but in the last years of the war it seemed to be rapidly overtaking the offensive powers of aircraft. Air raids were far less successful once they were anticipated. Fighting and pursuit planes to-day have climbing power and speed far higher in relation to bombers than during the war. In addition, they can be directed and put in touch with their quarry by long-range radio-telephonic communication.

Anti-aircraft Defences
Particulars of ground defences

The Safeguard
So far as I can see, this anti-aircraft gunner and his defence fleet are the chief hope of the humble civilian. Balancing the contradictions and endeavouring to sift what facts are offered, one can roughly infer from the whole lot of opinions:

(1) That civilians will definitely be attacked in the next war and the brutality of civilian deaths and the deaths of children will result (I have no faith that humanity will enter the question).

(2) That it will be attempted to use against the civilian every nature of gases and bombs having virtually inescapable destructive powers.

(3) But it is doubtful whether these can be brought into action against civilian centres in sufficient and rapid enough quantities to make the slaughter by any means wholesale.

A 50-50 Chance
Although the decisively victorious mass air attack may be improbable, there are other reasons why the unfortunate citizen, busy with the essential work of the nation, offers too good a target to

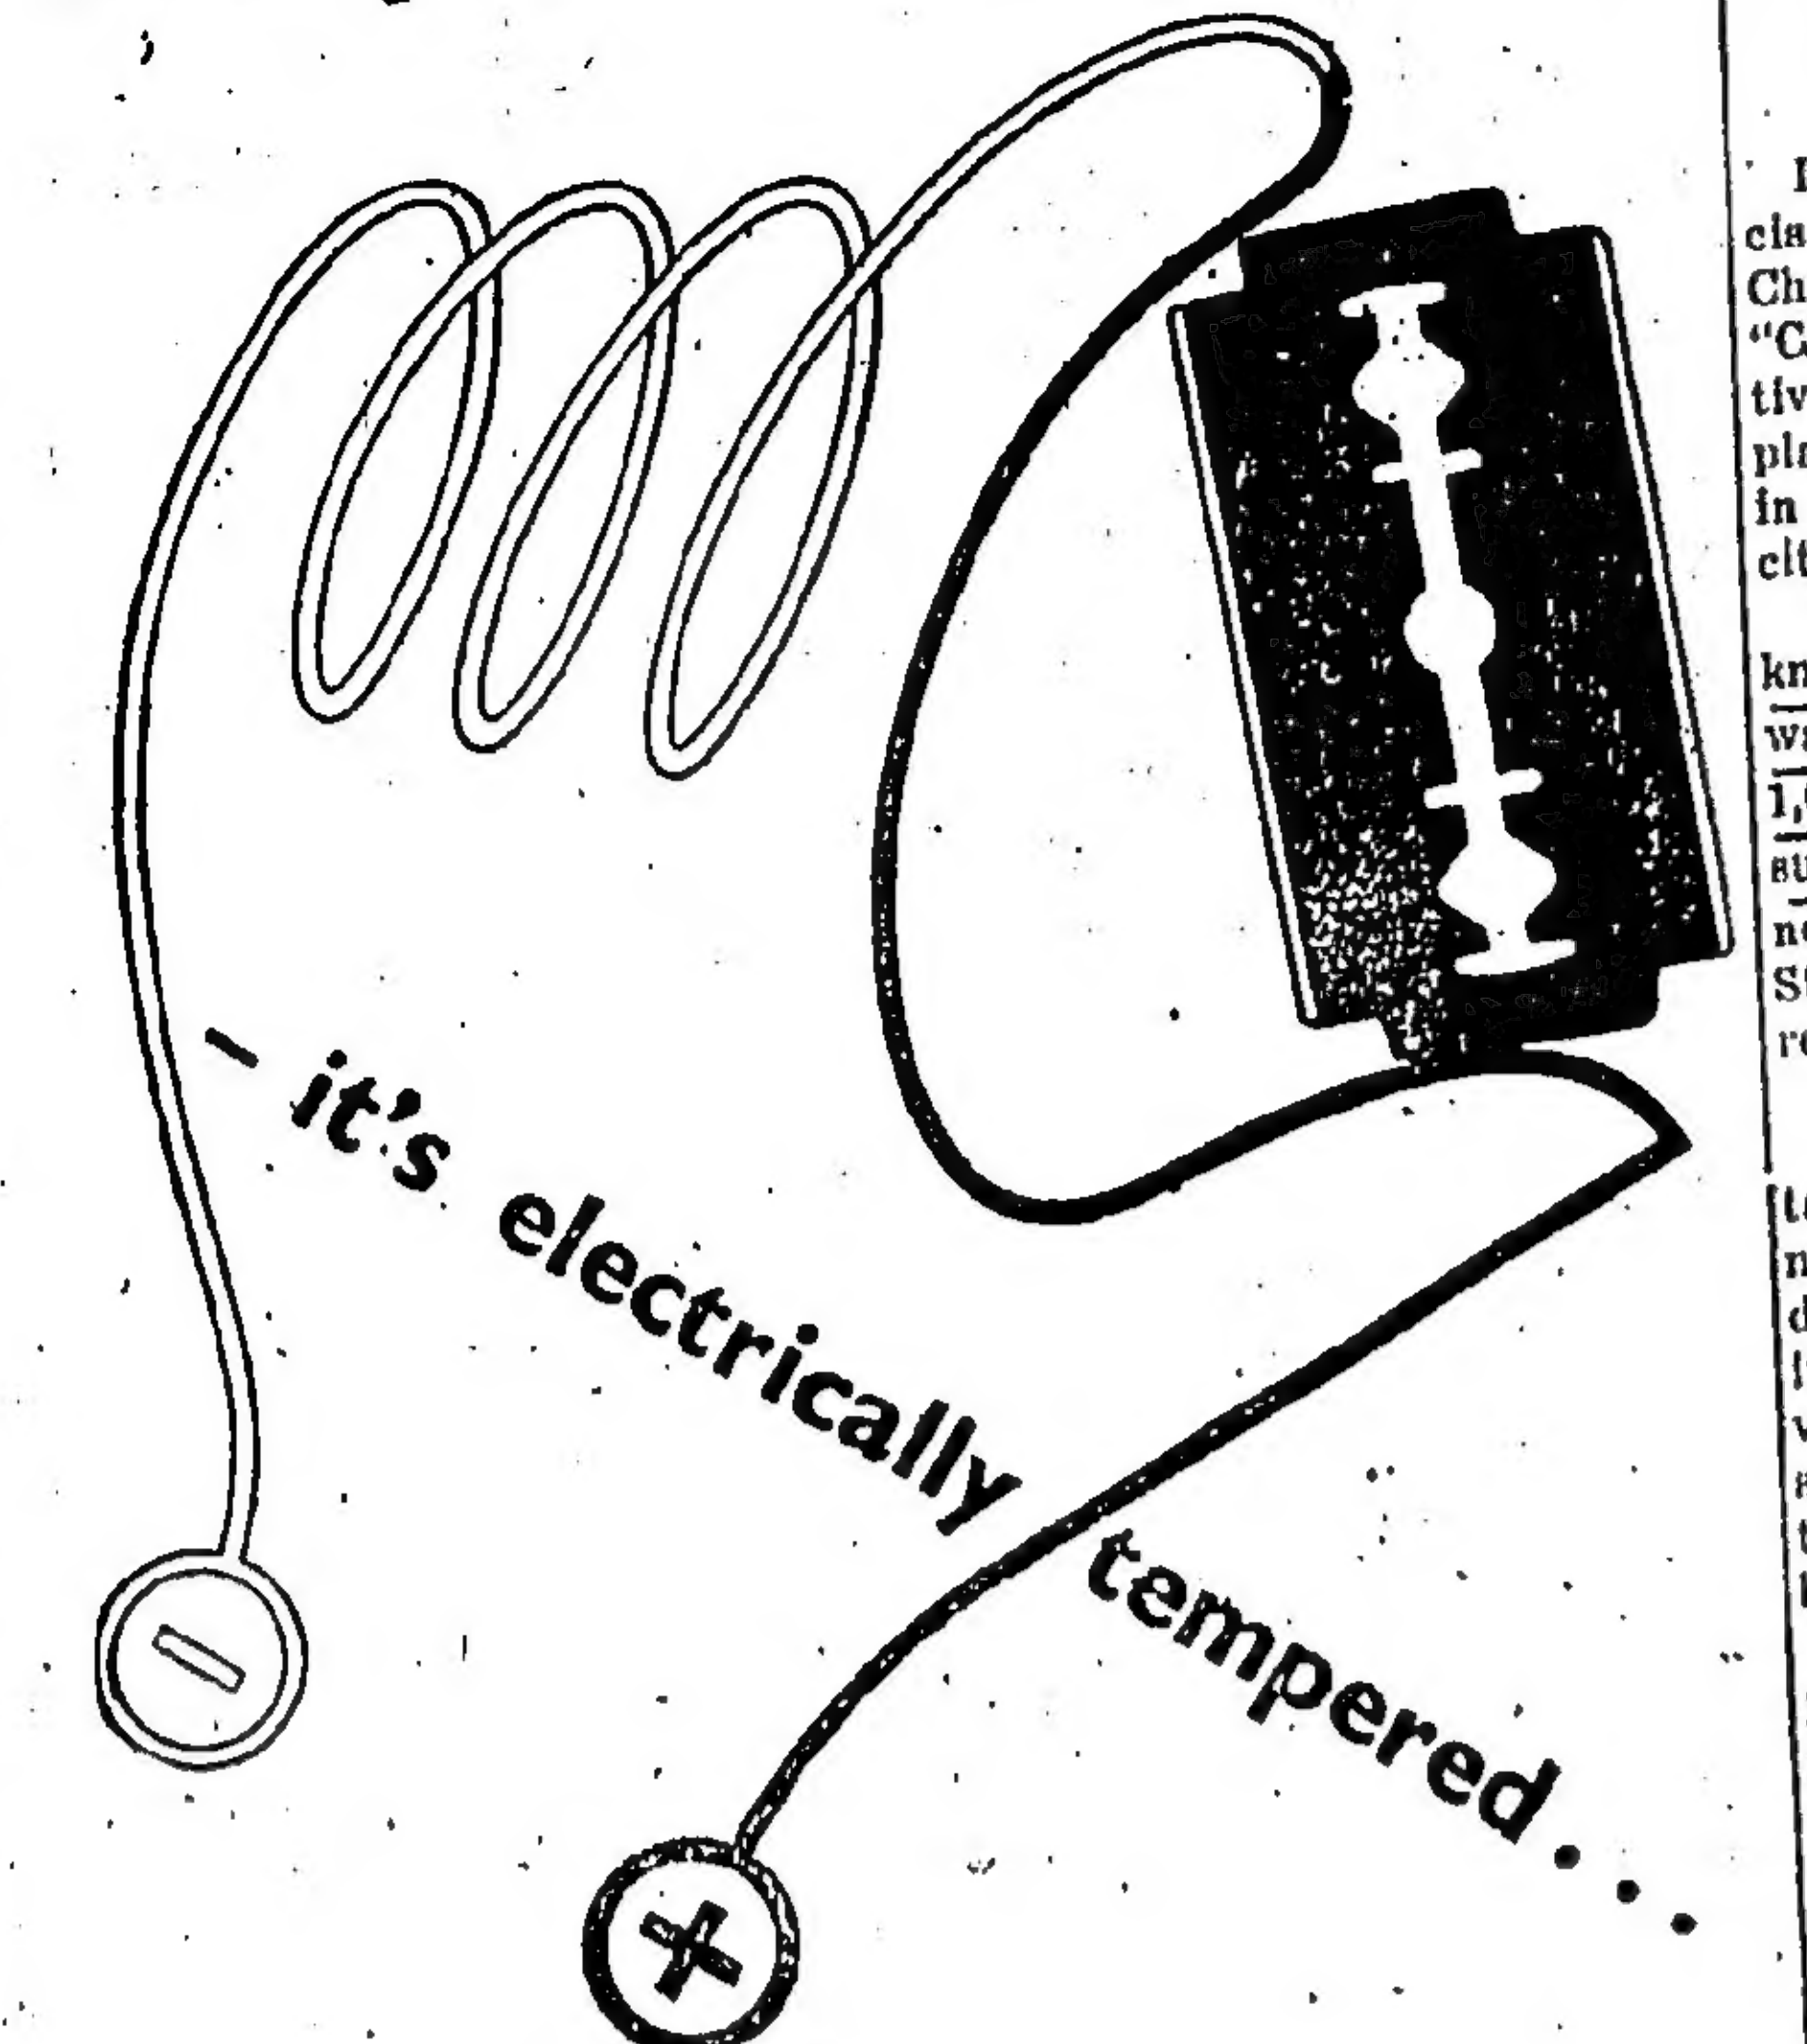

Mrs. Mollison's Cape Flight

It is interesting to note that Mrs. Mollison, after her exhausting London to the Cape and Cape to London flights, paid tribute to "Ovaltine" as having helped her to accomplish these wonderful feats.

She said: "My constant habit of drinking 'Ovaltine' is fully justified, as I am feeling 100 per cent. fit even after my strenuous flights."

The value of energy-providing "Ovaltine" has been acknowledged by other famous flyers. Jean Batten, Tommy Ross, H. L. Brook, Scott and Black, and Jones and Waller all used "Ovaltine" in their record-breaking flights.

And in many other memorable feats of endurance "Ovaltine" has played an important part. Famous explorers, mountaineers, racing motorists and athletes have relied upon "Ovaltine" to maintain physical fitness and abundant vitality in the face of the most arduous conditions and intense nervous strain.

What an amazing difference Gillette's new electrical process has made to razor blades. For it puts two tempers into one blade—soft at the ends where it bends to the razor and incredibly hard at the sides for sharpening to a super-cutting edge. Even if you're not interested in technical details you will be interested in the smoother, closer shaves you'll get. And in the extra shaves per blade. There has never before been a razor blade like this new Blue Gillette. Try one and see for yourself.

BRIDGE NOTES

VICTORS AND VANQUISHED

An Analysis Of Bids Good And Bad

AT the recent Congress of the Bridge League at Bexhill, Mr. Ingram's team (Ingram, Hughes, Simmons and Newmark) beat Mr. Lederer's team in the finals of the Gold Cup by 2,130 points.

Ingram and Hughes have striven to win this trophy for five years, and during this period have never been out of the finals or semi-finals — a notable achievement now crowned by well-deserved victory.

But most of the bridge played in the finals was poor. On practically every deal there was bidding which would be regarded as bad in the average club game.

FORD COMPANY'S FLEET

Largest Motor-Ships
On Great Lakes
OCEAN-GOING VESSELS, TUGS
AND CANAL-BARGES

THE Ford Motor Company's fleet, which is scheduled this year to carry the heaviest tonnage of iron ore in the fleet's history, has opened the company's navigation on the Great Lakes.

The Henry Ford II and the Benson Ford, the two ore-carriers, are scheduled to transport 865,000 tons of iron ore to the Rouge Plant this season. This tonnage compares with 660,000 tons last year, and 655,000 tons in 1930, the peak year up to the present.

The two largest motor-vessels on the Great Lakes, the ore-carriers will also transport 200,000 tons of limestone to the Rouge during the season. This tonnage, combined with the iron ore, will require about 97 trips by the two boats during the season.

Besides the ore-carriers, the Ford fleet in service this year will include 11 barges, three tugs, two canal boats and six ocean-going vessels. Many of these are already in service.

Schedules for the tugs and barges for the season call for the transportation of 1,500,000 tons of coal from Lake Erie ports, as well as 300,000 tons of sand and 25,000,000 feet of lumber from other ports on the Great Lakes to the Rouge Plant. The barges also will transport automobile parts to Buffalo and Chicago for branch assembly plants.

In Room 1, where T. Simmonds was A, the hand was thrown in. Simmonds has a good bid of "One Heart." I presume he passed on the ground that he has not the number of honour tricks laid down by New York for an opening bid.

Over an opening of "One Heart," Y should pass, B should bid "One No Trumps," Z should pass. A should bid "Two Hearts," and that is the declaration the hand should be played in, A B obtaining a part score.

In room 2 Mr. Leslie Dodds (A) took a very different view as to what constitutes an opening bid. He actually opened with a bid of "Three hearts."

So we see that one well-known "system" player regards this hand as not good enough to open on, while the other thinks it good enough for a bid which is only one short of game.

Over the opening bid of "Three Hearts," Y made what was perhaps the most astonishing call at the Congress. He doubled.

All passed and Dodds made his contract (450 points to the Lederer team).

In Room 1, after passes, A bid "One Spade," B called "Four Spades," and all passed. On the lead of the Ace of Diamonds by Y (Lederer), followed by a small diamond, A B were two down, a loss of 200 points.

B (Newmark) should, of course, have opened the bidding with "One Club," but as he was playing the "One Club" convention, he could not open.

In room 2, after two passes, A bid "One Spade," B (Koski) bid "Three Spades," and all passed. Koski was not playing the "One Club" convention and therefore there was no excuse for his pass, originally, on this hand.

UNCONSCIOUS IN COURT

During the hearing of a motor-car case at Brighton police-court last month the defendant, John Bollen, aged 40, fainted twice. After his second collapse, he remained unconscious, and the magistrates adjourned the case for two days.

Bollen had pleaded not guilty to driving a motor-car while under the influence of drink. He was stated by his wife to suffer from malaria and gastric trouble.

THE WHITE WHITE NEW MOTHS, PICTURE HISTORY

By Lt-Col. WALTER BULLER, C.B.E.

On the lead of the King of Clubs by Y (Ingram), followed by the four of clubs and a third club led by Z, which was trumped high by A, ten tricks were made.

It will be seen that two of B's losing diamonds could be discarded on the Ace, King of Hearts.

Ingram's lead of the King of Clubs as a gamble, but when he found that dummy held five to the Queen, Knave, ten, he took a grave risk in continuing with the club suit.

A might well have had no further club, in which case he (A) trumps Z's Ace, and three club tricks are established in dummy.

After leading his King of Clubs, a lead which I do not favour, Ingram should surely have had a "look round" by leading out his Ace of Diamonds.

If Z plays a small diamond (which in this case he could not have done) then Ingram can continue with his "club" enterprise.

In this way he is giving himself two chances, whereas to continue at once with the club lead was a gamble.

Both in play and bidding, this sort of thing occurred throughout the match, and after making every allowance for the strain entailed, one is still forced to the conclusion that the standard of play in this contest was not high.

Full details of the Congress will be found in the "Bridge Magazine," which is published at 1s. on the first of every month. On May 1 this widely read magazine celebrated its tenth anniversary of publication.

VOICE PRODUCTION Ex-Operatic Tenor As Teacher

MR. GERALD SYDNEY

Professor Gerald Sydney, who has just arrived in the Colony with the intention of settling down to the teaching here of voice production, elocution and the piano, brings with him a splendid reputation from Shanghai, where he has been teaching these subjects for over three years. He also gave a number of lectures on music and voice production which he intends to repeat here later on.

Mr. Sydney received his musical education at the Royal Academy of Music, London, where he afterwards became a teacher, subsequently holding an appointment for two years as Professor of Voice Production at Hertford College, Oxford, after which he became principal tenor of the Royal English Opera Company.

An accidental blow on the larynx, received "during an Eastern tour, compelled him to relinquish operatic singing and to return to teaching.

The Chinese Voice

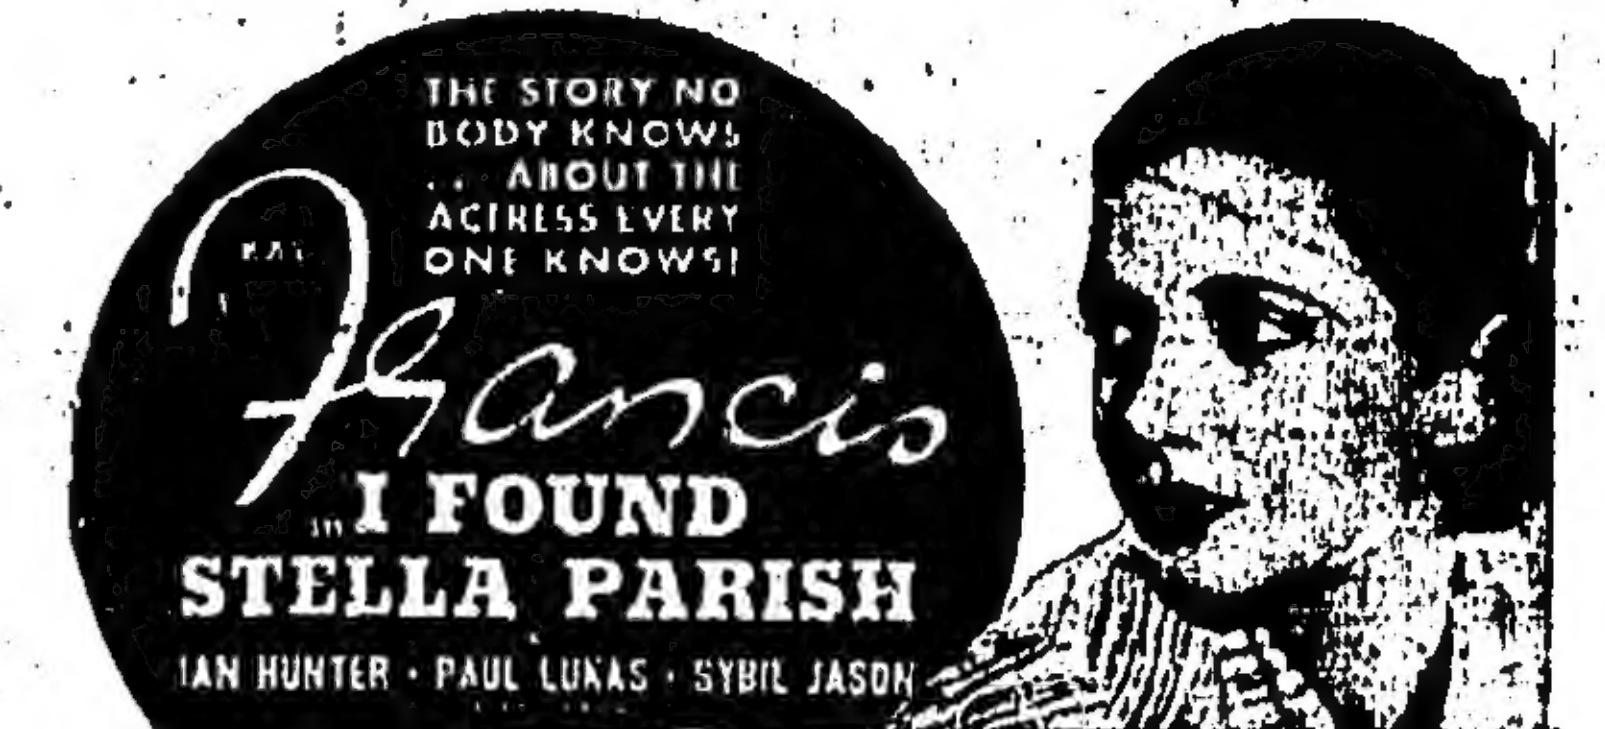

Mr. Sydney has a great belief in the possibilities of the Chinese voice, if properly trained, in the rendering of European music. One of his pupils, Mrs. Dollie Liu, of Shanghai, daughter of Sir Shou-son Chow, who studied under him for eight months, recently made a great success at one of Mr. Sydney's concerts, singing "Il Bacio" in Italian.

In the teaching of the piano Mr. Sydney has also some notable successes to his credit. One of these, Mr. Wu Shao-yung, is blind, but showing musical talent as a boy, was encouraged and helped by friends and placed in Mr. Sydney's hands, with the gratifying result that, after passing his Junior, T. C. examination early in 1935, he was able to skip his Intermediate and last month passed his Senior examination with honours.

Another is Miss Ma Li Chang, who, as a result of Mr. Sydney's excellent tuition, passed both her Senior and Advanced Senior in one year.

NEW STALIN CONSTITUTION FOR SOVIET UNION

DRAFT SUBJECT TO CONSIDERATION

APPARENT APPROACH TO DEMOCRACY

BUT COMMUNIST DICTATORSHIP STILL RETAINED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

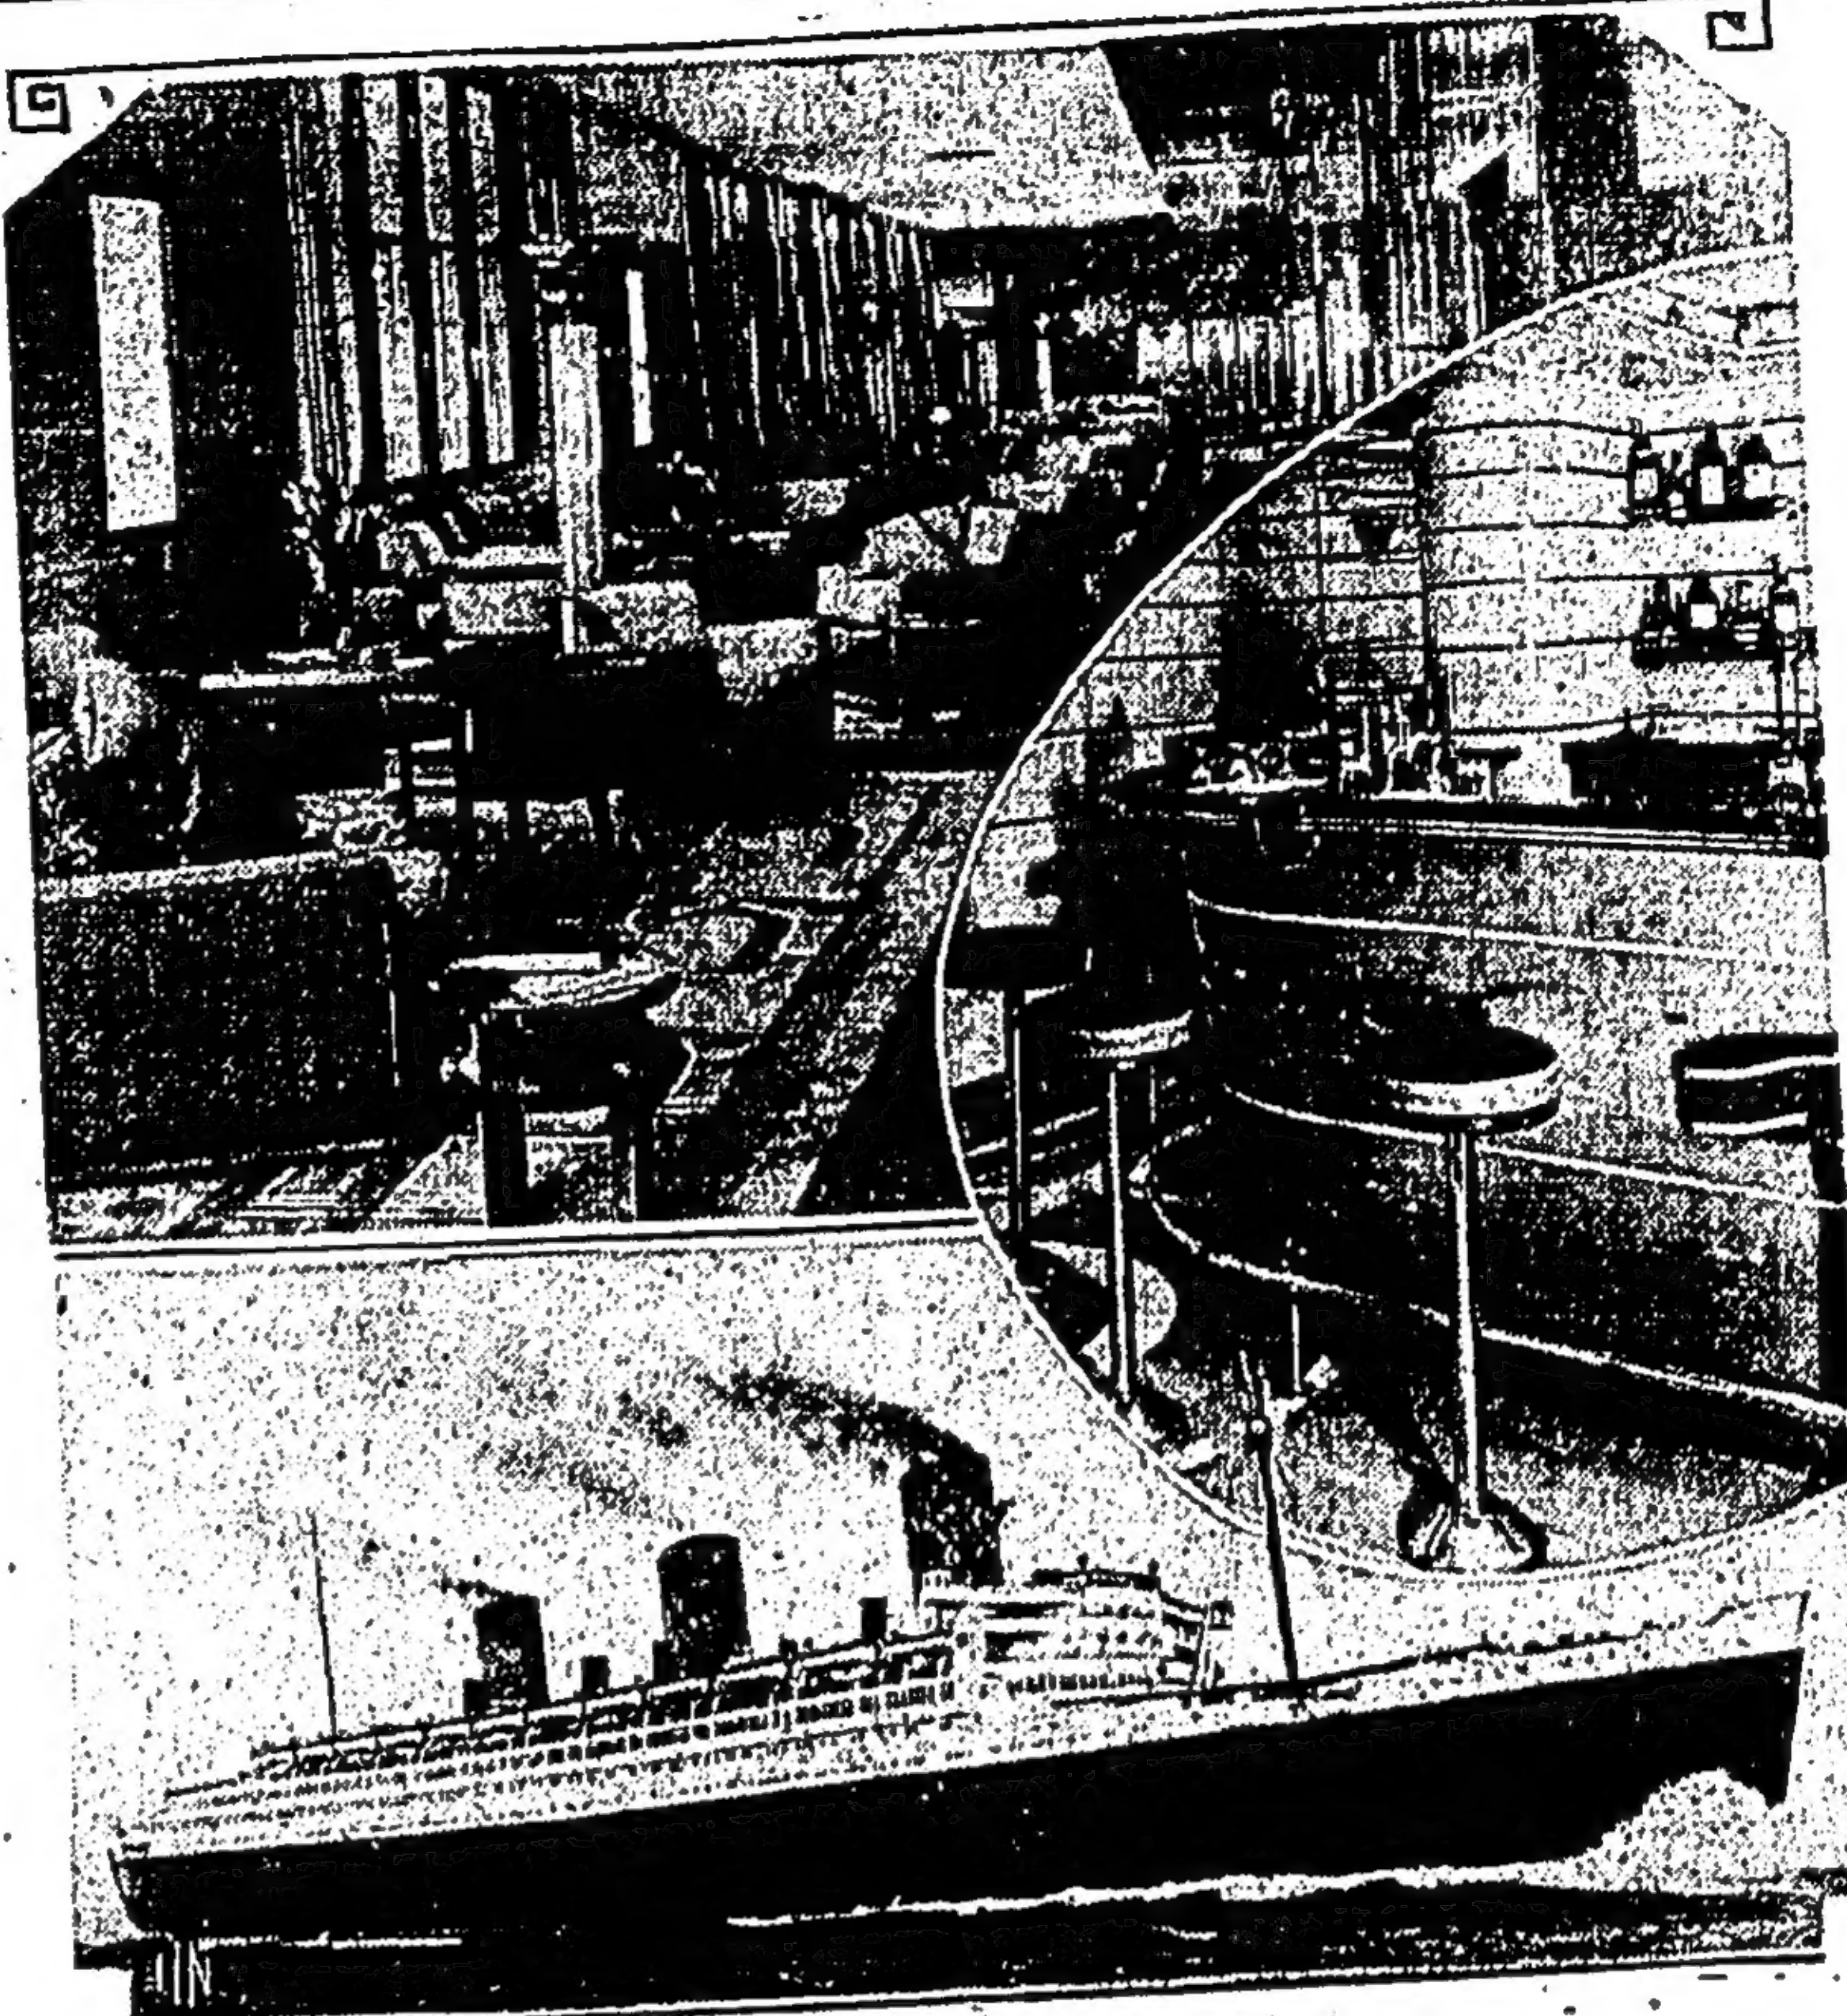

Keen interest in being shown by the German press in the provisions of the new Soviet Russian Constitution, the draft of which has just been made known officially after having been discussed by M. Stalin himself in an address to the Central Executive Committee.

This draft, so an official communication states, will be "laid before the workers for consideration and examination," and then debated at a special congress to be convened for November 25 next.

The draft consists of 12 chapters and 346 paragraphs. The chapter headed "The supreme organs of Statecraft" envisaged that instead of a Soviet Congress and the Central Executive Committee, which have hitherto wielded power, a Supreme Council of the Soviet Union will be constituted for a period of years, "on the basis of a general direct franchise." Every citizen of the Soviet Union, on attaining the age of 18 years, is to have the right to vote.

As the German press points out, this new system has a strong resemblance to democracy and as such is certain to have a conciliatory effect in countries that have hitherto proved unyielding in hostility to the whole Soviet principle. But when the text of the draft is examined more critically, it is seen that the right to nominate candidates for election is vested only in the Communist Party, the trades unions, the youth societies, co-operatives, and the cultural organizations, all of which are Communist to the core, so that while outwardly Soviet Russia has taken a step towards democracy, in reality the Communist spirit and the Communist dictatorship remain unaffected.

"SAVOURS OF HUMBBUG"
"It savours of humbug when the new Constitution talks of the so-called bourgeois liberties," writes one of the leading Berlin papers, "since the whole superstructure of the Soviet State is Communist through and through."
"Religious toleration" is likewise "another catchword behind which is no reality, since in the very same article freedom for anti-religious propaganda is also expressly guaranteed."
As regards the administration of the State itself the tendency is to strengthen the power of the Central Government at the expense of the separate republics which compose the Soviet Union. For instance, the administration of justice and banking are completely centred in Moscow, as are also many industries which are important in times of war, such as coal and iron, naphtha and so on.—Trans-Ocean Service.

JUNK'S THRILLING RACE TO ABERDEEN

FOUR FISHERFOLK WOUNDED IN RUNNING FIGHT

The story of how they were fired upon by some seven or eight people in an unknown junk after they had refused to stop when called upon to do so, was told by Fung Shing-mee, a 55-year-old fisherman, who was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday, with gunshot wounds in his head and thigh.

Three other members of Fung's crew were also admitted to the hospital, each one bearing gruesome evidence of their grim experience.

The wounded men are: Fung Fuk-tan, fisherman, aged 30, with gunshot wounds on both hands;

Ho Sze, aged 62, married woman, with gunshot wound on the right hand; and Li Sze, aged 28, married woman, with gunshot wound on the right hip.

Despite their injuries, these four people were not considered to be critically hurt, and when asked to give a version of what happened, one of them said that they had set out at 1 a.m. on their class IV junk on Saturday from Ha Mi, on a fishing trip, and no sooner had they set sail than they noticed another junk following them. As the people in the latter craft were behaving in a suspicious manner, they were asked what they wanted, and the latter immediately called upon the fishing boat people to stop and heave to.

This order, however, was not complied with and the next thing the fishermen knew was that the people in the other boat had opened fire on them, but, despite the fact that four of them were injured, they managed to beat the other boat in a race back to Aberdeen, where a report was made to the Police.

The injured people, in the meantime, were sent to the Government Civil Hospital and an enquiry into the matter is being conducted. The last night elicited the reply that they were making as good progress as could be expected.

NETHERLANDS BANK

Wider Powers To Be Conferred

Amsterdam, Yesterday.
Wide powers for the Netherlands Bank in order to strengthen its influence are contained in a Bill tabled by the Government in the Second Chamber, amending the Government's contract with the Bank as from its expiry on March 31, 1937.

The amendment will enable the Bank to adopt a definite open market policy, enabling it to control the money-market better than at present, since the Bank is now only able to exert its influence by altering the bank rate.

The Bank will be authorised to buy and sell inland bills and Treasury bills from "second-hand." In order to strengthen the Bank's financial power, a special reserve fund of 10,000,000 guilders will be created, bringing the general reserve to 20,000,000 guilders.—Reuter.

No trace could be found of the other junk up till the time of going to press, though the Police are still making investigations.

DOROTHY ROUND TRIUMPH

7,000 Present In And Dismal Weather

Wimbledon, Yesterday.
Playing before a crowd of 7,000 spectators in cold, drizzle and on a wet court, Kay Stammers, who beat Jacobs in the opening match, unexpectedly lost in straight sets to Mrs. Sarah Palfrey-Fabian to enable America to come on level terms in the Wightman Cup series to-day.

Miss Dorothy Round, however, again sent British spectators when she beat Miss Helen Jacobs in the second set, to give Britain a 3-2 lead.

With one singles and one doubles match yet to be played, everything seemed to be on a knife-edge, and the Carolin Babcock after a long effort in the second set, won the result therefore hinges on the Americans are favoured.

Last year Britain established a 2-1 lead at the end of today's play, only to lose the by 4 matches to 3.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, as follows:
Mrs. S. Palfrey-Fabian (U.S.) beat Miss K. Stammers 6-3, 6-4.
Miss D. Round (Britain) beat H. Jacobs 6-3, 6-3.
Miss C. Babcock (U.S.) beat M. Hardwick 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.
